1300 graduate from Newton's high schools

Three Newton high schools graduated more than 1300 seniors in commencement ceremonies.

Newton North HighhSchool and Newton South both held graduation on Wednesday evening. Newton North graduated 843 students while South graduated 477.

Newton Catholic High School held its ceremony last Friday, and 52 seniors graduated.

Speakers at the Newton North graduation included Colleen Butcher, an AFS student from South Africa, and David Regal of the Class of 1974. Guests included Mayor Theodore D. Mann, Superintendent of Schools Aaron Fink, School Committee Chairwoman Mrs. Eleanor Rosenblum, and George Guild, chairman of the Student-Faculty-Administration Board.

Speakers at Newton South were sociologist Thomas J. Cottle, Children's Defense Fund of the Washington ResearchhProject, and senior William Theodore Lichtenstein.

School Committee member Mrs. Joan Needleman presented diplomas to graduates, assisted by Parold Hawkes, housemaster of Cutler House, Joseph Nathanson, housemaster of Goodwin House, and Robert Wicks, housemaster of Wheeler House.

Msgr. William Granville was guest speaker at Newton Catholic's graduation. A welcome address was delivered by Class Saluatorian Mary Stokes. Class Valedictorian Karen Brennan spoke about the role of leadership and responsibility in today's society.

David Keyes was the recipient of the Meserve Award at Newton North. The Boys' Senior Cup was awarded to Chris Toomey, while the Girls' Senior Cup was presented to Margaret Magraw.

At Newton South, Lawrence Everett Benders was the recipient of the Boys' Senior Cup, and DeborahhBluestein was awarded the Girls' Senior Cup.

Other major award winners at North included Mary Ann Burns, Margaret South Award; Doug Kang and James Ahn, Phi Beta Kappa Award; William Seaward, William E. Connor Memorial Award; Mark Riley, Dickinson Memorial Athletic Cup; and Mary Drolin and Katherine Golden, Wendell Bauckman Award.

Margery Beth Fischbein received the Phi Betta Kappa Book at Newton South. Arthur Stephen Murphy was presented the Danny Mendelsohn Athletic Award. The G.A.A. Girls' Athletic Award went to Carol Leslie Kress, and the Horace W. Orr Award was presented to Michael Steven Shockett.

Rev. Samuel Seeds of the Presbyterian Church of Newton delivered the invocation at Newton North.

Other scholarship and award winners at Newton North are as follows:

Lt. Stafford Leighton Brown Memorial: Mark DeSouza, David Keyes, Michael Mitrano, David Woolf.

Alice M. Warren Scholarship Award: Diane Marie Smith, Karen Sheehan, Mary Patricia Doolin.

Clinton H. Scovill Fund Scholarships: Moon Gee Lew, Sara Ross, Ellery B. Cadel, Anne Salvucci, Jean Pepicelli, Lisa M. Bassett, Eileen Womboldt, Kevin O'Halloran, Sandra Epstein, Catherine Reynolds, Renne Watson, Jeanne Ayres, Virginia Freeman.

Centre parking under study

The traffic that threatens to choke the business district of Newton Centre will finally be tackled by the Board of Aldermen.

The three Ward 6 aldermen have submitted a resolution requesting Mayor Theodore Mann to explore 11 steps they have proposed to alleviate the parking problems.

One of the aldermen, Joan Saklad, feels that the submission of a resolution will force the Planning Department, the Board of Aldermen and Newton Centre businessmen and residents to give the matter serious and productive thought.

Incorporated in the resolution are several proposals concerning parking meters, sticker parking, and the creation of additional off-street parking by the use of more land and a possible upper-level on the triangle parking lot at Beacon Street, Centre Street, and Langley Road.

The resolution also recommends that establishment of a Newton Centre Parking Committee be considered, to include representatives of the Newton Centre Businessmen's Association, Improvement Association and Neighborhood Association, and the city Planning Department and Ward 6 aldermen.

The major change in the meter distribution would be the relocation of the 6-12-hour meters away from the congested shopping areas onto side streets. The long-term meters would be eliminated completely from the triangle, the Cypress Street parking lot and the parking lots behind the stores on Centre Street, and a maximum of two hours' parking would be allowed there.

"he Businessmen's Association would be expected to gathei datat on employee parking, such as number of spaces needed, and could also investigate the possibility of leasing spaces from nearby churches and providing sticker parking in those areas.

The resolution will be discussed at the meeting of the aldermanic City Planning Committee June 27.

In another action to reduce the traffic congestion in the Centre, the Traffic Commission at its last meeting voted approval of making Union Street one way east (from Beacon Street toward Langley Road) on a 60-day trial basis beginning September 1.

78% of homes here could contain lead paint

By TOM GRAVES
Of The Graphic Staff

Newton-Wellesley Hospital staff and RSVP volunteers have been methodically working since last September to screen young children in Newton for lead poisoning.

The program has been responding to what has been primarily publicized as a big city problem in recent years. Young children who eat lead substances may eventually end up with permanent brain damage.

According to Dr. John M. Cohen, chief of pediatrics at Newton-Welleseley Hospital, it has been estimated that 78 per cent of the houses in Newton have the potential of lead paint inside.

Newton-Wellesley ran a screening program for high rsk children in Newton two years and found that almost 30 per cent of those tested had a high level of lead.

Last spring and summer, the hospital met with all interested groups in Newton and Wellesley and evolved a plan for a more comprehensive screening program.

The program applied for and received $2300 from the Newton-Wellesley Office for Children and $500 from the Perpetual Benevolence Foundation. This, however, does not cover all the costs of the program, and Cohen reports that is has been "costing the hospital a lot of money."

Cohen noted that some communities, such as Boston and Waltham, have received federal funds for lead screening programs.

Hospital teams and volunteers have been traveling throughout Newton to test children between the ages of one and six. This week, the program tested its 2000'th child at the Memorial School in Oak Hill.

Cohen said that unofficial findings show that the program is "turning up a much lower percentage of children showing positive blood lead tests than we thought there would be." It had been anticipated that between three and five per cent would test positively.

Cohen noted that the results thus far should not be a deterrent to parents having their children tested. A goal of the program is to make parents aware of the hazard of lead poisoning.

Cohen said that is is expected that between 50 and 60 per cent of the young children in Newton will be reached by the screening. It had been hoped that 80 per cent would be reached.

The program uses a city printout to contact families in a given area which have young children. The families are contacted by mail and phone so they may set up lead screening appointments. Information about screenings is also sent to PTA's and schools.

The program has reached nearly every geographic area of Newton. There have been requests from some areas for return visits.

Cohen noted that when there has been good communication and information, there has been a good response.

Areas built after 1959 are less likely to have lead paint, although outside paints have been lead until two years ago. The possibility of lead poisoning is particularly high in dilapidated housing.

Cohen pointed out that lead poisoning may come from sources other than paint. He said that there may be a high level of lead in dirt in the ground, and some kids might get lead poisoning from their own backyards.

Cohen called the lead poisoning hazard in Newton "an insidious kind of thing." He said that "the over kid is easy to pick up compared to a child who has been picking up a high blood level over a long period of time."

Cohen noted that lead screening is one

$150,000 voted for Beaconwood

By ELIZABETH McKINNON
Of The Graphic Staff

Newton put its money where its mouth is Monday night when the Board of Aldermen voted to appropriate up to $150,000 as the city's "share" in a state-funded low-income housing development.

The total cost per unit of housing is expected to exceed $115,000.

The $150,000 was required by the state Dedpartment of Community Affairs, which will pay the total cost of land acquisition on Beaconwood Road, but balked at paying more than $45,000 construction cost per apartment.

The low bids of $874,700 for the 20 apartments came to $51,652 per unit, and Newton was required to contribute money to bring the cost down to the DCA maximum.

The cost of the entire project will be $1,033,034 for construction, site development, architects' and engineers' fees, and administrative and contingency costs, plus the cost of the land, currently estimated at something over $80,000.

The Housing Authority has offered the owners of the land, Ciccone Realty Trust, $83,600 for the two parecels comprising the property, as a pro tanto payment. A court will decide the final amount to be paid, and the DCA has agreed to assume the cost.

The $150,000 appropriation will clear the way for full approval by the DCA to go ahead with construction of the housing, the first family housing to be built in the city.

One potential trouble spot remains—the extension of bids by the contractor for the project, P.J. Stella of Wakefield. Bids expired last month, but the Housing Authority obtained an extension once until June 1.

At Monday night's meeting of the Board of Aldermen, Housing Authority lawyer Peter Kilborn said the NHA had obtained another verbal extension until June 14, but the next day Stella, asked about the extension, replied, "Not really."

Stella said further comment would have to come from the architect for the project, The Architects Collaborative of Cambridge, or from the Housing Authority.

Richard Brimley of TAC, an architect association with the project, explained that all but two of the sub-bidders had extended their bids to the general contractor. It is not clear to anyone, he said, whether the contractor could go to the second high bidders in those instances or would have to obtain new bids from the trades represented.

Jennifer Volkert of the Housing Authority said Tuesday that she considered Stella had given a verbal extension until June 14.

The meeting at City Hall, held during recess of the Board, was not withot acrihony or the part of aldermen and Housing Authority members.

Ald. Louis Egelson, whose proposal that the $150,000 be spent on acquisition of land on Staniford Street, Auburndale, was defeated at the last meeting of the Finance Committee asked NHA Chairman James Miller to "confirm or deny that the contractor's price includes all aspects of site development, including the city's share."

BEACONWOOD—see page 8

Ciccone offering housing

One of the owners of the Beaconwood Road land on which the Newton Housing Authority plans to build low-income family housing, Frank Ciccone, has offered the NHA two apartment houses in Nonantum for purchase.

The two buildings contain a total of seven apartments and an office that could be converted to an apartment.

Ciccone said he made the offer because, according to "statements made at that meeting (Finance Committee), the NHA is unable to obtain property suitable for housing for less than $40,000 per unit, or thereabouts."

Ciccone is offering his two buildings for $168,000, or $21,000 per unit.

One building has been remodeled, and the other also meets all codes, Ciccone said. All apartments in the buildings are presently occupied and are covered by one-year leases, with rentals of $170-180 for two-bedroom units.

The Housing Authority says housing can't be had. It can be had," Ciccone said this week. "There is a lot of housing available."

Frank Quinn, executive director of the Housing Authority, said earlier this week that the Housing Authority had not discussed the letter yet.

In general, Quinn said, requirements of development programs throughout the Commonwealth.

DeNucci is presently a legislative aide to the House Committee on Transportation.

"I feel I have a great understanding of the legislative process . . . and what it takes to be a truly effective state representative for my community," he said. "You could say I've had some 14 years of on-the-job training, a meaningful education for this particular office. I do not consider myself a politicain and I do not have any other political ambition. I just want the opportunity to be an effective state representative.

DeNucci said he believed more efforts

Summer School registration

Registration for summer school classes will take place at Newton North High School, Beals House Common Room 2236 June 24, from 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. and on June 25 and 26 from 9:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m.

Students now in grades 9 through 12 who are interested in make-up or review courses and also enrichment courses may register for a variety of subjects, such as English, mathematics, languages, science, social studies, business, driver-training courses, auto-repair and physical education.

Classes meet for either two or four hours, depending on the course, from 8 a.m. to noon. School will start July 1, and run for six weeks through August 9. Tuition varies according to the course taken.

Inquiries may be directed to Richard M. Adams, director, at the Beals House, Newton High School, or by telephone to Mrs. Marie T. Esposito through the Newton School Department number 969-9810, Ext. 349.

Family health hazards covered in Backman bill

Legislation filed by Sen. Jack H. Backman (D-Brookline), chairman of the Joint Committee on Social Welfare, establishing a statewide program of child health is now before the Committee on Ways and Means.

"In 1968," said Sen. Backman, "Congress gave recognition to the importance of early detection of child health problems when states receiging Medicaid funds were required to establish programs to find health defects in underprivileged children.

"Despite this federal mandate, officials estimate that of 12 million children eligible nationally, only 10 per cent have actually enrolled.

"To encourage the states to provide this type of outreach, the federal law stipulates that as of July, 1974, one per cent of a state's Aid to Families with Dependent Children reimbursement will be cut if the state does not provide child health screening services under Medicaid and inform welfare families of the availability of such services.

"The purpose of my legislation is to build upon the existing child health screening, family planning and maternal health programs within the federal guidelines," said Sen. Backman.

The Backman legislation would cover children, potential parents, as well as pregnant women. The bill would also increase public awareness of preventable health hazards for potential parents and children. Another aspect of the Backman bill would be the maximum utilization of information, screening, diagnosis and treatment services that are available.

Implementation of the child health program would be placed, according to Sen. Backman, within the Department of Public Health, which currently administers many of the individual prevention programs such as the hazardous toy program, poison information program and PKU program, as well as the lead-paint poison prevention program which came into being as the result of legislation filed by Sen. Backman.

Warning asked for labels not listing all ingredients

Rep. Lois G. Pines (D-Newton) is the first state representative to sign a petition to the Food and Drug Administration requesting that a warning statement be placed on all food labels which contain only a partial ingredient statement. The petition has already been signed by 37 congressmen and 12 consumer groups, including the Massachusetts Consumers' Council.

At present, many food labels do not contain complete lists of ingredients; some products, such as mayonnaise and ice cream, which contain "standard" ingredients, are not required to carry an itemized list of ingredients, even though "optional additives" may be contained. It is ironic, Pines said, that dog and cat food labels contain the most complete lists of ingredients and a breakdown of the nutritional value of the product.

The Food and Drug Administration contends that it is not authorized to require full disclosure of ingredients. However, it does have the power to require that the following warning appear on all food products that are not now labeled with all the ingredients: "Warning. Unlabeled ingredients contained in this product."

Pines, a longtime consumer advocate, said, "People have a right to know what they are eating. Many people who are allergic or require special diets encounter severe difficulty in determining what ingredients are contained in prepared foods. For people with severe allergies, the terms "flavorings, artificial coloring, and spices" are not specific enough. There has been at least one recorded death resulting from inadequate food labeling."

On the national level, legislation has been proposed which would require the listing of all ingredients contained in food products.

Rep. Pines commented after signing the petition, "It is my contention that government on both the federal and state levels should take any and all appropriate steps to insure that the consumer knows what he is eating."

$50,000 sought for Centers' expansion

The Newton Community Service Centers, Inc., which has provided valuable services for Newton residents since 1907, has launched its first capital fund raising drive in 20 years.

The $50,000 being sought in the campaign will provide funds for some remodeling and for construction of an addition to the outmoded and outgrown facility of the center on Cherry St., West Newton.

Edward C. Uehlein, chairman of the Newton Community Service Centers Building Fund, explained, "The need for this addition has been brought about by our ever-expanding programs and services. The existing facilities are jammed beyond capacity day and night — all of which is evidence that what we are offering is vitally needed by our citizens. The needs of thousands of Newton citizens are being met yearly."

The N.C.S.C. offers programs, services and activities for all age groups in the city. For children, there are care service programs; three camping programs; seven types of calsses; seven groups of dance classes; creative arts programs designed for different age levels, interests and needs; and a boys' club.

Programs for youth include a Youth Center with assorted programs run by High school students, coffee houses, gym programs, etc. More than 1,500 young residents of Newton participated in these programs in 1973.

For youth, there is also a Job Bank offering employment help for teen agers; teen classes in ballet, baton, golf, drama, crafts, physical fitness, etc. The N.C.S.C. also operates a Hot Line seven evenings a week for people in need.

Activities for adults include a variety of classes ranging from drama, sewing, weaving, silkscreen to arts and humanities and even oven cake decoration. Sports and physical education groups and social clubs are also available for adult participation.

For citizens over 60, there are a variety of social clubs that feature parties, card playing, movies, travel, sales, community activities, etc. There is also a Retired Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP), through which elderly citizens may teach or attend classes, perform volunteer work to help solve local probelms, take advantage of a legal information service, and availa themselves of a number of other services. More than 200 people have enrolled in these programs.

Begun in 1907 as a nursery, the Newton Community Service Centers, Inc., has expanded and altered its services to the Newton community through the years as times and needs changed. The All-Newton Music School started at the Neighborhood House run by the Center in 1911. Some of the unusual activities provided among the broad range of programs (too numerous to mention in entirety) have included health and baby clinics, Americanization classes, a nutrition clinic, detached worker programs, the establishment of the Rebecca Pomroy House, and work with the city's Commissions on Youth and Aging.

Senator Edward Brooke, Rep. Robert Drinan, and Mayor Theodore Mann are serving as Honorary Charimen of the current fund-raising campaign.

Attorney Oscar Wasserman is serving as chairman of the Building Committee. Also involved in a leadership role in the drive is Sister Margaret Gorman, chairman of the Psychology Department of Newton College and president of the Board of Directors of the Newton Community Service Centers.

Contributions may be sent to the Newton Community Service Centers, 429 Cherry St., West Newton, Mass. 02165.

Garden plots ready

There will be garden plots available to Newton citizens, after all, though not in the number and location originally proposed by Ald. David Jackson in the City Planning Committee.

Instead of 24 locations across the city, the "Garden City plots" will be located only at the Winchester Street site of the former city infirmary.

There, a total of 175 plots, each 10 to 20 feet, will be available. Of these, 60 have already been staked out, and 10 have already been assigned.

Anyone of school age or older, who will agree to commit at least four hours per week to the garden, is eligible.

Rules for the ue of the land include using only hand tools and natural light.

The city will arrange fo the initial breaking of the sod but the clod-breaking and fine tilling of the earth will be the responsibility of the gardener.

Water from a nearby hydrant will be available in case of prolonged drought, but otherwise water will have to be carried from the river or brought in by the gardener.

Plots will be assigned at the Street Department in City Hall on a first-come, first-served basis. Additional rules and regulations will be given out when plots are assigned.

Yoga classes

Yoga for harmony of mind and body will be offered this summer at the Newton Community Service Center, according to Geraldine Hill, member of Yoga Teachers of America, and a teacher at the Center.

A seven-week session begins June 25 and features classes beginning and intermediate levels plus "Yoga-Plus" which includes discussions of foods, astro-yoga, philosophy, and yoga therapy.

For information people may call Ms. Hill at 969-9767 or the Center, located at 429 Cherry Street West Newton at 969-5906.

Open-space reports ready on June 11

What land should Newton acquire as open space and why?

How should Newton set priorities for saving its open space?

As a follow-up to last year's Open Space Action Conference, the Open Space Committee of the Newton Conservators, Inc., will provide some answers in a report on its year-long project of developing and applying an evaluation system to all of Newton's open space at a meeting to be held in the film lecture hall of Newton North High School at 7:30 p.m., June 11.

Robert Brandwein of the economic counsulting firm of Harbridge House will discuss the implications of planned-unit development, for which an ordinance is under study by the Board of Aldermen, in relation to the possible development of Newton's golf courses.

Last year's Open Space Conference had considerable impact on the attitudes of city officials, and resulted in several proposals to allocate funds toward the acquisition by the city of existing open space on a regular, committed basis.

The public is invited to come and encouraged to participate in the discussions. Coffee and dessert will be served at 7:30, followed by a slide presentation. Reports and discussion will begin at 8:30.

The Open Space Committee is chaired by Ms. Sharon Francis.

McDonald's pulls out

McDonald's Restaurants has abandoned plans to open a 160-seat establishment on Walnut Street in Newtonville, according to Robert Tennant, president of the Newton-Needham Chamber of Commerce.

Instead, Tennant said, Philip Bram, owner of the property, will shortly sign a lease with a "small supermarket," with headquarters in Cambridge.

The McDonald restaurant was given a common victualler's license by the Licensing Board over strong objection from much of the neighborhood because of traffic problems it would generate.

The Chamber of Commerce supported McDonald's.

An ordinance introduced by Rep.Peter Harrington last year to require the provision of off-street parking in conjunction with a change of use in, or the remodeling of, a commercial building has been held in the aldermanic Land Use Committee for further revision by the Planning Department.

Many observers felt that the proposed ordinance resurfaced recently only as an attempt to thwart McDonald's.

A compromise solution, in which parking will be required only if the projected use of the building is more intense than the existing use, is under study.

Zoning Board rules addition must come down

By ELEANOR SIEGEL
Staff Correspondent

The Zoning Board of Appeals has ordered Joseph DeAngelis of 19-21 Moreland ave., to remove a newly built addition to his home which he constructed without the benefit of a building permit.

Seeking to legalize the construction, DeAngelis had been warned by the building inspector that a permit was needed.

A neighbor, Ezra Baker, testified before the Zoning Board of Appeals that a "good size dormer had been built causing a dramatic change at the top of the house . . . I am amazed that construction took place without the observation of the building inspector for so long and then continued on a 7-day basis ignoring Newton's laws."

"He knew what the law was and had the effrontery to come before the board and say legalize what I've done," said Robert Corbett, member of the board.

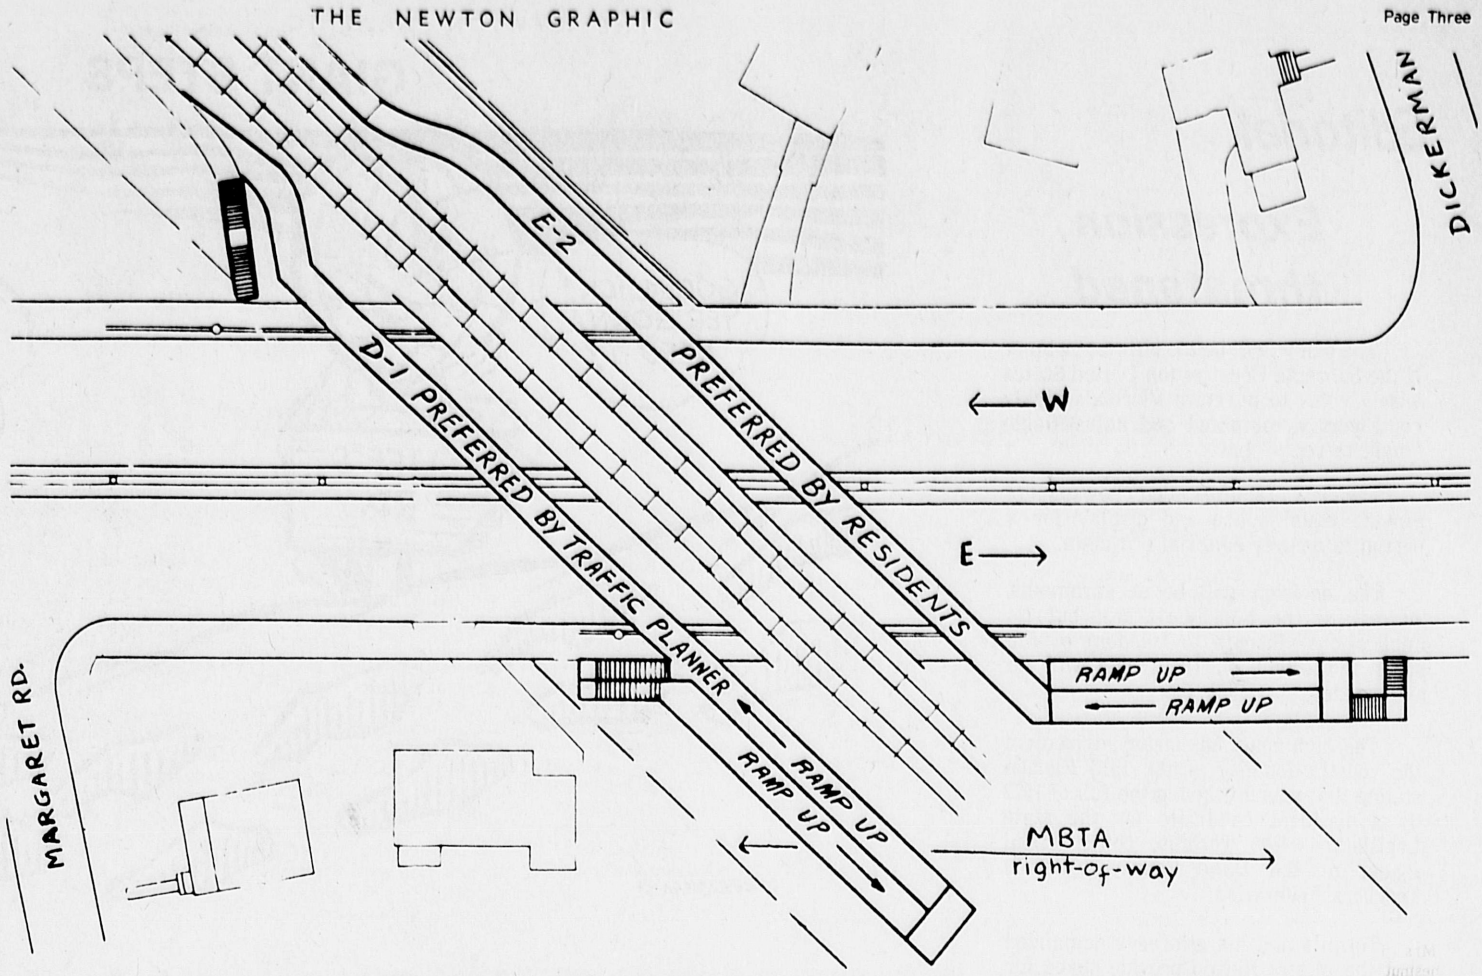
Casper Ferguson agreed and stated that "we should use the full extent of the powers of the board . . . it would be terrible to let him get away with it."

Two other members of the board wanted to save a portion of the construction for DeAngelis; however, they were outvoted. They were Morris Reidy Jr. and Champe Fisher, chairman. Voting against DeAndelis' petition were Casper Ferguson, Robert Corbett and William Ripley. DeAngelis does not intend to appeal, he said.

In other action the board approved, with conditions Weston Realty's petition to build a tennis court on Bourne Street. The conditions were that there would be no lighting, the hours of play would be 8 to dusk; play would be restricted to tenants and their guests and a five foot chain link fence would be erected with four foot arbor vitae or hemlock hedges between the fence and the lot line.

The board also granted, subject to the approval of the artchitects plan, permission to Sage's market, Newton Centre, for an 1100 square foot addition to their building.

Edwin Sage, chairman of the board, listed security as one reason for the addition. Sage pointed out that customers come and go through the rear of the store to the parking lot and presently there is no checkout counter at that part of the market. He also pointed out that sanitary regulations have produced a need for a new meat cutting room designed to meet code requirements.



Existing MBTA bridge over Route 9 with two plans for footbridge. Eliot Station is at upper left.

Eight Route 9 footbridge plans unveiled

Eight plans for a footbridge across Route 9 were presented to Newton Highlands-Upper Falls residents at a public hearing last week.

The building of the bridge has been approved by the state Department of Public Works in response to pleas from Mayor Theodore Mann and Rep. Lois Pines for a safe crossing of Route 9 to and from the Eliot MBTA station.

Residents of the area have long complained about the danger from high-speed traffic on Route 9, and several pedestrian deaths have occurred on this stretch of road during the past few years.

The majority (14 against 8) of the residents present at the hearing were in favor of the bridge, but Rev. Thomas Motherway, of 1064 Boylston St. (Route 9) proposed that a new MBTA station be built instead.

He felt that the bridge would unfavorably affect the houses on Boylston Street and suggested that another MBTA station behind the Trade Winds restaurant on city-owned land would be a better solution.

Of the eight plans presented by David Tannozzini, Newton's traffic and transportation planner, all would involve landtaking in varying amounts, except Plan D-1, in which the footbridge and ramps would be entirely on MBTA land (see drawing).

However, residents, by a show of hands, expressed a preference for Plan E-2, in which the southern access would be closer to stores.

It was not certain that the residents who voted for plan E-2 realized that landtaking would be necessary.

The bridge will cost about $170,000 and will be paid for by the state, which will then turn it over to the city for maintenance.

The Street Traffic Committee of the Board of Aldermen, which held the hearing, took no vote on the matter.

Initial Underwood approval given by aldermen

By ELIZABETH McKINNON
Of The Graphic Staff

Approval of $70,000 architects' fees for the enlarging and renovating of the Underwood School, tantamount to an irrevocable decision to complete the project, was greeted by smiles from the hardy group of Underwood parents and teachers who have attended City Hall meetings for the past year.

The measure was passed 23-0 by the full Board Monday night.

Also voted was a transfer of $130,000 from the unused bond account to pay for the convering of exposed asbestos in the new Newton North High School, as well as other corrective work in the school.

Efforts to take action on an ordinance requiring provision of parking by owners of commercial buildings whose use is being changed were defeated after considerable debate on the proposed ordinance change.

When an alderman pointed out out how long the item has been before the Board (since March, 1973) and how muchrevision it has undergone, Ald. Alan Barkin said that only proves that "if you give a monkey a typewriter he'll eventually spell a word."

"The fact is that the Planning Director has not come up with an ordinance," he said.

Ald. Robert Tennant, who is president of the chamber of commerce, also wanted to get the measure onto the floor for a vote. He mentioned a restaurant in West Newton square that is planning to renovate and does not know whether it will have to provide parking.

Board President Eliot Cohen commented that he had been told of four instances in which businesses are afraid to get a building permit for alterations because the status of the ordinance change is so unsettled.

"We're going to sit back and become a supereconomic body and decide what businesses can come in." (if this is passed), Ald. Michael Antonellis said. "You can't create the impossible; you can't tear down houses."

But Land Use Committee Chairman Joseph McDonnell said, "We can't vote on this tonight. Not until May 13 did it engender considerable public notice and discussion. Until the ordinance is finalized, I wouldn't move it.

McDonnell detailed the principal change under study as applying only to increase in intensity of use of a building. When use is increased, McDonnell said, the new plan would cahrge the owner only with the additional spaces needed, not require him to provide full parking.

A vote to take the item from the Land Use Committee failed.

Also voted down was a motion to "take from the table" the petition of Joseph McMullin, service station operator in Newton Highlands, for permissive use to conduct a truck-and-trailer rental business at his Sunoco station on Boylston Street.

The item was "laid on the table" at the last meeting of the Board, when the imposition of restrictive conditions resulted in a deadlock among the aldermen. McMullin has been operating in violation of the zoning ordinances for many years, and now seeks permission to continue his business.

"Laying on the table" precludes any action being taken until two-thirds of the Board votes to take an item off the table.

Four offers to purchase city-owned land were handled for the first time under a new ordinance giving the City Planning Committee the responsibility for deciding whether the land should be sold.

Under the new procedures the City Planning Committee decides whether the land shall be sold. If not, the recommendation to the full Board and to the mayor is not to sell. If the committee agrees to sell the land, then the Finance Committee takes over and holds a public hearing, solicits bids, and determines whether the land shall be sold and at what price, subject to Board and mayoral approval.

The Board accepted the City Planning Committee report that a small parcel on Nonantum Place may be sold, a parcel on Winchester Street may be sold subject to restrictions that nothing may be built on the property, and a large lot on Waban Avenue shall not be sold, since it is part of an extensive greenbelt.

Several appointments by Mayor Theodore Mann were approved without debate.

Russell Halloran was confirmed as the new recreation commissioner effective July 1 at a salary of $18,500. Ald. Wendell Bauckman gave the only no vote.

The appointment and salary of John Penney as assistant recreation commissioner were held until the next Board meeting.

The reappointment of Otis Robinson to the Newton Development Authority for a five-year term was approved unanimously, as were the appointment of Alfred D. Smith to the Youth Commission and Alice E. Mullen to the Jackson Homestead board of trustees.

Expression threatened

The public will be the ultimate winner if the Supreme Court of the United States wisely votes to overturn Florida's highly controversial, outdated and unjustifiable "right to reply" law.

The law requires that newspapers provide equal space and display for a person to answer editorial criticism.

The decision will be of paramount interest to the Sunshine State, but its implications, threats to freedom of the press and effect on the media will be nationwide.

The high court has under advisement the constitutionality of the 1913 Florida statute that was invoked in the fall of 1972 by a dissident candidate for the state Legislature, Pat Tornillo, controversial leader of the Dade County (Miami) Teachers Federation.

Tornillo and his attorneys demanded that the Miami Herald provide space for him to answer a stinging editorial indictment of Tornillo's qualifications for a seat in the lower house at Tallahassee, Florida's capital, the newspaper refused- we believe properly so on grounds the "right to reply" law was unconstitutional.

If the court strikes down the law, it will be a decisive defense of the rights of free expression as guaranteed by the first amendment to the Constitution. At the same time, such action might give rise to a feeling among many Americans that the media have gained a free hand to distort or slant news to the detriment and defiance of the public interest. But if the court upholds the law, it will represent not only a stunning blow to press freedom as we know it in the United States today but a serious and dangerous hindrance to the practical operation of any newspaper.

Imagine, for a moment, the potential unrealistic demands for space to reply should a newspaper choose to carry out one of its primary functions the candid expression of its basic convictions. It could transform a newspaper from its role of an educational forum and molder of public opinion to a mere journal for the repetitive presentation of nonsensical arguments on subjects that it is doubtful any two intelligent persons ever could agree anyway. Thus would arise a new threat to the function of the newspaper in American society.

While the suit centers on replies to newspaper editorials and not on news stories, the challenge to the responsibility of reputable media is equal in both aspects.

Responsible communicators guard unstintingly a reputation for objectivity, honesty and decency in the presentation of news and opinions. They need no censors, no communications commissars who would spoon feed the public on news favorable to political regimes or governmental agencies. That's totalitarianism. Or, in simple words, the death of freedom.

The threat of Florida's "right to reply" law to a newspaper's freedom of expression, insidious as it might appear through casual consideration, is as real and as terrifying as the more direct forms of censorship.

The law should be repealed. The burden of integrity and fairness in the presentation of news and opinions must rest with the media, not with the judiciary or any other arm of government.

It is the public, after all, through its indirect control of circulation and advertising, that holds the power of life and death over a newspaper. And thus it is the public that should be the judge of whether a newspaper is living up to its responsibility.

The lesson for Massachusetts in the Florida case filed against the state's largest newspaper is that the Legislature should under no circumstances ever consider such a restrictive statute. It is fortunate not to have one now.

GIANT STEPS

To Paula Barry and Andy Fielding

By CYNTHIA BLACK

This week was described early Wednesday as "The toughest news week in the year."

The reference was not to some recurring disaster, unless you consider trying to set the names of some 2,000 graduates in type and get them all right a disaster.

Graduation ceremonies were held Wednesday night at Newton North and Newton South high schools and last Friday night at Newton Catholic High. The 52 seniors at Catholic High School represent the first graduating class of the new, consolidated school.

The 800 plus senior at North High are the first class to leave this newly opened high school.

Since we rely on students at the schools to provide us with some of our news, I think we should acknowledge them now and wish them good luck.

Good luck columnists Andrew Fielding and Paula Barry.

A visit from Andy is like a brush with a whirlwind. Always on the verge of being out of breath, he would come storming into our office past all deadlines with his column.

It occasionally strayed far afield, but I liked his approach to column writing. I think he also broke new ground in this area and gave the column "Going South" new scope and a new direction.

Paula Barry's approach was a little more methodical. She also took the opportunity to explore the concerns of students in the brand new high school and often wrote editorials on issues there.

Her column, "Northword" (and it's a trick to keep that from being set 'northward'), also departed from the tradition of a recitation of events.

She used her column too to interview students and teachers and practiced feature writing within its confines. She also practiced "news jusgment" successfully.

Of course, the columns will continue next year and I now pause to ask for volunteers. Students interested in journalism and in writing these columns on a regular basis can call me at The Graphic. I hope we'll also get a volunteer for a column from Catholic High School.

And we will retain the formats established by Paula and Andy in next year's efforts.

To parents of college graduates, I'd just like to say that we are receiving material on graduates every day and will try and get all of it into the paper as soon as possible.

Most schools areefficient on this matter and do a good job sending us graduates' names.

They're also efficient at sending out honors lists and dean's lists and lists of freshmen for next year. In fact they're so efficient they send all of these things at the same time. Then it's our turn to sort it and process it for the paper. This does take time.-

Delay until next year seen on Nixon removal

President Nixon's impeachment during the coming summer would be a setback for him, but probably nothing more than that.

On the basis of all the information this writer was able to gather on a recent visit to Washington, Nixon will be impeached by the national House in either late July or August.

Mr. Nixon has been losing support all over Capitol Hill in both the House and the Senate as a result of informatign contained in the transcripts he made public and his refusal to release additional tapes.

But if Nixon is impeached, as seems almost certain to this observer, there appears to be no way his trial in the U.S. Senate can be completed before the end of this year.

If Nixon is still on trial at the close of business on Dec. 31, the impeachment process must be started all over again in 1975 because this Congress goes out of existence at the year's end.

A trial to determine whether the President should be removed from office cannot be started by the 92nd Senate and be completed by the 93rd.

As one Congressman put it to the writer, the name of the game is delay, and some of the House Judiciary Committee members appear to have made blunders which could result in more delays.

For example, if and when President Nixon is impeached, there could be a court suit on whether a Judiciary Committee member such as Congressman Robert F. Drinan of Newton should have been disqualified from voting because of his repeated statements, in advance of the presentation of any evidence to the Judiciary Committee, that President Nixon should be impeached.

When and if President Nixon is impeached, his lawyers will be entitled to a reasonable amount of time to prepare for the trial in the Senate. You may be sure that Attorney James St. Clair and his associates will not be moderate in their demands for time to get ready.

Between one thing and another it will be surprising if the ouster trial in the Senate starts much before next Oct. 1.

Members of the Senate who are standing for reelection will want time off to go home and campaign before election. A court suit could develop if Senators go off campaigning instead of remaining on Capitol Hill to listen to testimony on why Nixon should or should not be ousted.

Senators up for reelection will insist on long weekends away from Washington.

Majority Senate Leader Mike Mansfield estimates that the Senate trial will last at least five months. That would bring it to about next March 1.

Of course, it cannot last that long because a new Congress will come into being early next January. But the trial could last much longer than five months if Nixon's lawyers desired to employ the technique of stall and delay.

As matters stand, they will not have to do much, if any, stalling to prolong the Senate trial beyond the life of the present Senate.

So, if you are bored with Watergate and all the related mumbo-jumbo, brace yourself to hear about it for at least another year. It just won't go away.

Incidentally, one Congressman predicted privately that President Nixon will cause another uproar by firing Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski.

But there probably will be no Saturday Night Massacre this time, he added, since there is scant likelihood Attorney General Saxbe will resign in protest.

What Nixon should do, the Congressman maintained, is fire the foot-in-the-mouth Saxbe and make Jaworski Attorney General.

And here is one for our lawyer friends to ponder.

An outstanding legal expert in Washington informed us that President Nixon, in effect, is taking the Fifth Amendment in flatly refusing to provide evidence under his control by not releasing tapes which have been sought.

Nixon actually has not taken the Fifth Amendment. If he should do so in a Supreme Court showdown, the court could not order him to release tapes which would incriminate him, the experts insisted.

President Nixon is unpredictable, but personally we do not believe he would take the Fifth Amendment.

Harringtons support different candidates

State Senate President Kevin B. Harrington of Salem will continue as head of the Senate for the next four years and seek the Governorship in 1978—if Governor Francis W. Sargent is reelected next November.

Harrington probably will retire from olitics and accept appointment to a position in the field of education—if Attorney General Robert H. Quinn is elected the next Governor.

He didn't put it exactly that way, but those were the conclusions drawn by the writer from the answers made by the gentle-mannered giant, who presides over the Senate, to the questions directed at him during an interview.

Senate President Kevin Harrington and his cousin, Congressman Michael J. Harrington of Beverly, are supporting different candidates for the Democratic nomination for Governor.

Senate President Harrington is backing Attorney General Quinn. Congressman Harrington has endorsed former State Representative Michael Dukakis.

Kevin Harrington said he feels closer to the political philosophy of Quinn than that of Dukakis.

"In my judgement Mike Dukakis is a fine fellow," Kevin Harrington declared. "But Bob Quinn is tried and tested. He has steered the way both as Speaker of the House of Representatives and as Attorney General. I think he has done a great job without many headlines."

Kevin Harrington said that he doesn't always follow the judgement of his cousin Mike but that he did follow it in 1972 and supported Senator Edmund Muskie of Maine for the Democratic nomination for President.

The Senate sees no likelihood that his political ambitions might collide with those of his cousin, Congressman Harrington, if he stands for the Governorship in 1978.

"I do not believe Mike has any plan for seeking election to any State Constitutional office," he asserted. "He probably could have had the nomination for Attorney General this year if he wanted it. I think he has made it clear he wants to be U.S. Senator."

Kevin Harrington, who readily concedes that he is a professional politician and expresses the belief that politicians should always be the spokesmen for the people, is convinced that Senator Edward M. Kennedy, is running for Presidnet.

If time proves him right about Ted Kennedy's political objective in 1976, his cousin, Mike, and Boston Mayor Kevin H. White probably will fight it out for the Democratic nomination for the seat in the U.S. Senate Ted will vacate if he is elected.

John Dean now a big spender

Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski can be added to the list of people who display great ingenuity when it comes to wasting our tax dollars.

On Jaworski's orders, federal marshals have provided round-the-clock protection for John Dean since last March.

Reporters suspect that one of the things the marshals are doing is keeping them away from Dean who is under court orders not to discuss Watergate publicly.

The newsmen would like to get near enough to Dean to ask him how he can afford to live so well and where he got all the money he has been spending.

Although he has been out of for more than a year, Dean recently moved to Los Angeles and bought a $110,000 house. That seems like quite a stunt for a member of the unemployed.

Parking at North High

(Editor's note: This letter to the mayor responds to a memorandum from the Planning Department on parking at Newton North High School.)

Dear Mayor Mann:

Our first reaction is to the statement on page one under "I. BACKGROUND," which reads, "A citizen liaison committee was established, and a series of alternative parking plans evolved, were presented, and reviewed."

This statement certainly seems to suggest that an active citizen liaison committee has been involved in the review of a number of alternative plans and the development of Mr. Thomas's preliminary recommendations.

In fact, this is not so. Other than informal inquiries from individuals requesting information at your office there has been no citizen participation in the development of this plan.

If the reference is to the "Newton North Parking Subcommittee," $n offshoot from the Newton Traffic Commission, we would have to remind you that a meeting of this group has not been called since the fall of 1973, and that it has in no way served as such a liaison committee.

The Newton North High Neighborhood Association has, in fact, studied a number of alternative plans and options and has looked at the entire question from many perspectives, but to date we have had no effective opportunity to participate in the development of a Newton North High School parking and traffic plan. We formed our organization for this very reason. We have attended many city meetings, and one of our most persistent themes has been the request for a legitimate involvement in the permanent development of facilities so close to our homes and so important to our families and in our lives.

We are sure that you desire citizen involvement, and we know that nay scheme pushed through without the involvement of the residents affected will run into serious roadblocks. We therefore respectfully request that such participation be implemented now without further delay.

In a study we prepared for the Newton Traffic Commission and presented to the Commission at a meeting in July, 1973, we proposed, "that a task force be immediately put to work on a study of the parking needs of the high school with full neighborhood participation and involvement."

Although some of the elements of this study are now dated, this important recommendation is still valid. The Traffic Commission assured us that this would be done. The School Committee has made the same assurances.

Indirectly, we have been led to believe that you also realized that such involvement would be essential. Now, however, it appears to us that an attempt is being made to push through a plan without our involvement.

Our second reaction is to the content of the proposal itself.

We have studied it carefully, and although there are words in the report alleging concern for the welfare of the residential area, we do not see such concern in the actual proposal. In fact, we see some serious shortcomings and problems in it. Very briefly they include the following points:

1) The plan to locate a major segment of the parking area on Kimball Terrace still contains most of the problems which made the original Willoughby Marshall plan objectionable. They are:

a) It pushes some of the parking and much of the traffic onto the residential neighborhood instead of onto a more neutra school-oriented area of the site.

b) It locates this section of the parking far from a major "activity generator" of the school, namely the athletic facilities (track, football field, gym, swimming pool, etc.)

2) Even if the Kimball Terrace parking lot would be acceptable, we have serious misgivings about the scheme to control access to the lot by making Kimball one-way south from Otis and one-way north from Elm Road. This needs far more thought and study before being implemented into any plan.

3) Regarding the second phase of the plan, the B alternative, site expansion by the acquisition of up to four parcels on Elm Road, we have the following initial reaction: If the situation of some of members on Elm Road becomes impossible due to their very close proximity to the north entrance of the school and the many attendant problems, we might reluctantly change our original position of last summer against any further house taking and support the taking of these four parcels. However, if this would come about, we would insist that this property be very carefully designed with our full involvement and that such design include: a) an adequate buffer zone, b) a complete traffic separation from the adjacent residential area, and c) absolute guarantees of night security involving closing and locking to prevent beer parties and other such major nuisances.

In view of the above we regard the recommendation on page 5 of Mr. Thomas's proposal "that the Engineering Department develop a detailed site plan in accordance with the site concept articulated above" as entirely premature at this time.

We find some things in Mr. Thomas's study that show a clear definition of the problem and that show a concern for the welfare of the neighborhood. To that extent, it is a helpful study.

However, we know that you and your office will want to work out this Newton North site and parking problem in the best possible way and with a full consideration for the fine residential area north of the school. We therefore look forward to your positive reaction to this letter.

Harold W. Scheibert
President, Newton North High School Neighborhood Association

Oppose development

To the Editor:

I am heading a concerted neighborhood opposition to the proposal by one Edward M. Levitt of Longwood Management Corporation, to build ten townhouses on Florence Street in the Chestnut Hill Section of Newton.

He had a proposal to build 14 townhouses in March on the same site which was defeated by the Land Use Committee of the Newton Board of Aldermen. We had over 50 signatures in March opposing this venture.

Again Mr. Levitt needs permissive use from the Board of Aldermen and wee are in opposition because:

1. Florence Street alone is a very heavily congested and populated area and was not meant for the large amount of traffic that already burdens the street.
2. Florence Street is the only access out for many neighboring streets many of which are cul de sacs.
3. This area is zoned Private Residence District and we object to the proposed degree of density and feel this would not only change the character of the area but lower the value of our houses.
4. In addition we feel any more building would increase the chances of accidents (both our car and pedestrians—especially children).

These are but a few of the many reasons in opposition to the proposal.

I plan to circulate a petition too this effect to all my neighbors who are directly involved who live on Louise Road, Florence Street, Tanglewood Road, and Dudley Road. On Monday night, June 10, 1974, I plan to present to the City Clerk and the LAND Use Committee Board of Aldermen our petition in diret opposition to the proposal.

Mrs. Albert K. Ascher

Open letter on school closings

An Open Letter to The School Committee:

It is of growing concern to the Fair Housing Committee that, in the discussions occurring on Newton's declining school population, more mention has not been made of our metropolitan responsibilities.

Closing an elementary school on the south side of town has been presented as the major alternative for policy making, based upon the Eleven School Study.

We feel otheroptions should be explored, namely increasing Newton's school population by opening enrollment to operate at full capacity. We urge the Newton School Committee to make administrative and financial feasibility studies of this alternative.

We commend the School Committee for voting to expand its Metco program. Metco is a good beginning. The success of tis metropolitan program in which inner-city children have attended schools in 36 suburban towns has been demonstrated. The need is evident from the long waiting list of Boston families.

Newton parents and children, as well as Boston participants, have benefited from the educational experiences inherent in this program. As advocates of equal opportunity in housing and diversity of neighborhoods, we also believe that exposure to persons with a multiplicity of ethnic and cultural backgrounds canlead to greater awareness and understanding of the differences that exist in our pluralistic society.

And while we feel the social arguments for metropolitanization are persuasive, we also believe that this alternative makes sense economically.

Rather than spending money on redeistricting school children and converting a school facility to another use, Newton can be reimbursed for tuition by the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, keep open all its schools, and retain the present administrative and teaching staffs which have been providing our children with quality education.

We also want to express our willingness to participate as a citizens advisory group with the School Committee in further planning.

PTA Council begins work on committee

The PTA Council last week decided upon a process for selecting appointees to a citizens advisory committee established by the Newton School Committee.

The advisory committee, which is to gather additional information and offer alternatives suggested by decreased school enrollment, was established by the School Committee last week. It is to include six members of the PTA Council.

Presidents of four elementary schools volunteered last Thursday to head committees of PTA presidents which will attempt to choose representatives to the advisory committee.

The School Committee voted that two PTA representatives should come from each part of the city; north, central and south. Consequently, the PTA Council decided upon three committees, one from each area. Each committee will hopefully decide upon two delegates. New PTA Council President Robert Ricles asked that the names of the delegates be submitted to the Council board by June 10.

Ricles noted that the committees might not be able to decide on two delegates.

Heading the committee of central PTA presidents are the presidents of the Angier and Hyde School PTA's, Mr. and Mrs. Rector and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Tracy.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Shapiro, presidents of the Oak Hill PTA, were to lead the south committee, and Dr. and Mrs. Lemont Kier, presidents of the Williams PTA, were to head the north committee.

In some cases, only one president from a school may be heading a committee.

The PTA Council board will screen the names submitted by the committees. The names of the PTA Council designees should be submitted to the School Committee by June 30.

Hospital president retiring

Joseph M. Linsey, local industrialist, philanthropist, and civic leader, will be honored by Jewish Memorial Hospital at a testimonial dinner upon his retirement as president of the hospital Thursday evening, June 13, at Sidney Hill Country Club in Newton.

Featured speaker will be Dr. John R. Silber, president of Boston University.

Linsey is a past president and honorary life trustee of the Combined Jewish Philanthropies of Greater Boston, and served twice as its campaign chairman. He is a member of the board of governors of the Greater Boston Committee, State of Israel Bonds, and honorary chairman of trustees.

He is also a member of the cabinet of the National United Jewish Appeal and a national counsil member of the American Joint Distribution Committee, Inc.

Linsey is a member of the president's council of Boston College, and was a member of the campaign for the 100th anniversary development program of that school.

He has been a trustee of Brandeis University since its inception; is chairman of the board of trustees committee on university development; chairman of the advisory board for athletics.

Joseph Linsey

He is recipient of Brandeis' University Medal for Distinguished Service to Higher Education, and in 1966 the Joseph M. Linsey Sports Center was dedicated in his honor.

Linsey is a member of the executive committee of the Massachusetts Committee, Catholics, Protestants and Jews and of the National Conference of Christians and Jews.

Chairman of the xboard of the Whitehall Company, Ltd., he is a past president and treasurer of the Wine & Spirit Wholesalers of Massachusetts, and has served as chairman of the Wholesale Beverage Division of the following campaigns: Cancer Society, Jimmy Fund, Infantile Paralysis, National Mental Health Association, Red Cross, Red Feather, and Community Fund.

In 1965, Linsey was the recipient of the honorary degree of doctor of commercial science from Suffolk University.

David Stern, honorary president and treasurer of Jewish Memorial Hospital is serving as chairman of the dinner. Co-chairmen are Mrs. Leo Cole and Robert Gold. Nathan Buchman, who succeeds Linsey to the presidency of JMH, is honorary chairman.

Dr. Gordon Snider to head Thoracic Society

Dr. Gordon L. Snider, 24 Holly Road in Waban, has been elected president of the Massachusetts Thoracic Society, medical section of the American Lung Association of Massachusetts.

The society, which promotes the study of respiratory and thoracic diseases, consists of 175 members. Any Massachusetts physician, scientist, or other qualified health professional with an interest in respiratory and thoracic diseases, is eligible for Society membership. Administrative services for the society are funded largely by the annual Christmas Seal Campaign.

Snider is chief of the pulmonary disease section, department of medicine, at Boston University School of Medicine. He heads the chest services atBoston Veterans Administration Hospital and University Hospital, Boston University Medical Center.

Born in 1922 in Toronto, Canada, he received his M.D. in 1944 from the University of Toronto, faculty of medicine. Snider was certified by the American Board of Internal Medicine in 1953. Since 1958 he has been medical consultant of the Social Security Administration, Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Professor of medicine at Boston University School of Medicine, Snider is a fellow of the American College of Chest Physicians and the American College of Physicians. He is a member of the Central Society for Clinical Research, the American Federation for Clinical Research, the American Federation for Clinical Research, American MMedical Association, and the American Thoracic Society.

Snider has over 75 publications to his credit. He and his wife, Ruth, have three children.

Lead screening

facet of preventive care. "If you being to educate people about one preventive area, they become more interested in others."

There are several follow-up procedures when a child is shown to have a high lead level. If the lead is at a certain level, the test is repeated every three months. If it is higher, more tests and x-rays are taken.

Children with high lead levels are "deleaded." This involves the injection of a chemical which causes lead to be excreted. Cohen said that this process is quite effective untill the lead has caused a child to be permanently affected.

Cohen said that he was not aware of anyone in Newton has been permanently affected. The child who showed the highest level two years ago, however, has moved away from Newton.

When a child shows a high lead level, his home is investigated for lead paint. According to Paul Moan of the Newton Health Department, it is planned that inspectors will routinely check houses with children under six in the future for lead paint, and parents will be notified of potential danger.

Newton-Wellesley's comprehensive program will expire this year. Remaining screenings include one Friday at Meadowbrook Junior High School, where there is a nursery school, and screenings June 11 at Sacred Heart School, Newton Centre, and at Bowen School and Mason-Rice School.

The program will continue to test in the future in susceptible areas. Many screenings have been done individually at the hospital.

(Cohen noted that there is a certain percentage of false positives in the testing, and testing is redone at the hospital.)

The program is supervised by Cohen and pediatric practitioner Mrs. Irene Lamb. Cohen said that without the RSVP volunteers, the program could not run.

People get notices about the results of the tests.

Cohen said that the "whole affair has been a tremendously positive thing. We get a lot of feedback that people know about this.

"It has raised the awareness about lead, and what to do about it, and what we're trying to do," Cohen continued. "It's great because people say that the Health Department and Newton-Wellesley give a damn."

Recipes will be judged on originality, flavor, quality and appearance. The contest will close at noon, June 22, 1974.

Alto gains rights to Noel baking equipment

Frank M. Irving, Jr., president of Alto Corporation in York, Pa., has announced that Alto now has exclusive rights worldwide to manufacture and sell certain bakery equipment formerly made by the E. M. Noel Co., Inc., of West Newton, Mass.

This is effective immediately, as per arrangement with E. M. Noel, a resident of Newton, Mass.

Established in 1927 by Noel, the company developed an automatic process for the production of English muffins. Pioneers in equipment for English muffin bakeries, the Noel line indluces automatic, continuous muffin pre-scorers, a wide variety of automatic and manually operated muffin splitters; and semi-automatic muffin griddle loaders.

The line also includes a Unidex machine—a unique concept for automatic, continuous feeding, timing and indexing products to timed equipment for wrapping, cartoning, filling and bagging.

The Noel products will expand the line made by Alto Corporation, a major manufacturer and worldwide supplier to the baking industry. The Alto line includes bread and bun depanners, slicers, mixers, sifters, bulk bun packaging systems, ovens for baking and food industries, and equipment for complete pretzel bakeries.

THE Wendy division of Alto manufactures a wide variety of conveyor systems and belting for industrial and food plants along with complete bulk ingredient handling systems.

The design, development and manufacture of all Alto equipment is handled in company plants at Columbia and York, Pa., where Alto's muffin equipment will also be produced.

Beaconwood

Miller replied, "I do not intend to reply to what I consider an inflammatory request," but then proceeded with the answer—"I believe it did." Miller referred to street-utility installation and connection; construction of road curbs and walks; clearing right of way; and installation of fire loop and water easement.

Egelson asked whether the NHA had considered increasing the number of units to be built. The Ciccones had planned a development of 28 units on the same property.

Miller replied that the savings would not be significant, since redesign and the escalation in construction costs would eat up any potential saving per unit.

"If you instruct us to redesign, we will, but I don't feel we can go back on our word to the neighborhood. We said we would build housing that would be comaptible with existing housing."

Ald. Joseph McDonnell objected to the architects per-unit fee, $7,600, calling it "out of sight," since some of the units repeat within the 20-unit overall package.

Buying and rehabilitating existing houses was considered unfeasible at this time, since the NHA would have to relocate present tenants, if any, and would run into management difficulties with housing scattered house by house across the city.

Jackson noted that buying existing property does not add to the stock of housing in Newton.

Egelson did not agree with the concept of 20 units for low-income families only, and said there is "a stigma attached. Adults don't necessarily talk about 'low-income,' but children are cruel."

His motion to send the appropriation request back to the Finance Committee failed.

Other aldermen speaking on the matter included Michael Antonellis of Ward 5, who said, "I'd be insane not to vote for this, because something worse might come along," and Andrew Magni, who has been opposed to low-income housing on Victory Field, one of the sites tied in with Beaconwood Road. Magni said the Housing Authority had "turned a deaf ear" when offered an empty nine-family building on California Street.

The Board vote was 21 in favor and 2 opposed (Magni and Egelson).

Finance Committee Chairman Sidney Small was absent from the entire meeting.

Recreation notes

Puppet shows slated for playgrounds this summer

Puppet Shows

Mrs. Eleanor Boylan, who has been active in children's theatre for 25 years, in both Boston and New York, will be appearing at Newton playgrounds as part of the Newton Recreation Department's summer program.

She will present performances at 2 p.m. in the afternoon at the following locations: July 2, at Stearns, July 9 at the Burr School, July 30 at Emerson and August 5 at the Memorial School.

Mrs. Boylan is past president of the New England Guild of Puppetry, and her programs are designed to entertain as well as demonstrate the art of puppetry.

During her programs, Mrs. Boylan performs a number of puppet plays, interspersing them with informal talk on how puppets are made and operated. She discusses how puppets are manipulated, how to adapt a favorite story for the puppet stage, and how to make a simple puppet theatre.

National Twi League

The National Twi League sponsored by the Newton Recreation Department will begin play with six teams on Monday, June 10. This league is for high school age players.

The teams will play Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays during June and July, with playoffs scheduled for August. Games begin at 6:15 p.m. and are played at Newton Highlands Playground, Albemarle Playground, West Newton Common, Newton Centre, Upper Falls and Auburndale.

Teams and coaches in the league this year are: The Highlanders, Gary Mosca; Newton Boys' Club, Dana Foley; St. Bernard's, Tom Pugliese and Jim Blake; Auburndale, Jim Coakley; Newton Centre, Bill Gorgone and Steve Matloff; and Upper Falls, John Bibbo and Jack Daley.

Reserved Tennis

The Recreation Department's tennis program is in full swing at the three reserved court areas, Newton Centre, Burr and Newton South High School.

Special Class Day Camps

Plans are being made for the opening of the special class day camps on July 1. There will be two camps this year, one at the Mason-Rice School and the other at the Bowen School.

North High School Facilities

The Newton North High School pool will close for two weeks coinciding with the opening of the Gath Pool and Crystal Lake. The North High pool will reopen the week of June 24.

The gym facilities will be open during this period from 7 - 10 p.m., seven days a week. When the summer schedule begins, the week of June 24, the gym will be open from 7 - 10 p.m., Monday through Friday, unless closed for repair work.

During the summer, lessons will be given at the North High Pool from 2 - 8 p.m. and there will be general swimming from 8 - 10 p.m., five days a week. There are still openings in some classes and registration will be possible at the North High pool Thursday from 7 to 9 p.m.

Lassie League

The Lassie League playoffs start Thursday at the Albemarle Playground beginning at 6 p.m. The first teams in regular league play will compete. There will be two games each night. Sportsmanship Awards will be presented at the conclusion of the playoffs.

Arnold elected to trustee board

David B. Arnold, Jr., senior vice president and director, Shipley Company, Inc., was elected to the board of trustees, New England Aquarium, at its annual meeting in May.

Arnold, active in civic affairs, also serves as director of the Greater Boston Council on Alcoholism; overseer, Boy's Clubs of Boston; director, Emerson Hospital; and Chairman, Concord Comprehensive Mental Health Center Council.

A graduate of Noble and Greenough School; Harvard College, and Harvard Business College, Arnold is responsible for Shipley's international manufacturing and sales operations.

Exploration

Claudia Weiss, an ABC Nursery School pupil, gets a ride in a wheelcahir at Newton-Wellesley Hospital's "Friendly Hospital Day." Her balloon is actually a blown-up operating glove. The annual program for pre-schoolers is part of the nursing school's child growth and development program and gives young people a chance to get acquainted with aspects of medical care. Shown with Claudia is nursing student Wendy Brown.

Article on Freeport in hospital magazine

The ad read: "If your name is Joe and you're living in a field, call Freeport." What Freeport is, how it came about and why it places ads such as this one in high school newspapers are all explained in the forthcoming June issue of the "Newton-Wellesley Quarterly," the community magazine published four times a year by Newton-Wellesley Hospital.

Freeport is an alternative home in Newton for adolescents 14 to 18 years old who have more than the usual share of internal and social troubles. The outgrowth of a Newton High School psychology class project, Freeport emphasizes family-style living and objective counseling by graduate students under the supervision of the Rev. Bill Deane, resident director.

How young people come to live at Freeport, how it is financed, what the house rules are, and three representations of real situations are discussed in the article.

Also in this month's issue of the Quarterly is a two-part series on the care of children's teeth. One section deals with teaching a child to care for his teeth, while the other part is devoted to treating the dental care problems of exceptional children.

The article emphasizes that good oral hygiene habits should be established as early as possible in order to prevent dental problems later in life. The care of primary teeth is important, it says, because with proper care they can remain in a child's mouth until they fall out naturally, the last at nearly age 13 years. Primary teeth hold the space for permanent teeth and are also important, the Quarterly says, for chewing, proper development and appearance.

Two of the special problems in caring for the teeth of exceptional children as outlined by Dr. Mark M. Roseman, assistant professor of pedontics at Boston University's School of Graduate Dentistry and director of Newton-Wellesley Hospital's Pediatric Dental Service are: one, that many exceptional children react strongly when someone attempts to clean their teeth, and many parents give up trying. And two, that many of these children either cannot chew their food or are given more sweets than they should have.

The "Quarterly" article is accompanied by pictures illustrating how a parent should brush the teeth of a young child and how a youngster should brush his own teeth when he or she is old enough.

Lead screening tests slated for June 11

Lead screening tests for children ages one to six years will be conducted Tuesday, June 11, at the Sacred Heart School, 80 Crescent Avenue, Newton Centre, from 9 to 11:30 a.m. Parents are urged to bring all pre-school children to Sacred Heart School for the simple finger prick test.

In addition to the testing being conducted at Sacred Heart School, children under six attending the Bowen School, 280 Cypress Street, Newton Centre, and the Mason-Rice School, 149 Pleasant Street, Newton Centre, also will be screened in their respective schools on June 11.

The tests are conducted by Newton-Wellesley Hospital laboratory staff under the supervision of ohn M. Cohen, M.D., chief of pediatrics, and Mrs. Irene Lamb, R.N., pediatric practitioner.

Aimed at determining if a youngster has an elevated blood lead level, the screenings have tested more than 2,000 children since the program began last fall. For further information, people may contact Mrs. Lamb in the Pediatric Outpatient Department at 244-2800, Ext. 380.

GOP reelects John DiSabato

John L. DiSabato of Waban was reelected president of the Newton Republican Club at its annual meeting.

Other officers elected to serve with him are Melvin Norris, first vice president; Mrs. Margaret Tennant, second vice president; Miss Charlotte R. Thornbury, administrative vice-president; Mrs. Virginia S. Griggs, corresponding secretary; Mrs. G. M. Swift, recording secretary.

Wendell Wilson was elected treasurer to succeed Norman Buchbinder who retired after serving several terms. Buchbinder received a vote of thanks for what was termed "outstanding performance of the functions of his office."

The Newton Republican Club, one of the major GOP clubs in New England, is a principal sponsor of Newton's annual Lincoln Day dinner.

Mrs. Charren awarded medal of achievement

At its fifty-sixth Commencement recently, Connecticut College awarded a medal of achievement to Peggy Walzer Charren of Newton Center.

The Connecticut College Medal was presented to Mrs. Charren in recognition of her efforts on a national scale to elevate the educational and cultural quality of television programming for children.

She is a founder and president of Action for Children's Television and in March directed a three-day international festival of children's TV, sponsored by the consumer-action group at the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts in Washington.

Mrs. Charren also is chairman of the Newton (Mass.) Creative Arts Council and has organized a series of children's book fairs throughout the Greater Boston area.

John Ross reappointed

John W. Ross, 25 Rose drive, West Newton has been reappointed as a notary public, Secretary of State John F.X. Davoren has announced.

Confirmation of the reappointment was made at a meeting of the Executive Council, following submission of the name by acting governor.

The term of the West Newton notary public will expire in 1977.

Officers elected

Officers for the 1974-75 term were elected by the Newton-Weston-Wellesley Committee to Establish Community Residences for the Retarded at the annual meeting held on May 15.

Serving as president for the coming year will be Lucille Chansky; vice president, Miriam Schwartz; recording secretary, Karen Slater; clerk, David Sullivan; corresponding secretary, Edna Tarutz and treasurer, Charles Hunt.

At the conclusion of the business meeting, the resients of Juniper House — The Committee's first community home — presented a musical entertainment under the direction of Miss Shawn McGivern.

Dr. Ronald Ebert, director of community services for mental retardation in Massachusetts discussed some of the exciting new programs throughout the Country that are enabling our retarded citizens to lead happier and more productive lives.

Mrs. Skopp appointed

Temple Shalom of Newton Nursery School has announced the appointment of Mrs. Marcia Skopp of Lexington as its senior teacher.

A founder, teacher and director of Temple Sinai Nursery School in Rhode Island, Mrs. Skopp comes with many years of experience in early childhood education.

She will be offering unique programs during the year. Among these will be a first for Massachusetts; her own adaptation of Project First Step for implementation at the nursery school level.

Temple Shalom Nursery School is a five-morning program for three and four year olds. Although enrollment is complete, names may be submitted for the waiting list.

All inquiries should be made to chairman of the nursery school committee, care of Temple Shalom of Newton, 175 Temple Street, West Newton, Mass. 02165.

North students score well in French contest

French students at Newton North High School were local and regional winners in the National French Contest held recently at Belmont High School.

Prizes were received by Claudia Castaneda and Heidi Baron for placing first in their respective categories, and by Linda Tofopolsky for placing third. Eric Albert, Jennifer Barber, Wayne Fong, Susan Green, David Hastings, Laura Hastings, Laura Johnson, Cecile Korngold and Theresa Martin received certificates of honor.

John D'Agnese, Mrs. Miriam Meyer, Mrs. Rose Neufeld, David Phelan and Russell Stein, teachers of these pupils, also received certificates.

Road work

The Metropolitan District Commission announced recently that the outbound lanes of Storrow Drive and Soldiers Field Road between Charlesgate Interchange and Cambridge Street, Allston, will be closed to traffic between the hours of 7 p.m. and 5 a.m. for at least three weeks beginning Monday, June 3, due to a roadway reconstruction and resurfacing project.

Motorists using the outbound lanes will be able to detour at the Massachusetts Avenue Bridge or at the Charlesgate Interchange.

MDC Commissioner John W. Sears said that when the two-mile long project is completed in the outbound lanes a similar project will get underway on the inbound lanes.

Extra MDC police will be assigned to keep vehicular traffic moving at a maximum flow.

Reunion

Twelve members of Battery B 101'st Field Artillery of the 26th Division in World War I were presented at their fifty-seventh reunion recently at Valle's Steak House, Newton Centre.

Commanded by the late Senator Sinclair Weeks, this unit served on all fronts with the 26th Division. Of its original roster of 263 members, 49 are living.

On Oct. 10, 1972, members of B Battery installed a memorial plaque in the Beatrice D. Weeks Memorial Hospital in Lancaster, New Hampshire as a tribute to their late commander.

Historic district in Upper Falls tentatively selected by committee

By ELIZABETH McKINNON
Of the Graphic Staff

The effect on property values and real estate taxes may turn out to be the principal concern of residents of Upper Falls, where the Newton Historic District Study Committee has proposed a historic district.

The committee has tentatively selected an area consisting of the greater part of the village as a historic district. The boundaries roughly include both sides of Boylston Street from the river to Cragmore Road and High Street, most of the area between Boylston, Elliot, and High Streets and the river, with a strip extending down Elliot Street to Mechanic Street.

Most of the 100 houses in the proposed historic district date from the first half of the eighteenth century.

If approved, the Upper Falls historic district will be the first in the city.

Sheldon Drucker, chairman of the Historic District Committee, at a meeting with Upper Falls residents Tuesday, explained to somewhat apprehensive residents the implications of historic-district designation to a homeowner. Mainly, Drucker said, living in a historic district would mean that a homeowner must apply for permission to alter the exterior of a house to the Historic District Commission appointed to oversee the district.

Alteration of such features as color, material, and texture of the outside of a building, style of windows, doors, lights, and so on, would be subject to three categories of certification by the commission before a building permit could be issued by the city.

The issuance of a certificate of appropriateness would mean the owner had selected acceptable materials and style. A certificate of nonapplicability would indicate that the changes desired were not within control of the commission. A certificate of hardship could be given in cases of provable economic or structural hardship to the building.

In no event would the interior of a building come under the provisions of the law, and the parts of a building that cannot be seen from a public way are also excluded.

In answer to questions from the audience of about 50 people, Drucker said that real estate assessments cannot increase solely because a building is in a historic district, since valuation is based in part on the market value, which is unknown for houses that have not been sold recently.

The resale value of a house would be increased, Drucker said, because many prospective homeowners are looking for houses in stable neighborhoods.

But Joseph Cosgrove of the city's Assessing Department, contacted Tuesday at City Hall, would not say that assessments would not increase as a result of the historic district.

"If, because of the historic district, the area became fashionable to live in, or the houses were considered more desirable than they are now, then the market value of the house would increase and assessments would go up," Cosgrove said.

He added that any increase in market value related to the historic district would not be reflected for a few years, since the city's real estate current revaluation process will be completed by next summer.

After that, Cosgrove said, the Assessing Department will maintain an ongoing process of assessment, covering the whole city every three years.

Business property would be unaffected except when alterations were planned on the structure, according to Drucker. The Historic District Commission would have nothing to say on the use of a piece of commercial property.

The protective aspects of the law seemed to be of particular interest to the audience.

One woman asked, "Does a historic district mean that the city can't put in low-income housing where we don't want it?"

Another asked, "What if you take care of your house? You can't do anything about the people across the street who don't."

Drucker's answers were, to the first question, that no structures may be demolished unless there is provable hardship or the structure is beyond repair, and to the second that existing zoning and health regulations are the only way to force maintenance of property.

Another protection is the requirement that no additions to existing houses may be made without the neighborhood's being made aware of the plan and given the opportunity to speak on it at a public hearing.

Residents were of two minds on the chance that Upper Falls might become something of a tourist attraction. One asked, "Will this bring a lot of outsiders in to stare at us?," while another suggested that road signs be put up directing Bicentennial tourists to the community.

Of the approximately 50 people present at the meeting, about 20 were residents of the area proposed for the district. When a show of hands was asked for to indicate first impressions on the creation of the district, 15 of the 20 indicated approval.

Before the Upper Falls Historic District can become reality there must be a formal public hearing, approval by the Board of Aldermen and the mayor.

The residents and the committee may meet again informally before the full-scale public meeting.

The committee meets regularly the first and third Tuesdays at City Hall.

Snappy! Gary Rayberg of the Newton Pisceans (formerly the Newton Divers) displays a snapping turtle found during the annual volunteer cleanup of the bottom of Crystal Lake, against the background of junk retrieved. Pisceans president Richard Belliveau looks on. The 15 members of the club also set the float and docks and attached their anchors at no charge to the Recreation Department. The lake opens for swimming June 8.

Scholarship for Ms. Murrell

Charlayne E. Murrell was recently named a recipient of the Massachusetts Personnel and Guidance Association, Massachusetts School Counselors Association, and American Personnel and Guidance Association $1000 scholarship.

The award is presented to a worthy minority student in a graduate school counselor education program.

Ms. Murrell, who is planning to complete a master's degree program at Northeastern University, was formerly a METCO counselor for the Newton Public Schools.

Across the Kitchen Counter

Long ago, in the Victorian era, a strawberry festival was the happy social event that launched the summer entertaining season. It was usually a garden party that featured strawberries that were freshly picked and served in all sorts of delectible ways. Today's hostess would be wise to revive this custom to the delight of her family and friends.

This all-American berry is hard to pass up when it is at its best quality, with a fresh, clean, glossy appearance. Strawberries should be a full solid red color with bright green caps attached. They should be free from moisture, dirt or decayed spots. It's important to make strawberries the last purchase so they will not be mashed in your shopping cart. Sort them before storing.

Did you know that strawberries, like citrus fruit, are an excellent source of Vitamin C? One cup of fresh strawberries will give about the same amount of Vitamin C as a 6-ounce glass of orange juice! Dieters can also enjoy this ruby berry, for one cup of fresh whole strawberries contains only 55 calories.

HOW TO FREEZE STRAWBERRIES: Wash, cap and drain strawberries. Place drained berries in bowl and cover with 1 cup sugar for each cup of berries. Let stand until the sugar melts, stirring gently once or twice, being careful not to crush the fruit. When the sugar has melted, spoon the berries carefully into freezer containers. Do not pack down as this crushes the berries. The best containers are plain canning jars or any freezer carton. Let berries thaw in the container in which they were frozen.

Want to make it a memorable breakfast? Instead of cereal or eggs, serve a bowl of luscious fresh strawberries drenched in cream. One of the secrets of developing the deepest strawberry flavor is to let the berries, sliced and sprinkled with just a little sugar, stand at room temperature for awhile.

Bound to melt every heart within eating distance, strawberries "take the cake" at this time of the year!

DOUBLE STRAWBERRY ICE CREAM ROLL

¾ teaspoon baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
4 eggs, separated
¾ cup sugar, divided
½ teaspoon fresh lemon juice
Powdered sugar
1 quart strawberry ice cream, softened
1 cup sliced fresh strawberries

Stir together flour, baking powder and salt. Beat egg yolks until thick and lemon colored; gradually beat in ¼ cup sugar until very thick and creamy. Stir in lemon juice. Beat egg whites until foamy; add ½ cup sugar slowly and beat until stiff peaks form. Fold egg yolks into egg white mixture. Sprinkle flour mixture over eggs and gently fold in until well blended. Pour into 15½x10½ inch jelly roll pan lined with greased wax paper. Bake in preheated 350 degree oven 15 minutes or until lightly browned. Turn immediately onto clean towel that has been dusted heavily with powdered sugar. Remove waxed paper. Beginning at narrow end, roll up cake and towel, jelly roll fashion, and cool cake completely. Unroll cake, remove towel; spread with slightly softened ice cream, then top with strawberries and reroll jelly roll. Place in freezer about 2 hours until firm. Slice and serve with either whipped cream or peppermint flavored hot fudge sauce.

FRENCH STRAWBERRY CUSTARD TART

Rich pastry for 1 crust pie
One-third cup sugar
¼ cup cornstarch
¼ teaspoon salt
1¾ cups milk
2 eggs beaten
¼ teaspoon grated lemon peel
¼ teaspoon vanilla
2 pints fresh strawberries
¼ cup melted currant jelly

Fit pastry into an 8½-inch tart shell pan or a 9-inch pie pan. Trim pastry even with edge of tart pan or ½ inch larger than pie pan and fold under pastry to make an edge. Prick bottom and sides with a fork. Bake in preheated 400 degree oven 10-15 minutes or until browned. Cool. Mix together one-third cup sugar, cornstarch and salt in a saucepan. Blend in milk. Cook and stir until mixture thickens and boil ½ minute. Stir some of hot mixture into eggs; return to saucepan. Cook and stir over low heat about 3 minutes, until very thick. Add lemon peel and vanilla. Cool then chill. Spread custard filling in tart shell or pie shell; top with whole berries. Brush berries with melted jelly. Sprinkle with 1 tablespoon granulated sugar. Serve plain or with whipped cream.

UNCOOKED STRAWBERRY JAM

3 cups crushed berries (about 1½ quarts)
5 cups sugar
1 pkg. powdered pectin
1 cup water

Sort and wash ripe berries; drain. Remove caps and stems and crush. Measure 3 cups of prepared berries into a large mixing bowl. Add sugar, mixing well, and let stand for 20 minutes, stirring occasionally. Dissolve pectin in water; bring to a boil and boil 1 minute. Add pectin solution to berries and stir for 2 minutes. Pour into freezer containers or canning jars, leaving ½-inch head space. Cover containers and let stand for 24 hours or until jam has set; then refrigerate or freeze. Makes 7 half-pint jars. Store jam in refrigerator up to 3 weeks or up to a year in a freezer. Do not store at room temperature. Once a container is opened, the jam should be used within a few days.

DIET STRAWBERRY MILK SHAKE

½ cup evaporated skim milk
½ cup cold water
2 tablespoons frozen whipped dessert topping
1 teaspoon vanilla
6 ice cubes
½ cup whole strawberries
Noncaloric sweetener to equal 4 teaspoons sugar

In blender container combine evaporated skim milk, water, dessert topping, and vanilla. Add ice cubes, one at a time, blending at lowest speed till slushy. Add sweetener and strawberries. Blend. Serves 2; 73 calories each.

OLD FASHIONED STRAWBERRY SHORTCAKE

2 cups biscuit mix
2 tablespoons sugar
¼ cup shortening
1 egg, slightly beaten
One-third cup heavy cream
2 tablespoons margarine
Strawberries — whipped cream

Combine biscuit mix and sugar; cut in shortening. Combine egg and cream; add. Stir with fork until dough gathers in a soft ball. Roll out about ½-inch thick on floured board. Cut with 3-inch cutter; place on greased baking sheet. Dot with butter and bake at 450 degrees for 12-15 minutes. Split and butter while hot. Fill with sugared ripe strawberries and top with a mound of lightly sweetened whipped cream. Serves 6.

U shaped halter neckline

Summer splash

The shape of swim wear this summer depends on the shape you're in.

Though top designers are aware that most women possess less than ideal figures, they've done away with the hard-shaped bras and boning of past seasons. This year most latex fabrics have been replaced with soft, drapable nylon Lycra. Even softer are the colorful matte jerseys and knits.

Tom Brigance of Brigance Waterclothes tunes in to his clients' needs. "Being a male designer," he said, "I am most objective and always super-sensitive to women's femininity and practicality. I designed the collection not singling out any age group or type. I created suits and covers for multiple uses and environments, either seaside, deckside or sun-lit or moon-lit parties."

THE LOOK — Natural and sometimes witty, soft and linear, always to flatter and definitely for action, never constricting or over constructed. Some one-piece maillots have softened torsos with strategic shirring and draping on bustline or mid-riff, some tunics have elongated torsos by dropping the waistline with a gently flared skirt.

This designer says that he daringly bares and sparingly covers. He has revived the one-shoulder suit and has done swim suits that double as tennis outfits.

Colors are zingy and fresh—strong, clean corals and tangerine . . . fresh greens and sunny yellows . . . lots of blues, mauve and hyacinth and the 1974 color favorite, American Beauty Red.

Dramatic jet black will still pretend to be ladylike in halter swimdresses with necklines that end at the waist. Always a figure-flattering color, this season's suits will be found in one-piece maillots and draped sheaths, as well as boy-leg two piecers and wispy bikinis.

Still a best seller is the bikini with soft, unconstructed bra and some of the newest are the machine-crocheted styles. Mixing and matching has proven quite workable when it comes to the two-piece bathing suit.

So often women who are not perfectly proportioned have longed to buy a size 12 top and a size 14 or 16 bottom (or vice versa). Today it is possible to mix sizes—no longer the misery of suffering with a too skimpy or "Droopy" top or bottom. The added bonus is you can buy an extra top or bottom or wisely choose two complete suits and have four different combinations . . . especially on your summer holiday.

Heavier women who want a graceful look at the seashore or pool can cover up with a one-piece bathing suit that features a wide side-slit skirt and wiring in the bra.

The skirted swimdress is making a good comeback with a fresh new look. Swimdresses have always been the fashion favorites of the more conservative or figure-conscious sun-follower. This year, this style looks younger, more feminine and can be found in styles that shape the figure in a flattering way because of the new Lycra spandex.

Long available in lightweight stretch fabrics of nylon with Lycra, this fabric is now offered as an added dimension of fit and figure flattery to the dressmaker type suits as well.

Shopping for a swimsuit, unless you are reed slim, can be a most painful experience.

First of all, the lights in swimsuit fitting rooms seem to suddenly become as glaring as floodlights—highlighting every sag, roll and droop unmercifully. However, this is a necessary experience because swimsuits are generally not returnable because of state ordinances. What you buy, you're stuck with.

Don't surrender to impulse buying just because the suit looks great on display—the mannequin is most likely wearing a size 8 to 10. And be wary of mark-down tables . . if you can't try on the suit, you may be very sorry when you get it home.

Select three or four suits. Always remove your shoes (you've naturally stripped down to your underpants) and if it's a one-piece suit, step into it and pull it properly in place; when the leg portion is properly adjusted, bend forward to position the bra correctly. If you pretend, by holding in your tummy, that the suit is perfect, remember that you'll be miserable trying to remember the "Tummy-tuck-in" at the pool.

Though the bra-less look is popular among the young, in most cases the mature woman will not find the style flattering or comfortable. Women who are inclined to be a bit top-heavy will find the overblouse styles much to their liking.

No longer new, but oh so classic now, is the long caftan for the sun-fun coverup. Also popular are halter dresses, shirts and long pullon skirts are available in fabrics that match swimsuits.

Never before have there been as many opportunities to find that perfect suit just for you. The range of prints is most imaginative, and the big advantage is that they help camouflage less than perfect bodies far better than solids do.

Information Please

This is the reader's column. If you have a question or a recipe to share with other readers, please write to: Information, Please, Transcript Newspapers, 420 Washington Street, Dedham, Mass. 02026.

S.O.S. Can a reader supply us with a good Greek-style tomato sauce? Our files fail to show one, so come on everybody, let's help a reader's request!

Question: Do you have a simple recipe for Teriyaki — one that does not call for the most expensive cut of meat, please? — Mrs. J. M., Dedham

Answer: Marinate your slim strips of flank steak for 24 hours and then broil them to perfection.

FLANK STEAK TERIYAKI

1½ pounds flank steak
2 cubes beef bouillon
1 cup hot water
One-third cup finely chopped onion
⅛ teaspoon garlic powder
1 teaspoon seasoned salt
½ cup soy sauce
2 tablespoons lemon juice
2 tablespoons honey

Cut steak in 1-inch strips diagonally across grain of meat. In medium saucepan dissolve bouillon cubes in hot water; add onion, garlic powder, salt, soy sauce, lemon juice and honey. Pour over beef and marinate for 24 hours. Broil or grill over low coals 10 to 15 minutes to desired degree of doneness. Serve with rice pilaf. Makes 4-5 servings.

Question: I have found that when I make cupcakes they are less messy for my children to have with cold milk at snack time. Since I've made white cupcakes and chocolate, I was wondering if you had a cupcake that would be a bit more nutritious. Thank you very much. — Mrs. D. D., Walpole

Answer: Chuck full of nutritional applesauce, walnuts and raisins, here is a cupcake recipe you'll all enjoy:

CINNAMON APPLESAUCE CUPCAKES

2 cups all purpose flour
1 tablespoon baking powder
1 tablespoon ground cinnamon
1 teaspoon salt
1¼ cups sugar
¾ cup butter or margarine
2 eggs
1½ cups applesauce
1 cup chopped walnuts
1 cup raisins
Caramel frosting

Combine flour, baking powder, cinnamon and salt; set aside. In the large bowl of an electric mixer beat butter (or margarine) and sugar until light and fluffy. Add eggs, one at a time, beating well after each addition. At low speed, stir in alternately just until blended, half of the reserved flour mixture, half of the applesauce, remaining flour mixture and remaining applesauce (do not overbeat). Mix in nuts and raisins. Fill paper-lined cupcake pans two-thirds full with batter. Bake in preheated 350 degree oven 20-25 minutes or until a cake tester inserted in center comes out clean. Remove from pans immediately and cool on wire racks. Yield: about 2 dozen cupcakes.

CARAMEL FROSTING

¼ cup butter or margarine
½ cup firmly packed brown sugar
2 tablespoons milk
1 cup confectioners' sugar

In a small saucepan melt butter (or margarine); mix in brown sugar. Bring to boiling point; boil for 2 minutes, stirring occasionally. Add milk and return to boiling point. Remove from heat; gradually beat in confectioners' sugar; beat until smooth. Spread over cupcakes while frosting is still warm. If desired, decorate with walnut halves or candies.

A very faithful reader has sent the following recipe all the way from Hawaii. Our thanks to Mr. W. B., for thinking of us as she vacations in the sun.

SWEET AND SOUR SHRIMP

1 can (13 oz.) pineapple chunks
1 jar (9 oz.) chutney
¼ cup cider vinegar
½ cup firmly packed brown sugar
1 green pepper, thinly sliced
1 pound cooked and cleaned shrimp
1 tablespoon cornstarch
¼ cup water
1 medium tomato, cut in thin wedges

Drain pineapple chunks and reserve 2 tablespoons syrup; set aside. In large skillet, combine the chutney, cider vinegar, brown sugar and reserved pineapple syrup; mix well and simmer for 5 minutes. Add pineapple chunks and green pepper; cook until heated. Add shrimp. In small cup, mix cornstarch and water, add to chutney sauce and cook until clear and thickened. Add tomato and cook until hot. Serve over rice. Makes 4 servings.

Question: I always find Saturday or Sunday night suppers very difficult to plan for. Do you have any ideas so that my children and husband don't complain about "the same old thing" again. Mrs. M.A., W. Roxbury Answer: How about a sandwich-soup combination, nutrition packed and flavorful!

CHEESY-EGG SANDWICH LOAF

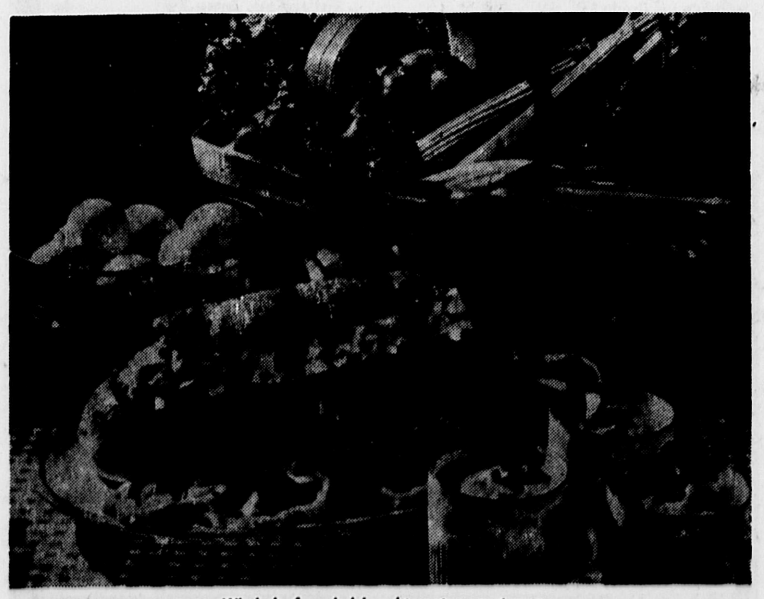
1 pound loaf oblong Italian bread
1 egg
1 cup dairy sour cream
2 cups soft bread crumbs
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
½ teaspoon ground coriander seed
1 clove garlic, crushed
1½ cups diced celery
1 cup (4 oz.) Swiss cheese, cut in cubes
One-third cup chopped pimiento-stuffed olives
2 hard cooked eggs, chopped
8 slices summer sausage OR 1 pkg. (3 oz.) sliced, cooked ham
2 tablespoons melted butter

Cut a slice from top of bread; reserve for cover. With fingers, scoop bread from inside of loaf, leaving about 1-inch on sides and bottom. Slice loaf crosswise, almost to bottom crust, into 6 to 8 servings. In large bowl beat egg, mix in sour cream; add crumbs. Mix salt, pepper and coriander seed; stir in crushed garlic. Add to crumb mixture. Add celery, cheese, and olives; stir in eggs. Fill loaf with two-thirds of egg mixture; overlap sausage or ham slices. Top with remaining egg mixture. Add top piece, marking loaf slices. Brush with butter, wrap in foil and bake in preheated 425 degree oven for 30 minutes. Serve hot; eat with knife and fork. Serves 6.

CHILLED TOMATO YOGURT SOUP

1 can (24 oz.) cocktail vegetable juice
2 cartons (8 oz. ea.) plain yogurt
½ teaspoon salt
Red food color
Lemon curls

In blender combine juice, yogurt, salt and food color. Chill. Pour into mugs. Garnish each serving with lemon curl. Yield: Approximately 4½ cups.



Whole loaf sandwich and tomato yogurt soup

Stewart to speak June 11

The Newton Ward 5 Republican Committee has announced that Robert Stewart, a national vice president of the Ripon Society, will speak at an open meeting about "Rebuilding the Mass Republican Party: The Politics of Principles vs the Politics of Labels."

The Ripon Society was founded in Cambridge, Mass. in 1962, and is a progressive Republican research and policy organization.

Stewart is a graduate of Notre Dame and Harvard Law School, and is now a management consultant with the Boston Consulting Group.

The meeting will be held at the Church of the Good Shepard at 1671 Beacon Street, Waban at 8 p.m. on Tuesday, June 11.

The Auburndale Community Nursery School, 230 Central St., Auburndale, is changing directorship June 15.

Elizabeth Brown, the present owner-director now working for the Office of Children as an early childhood education consultant to the delegated communities is relinquishing her directorship to Lucile Tufts. Mrs. Tufts has been with the school since its beginning in 1966.

The projected plans for the 1974-1975 school year include a five-day morning program and a three-day afternoon program for 4-year-olds; a three-day program for children who are 3 between Jan. 1, and Sept. 1, and a two-day program for children who are 2 years and nine months to 3 years old in September. There are also plans for a modified Day Car program to include the lunch hour and the school plans to be open from 9 a.m. until 4 p.m. except Tuesdays until 1 p.m. School days will follow the Newton Public School's calendar.

The pre-school curriculum provides for flexibility and vareity. It combines group activities with means for individual creative expression. Field trips and excursions provide additional learning experiences. Parents are encouraged to participate in all of the school's activities.

There will be a summer camp program from July 1, through Aug. 2. The hours will be from 9 a.m. to noon and will include children from 2 years and nine months through 5 years old. This will be a creative outdoor experence and will include trips to nearby places of interest.

For further information either visit the school or call Lucile Tufts at 527-0723 or 244-8849.

Spaulding School into musicals, gymnastics

"The Sound of Music" was presented by the Spaulding School chorus at a recent PTA meeting. Over 80 fifth and sixth graders took part in the production which was directed by music teacher, Christine Nikitas.

Mrs. Harriet McGillvray prepared the costumes, third graders designed the program and Jeanne Swetlik, art teacher, worked with students on the scenery.

In addition to preparing the musical production, students are working on a physical education program to be held June 10. The program, under the direction of Lee Carmichael, physical education teacher, will provide an opportunity for students to demonstrate skills learned during the year.

According to Carmichael, the attitude that he tried to get across to the children is one expressed in an anonymous poem, ". . . play to win. Sure. But lose like a CHAMPION, Because IT IS NOT WINNING THAT COUNTS. WHAT COUNTS IS TRYING."

Students to conduct temple service June 7

On Friday, June 7 at 8:15 p.m., students of the fifth year Hebrew class will be graduated from the religious school of Temple Beth Avodah.

A unique service is planned, as the students will simulate a Reform service in the State of Israel. The entire service, conducted by the students, will be in Hebrew, including the instructions.

The Torah service will be read by Jack Springer and Ruth Hoberman. Interpretations of various verses of the Bible, studied in a seminar class with Rabbi Robert Miller, will be delivered by some of the youngsters.

Those to be graduated are: Michael Cooper, Steven Fox, Ruth Hoberman, Linda Kaplan, Vicki Kingsbury, Debbie Lipkind, Linda Maltz, Jeffrey Menzer, Marjorie Schwalb, Jack Springer, Maxwell Stearns, Shoshanna Wasserman.

Rabbi Miller will address the congregation and graduates on "The Joys of Hebrew," and an Oneg Shabbat will follow in the Social Hall. The school building will be an "open house," so that parents and congregation may view the original murals painted on walls by the students. Collages and creative works with Hebrew life and history as their basis, will be on display.

Temple Israel to honor Nemzoff

On Sunday, June 9, from 2 to 5 p.m., Temple Israel, Boston, will honor Samuel (Si) A. Nemzoff of 7 Holland Street, Newton, on the occasion of his retirement as principal of its religious school.

All present and former students and faculty, all members of the congregation, and all of his friends are invited to attend the special program and reception being held at the Temple on the Riverway, Boston.

This event, Si Nemzoff Day, will bring to a conclusion 32 years of service as principal of the religious school and will climax a lifetime dedicated to ideals of Judaism and to religious and secular education. Nemzoff established the Temple Israel Hebrew School, post-confirmation and youth programs, the student council, the integrated art program, and the audio-visual department.

His numerous contributions to the field of Jewish education were recognized by the Central Conference of American Rabbis, the Union of American Hebrew Congregations and the National Association of Temple Educators when he was awarded the title of Fellow in Religious Education.

Nemzoff has been a lecturer in history and pedagogy in the adult extension classes of Hebrew Colleges; has lectured at Brandeis, Tufts, and Harvard Divinity School, and has been director of Camps Chebacco and Tel Noar summer camps. 'he has been president of Camp Yavneh and chairman of the camp education committee of the New England Zionist Youth Commission.

Nemzoff has served as president of the National Association of Temple Educators, has been a member of the Commission on Jewish Education of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations, and a member of the board of trustees of Hebrew College.

He has written many articles, publishedd "Guide to Personal Practices for Temple Educators," "Confirmation Sampler," and "Teacher's Syllabus for Grade 8."

A graduate of Harvard College and the Harvard Graduate School of Education, Nemzoff taught history for many years at the Boston Latin School until his retirement as master in 1964.

Is your 15-21 year old unwilling or unable to cope with school?
Every person who goes to school is different. But conventional schools aren't equipped to deal with all these differences successfully. As a result, it isn't surprising that many either leave school, bewildered and angry, or continue but never realize their potential.
When a bright young person finds that learning does not come easily, or that the process is intolerable, it may be because of the school environment. Or the student himself may be troubled. But in either case, there should be an alternative.
There is. The Center for Alternative Education is a private accredited, therapeutic, co-educational day school staffed by professionals. It is an environment where caring for the individual's needs, and his need for an education go hand in hand. It helps break down barriers to learning by getting the student in touch with himself and reality. And the Center provides careful guidance to help him realize his goals. CAE is a non-threatening way back for high school dropouts and graduates, and college dropouts; potentially good students without direction. Enrollment is limited to 100 students and the student to staff ratio is less than 4 to 1. Make this fall different. Act now. We have a rolling admissions policy.

Mrs. Grossman recently installed

More than 100 members of Noemi No. 11, United Order True Sisters, attended a luncheon at Sidney Hill Country Club, for the installation of a new president and her officers.

Installed as president for 1974-75 was Mrs. Robert Grossman, 130 Walnut Hill Rd.

Established in 1878, Noemi is a philanthropic organization dedicated to providing funds and volunteer services to aid orthopedically crippled children up to age 16.

Last year, the group presented a check to Dr. Melvin J. Glimcher, orthopedic surgeon-in-chief at the Childrens Hospital Medical Center, to cover the cost of equipping the Pediatric Rehabilitation Unit at the hospital.

In addition, Noemi has equipped a dental unit at the Industiral School for Crippled Children.

Parents express enthusiasm for family-centered childbirth plan

Midway between Mother's Day and Father's Day, a person's thoughts are apt to turn to childbirth.

For this reason the Newton-Wellesley Hospital recently questioned various personnel and patients familiar with its obstetrical, nursery and labor and delivery room units to find out what is involved in becoming a parent.

Respondents were enthusiastic about the Hospital's family-centered childbirth plan, which allows a father-to-be to help his wife through the difficulties of labor and then witness the actual birth.

"Something we had started, what seemed so long ago, out of our love for each other, we were uble to witness together with a lot of love in our hearts for each other and our new offspring" was the way one recent mother put it.

"Right away we felt like a family," she continued. "We weren't just three people who would be sharing our lives together but rather a unit with a lot of love and sharing to be given by all. My husband felt more like 'we' had a baby and not just I."

That's part of the experience that is commemorated twice a year, on Mother's Day, and again on Father's Day.

Mrs. Michael Weiseman of Dover, whose daughter Laura was born May 2, said that "although labor pain was brutal, I loved every minute." She also had high praise for the nurses on the Nursery Floor who "always come asking you if you need anything and always come smiling when you ring the buzzer."

The new mothers interviewed at Newton-Wellesley also had kind words to say about the nurses in the labor room. As Mrs. Weiseman put it, "I felt they really cared and gave me lots of attention."

Not all birth experiences are necessarily that positive, some mothers concede. Mrs. Sean McGlame of Waban, who gave birth to a son at N-W-H April 30, said "I'd definitely have more here." She has had disappointing experiences in the births of her two older children, 7-year-old Kristen and 8-year-old Jimmy, so this time the McGlames shopped around for a hospital "and all the mothers I spoke to raved about Newton-Wellesley," she said.

"Now I see why," she enthused. She said she was heavily sedated and medicated for the births of her other two children, but when she was admitted to the labor room at Newton-Wellesley she told the nurses she "wanted to go natural."

"The nurses gave my husband and me a crash course and my husband was there throughout the entire six hours. He was positively delighted with the whole thing. We could hardly believe it."

For those fathers wishing to enjoy participating with their wives in childbirth, Newton-Wellesley Hospital recommends a preparatory course given by the Hospital. This includes a review of the anatomy and physiology of pregnancy, fetal development and birth, and infant care in the first year. The Hospital also provides facilities for Lamaze childbirth education courses and a Boston Association for Childbirth Education (BACE) course.

The Hospital-sponsored course also reviews basic facts such as where to check in (at the Main Entrance between 7 a.m. and 5 p.m., thereafter at the Emergency Entrance); special garb for the father (blue gown during labor, blue scrub suit plus cap, mask and shoe covers during birth); what to expect of fetal monitoring (belts will be placed around the mother's abdomen during labor to determine how the baby's heart is reacting to labor contractions).

Dr. Ronald E. Parker, associate of Dr. John Yeransian, chief of N-W-H's Obstetrical Service, estimates that he and Dr. Yeransian together deliver a high percentage of the newborns each year at Newton-Wellesley.

"During my experience there has been no maternal complication that the Staff at Newton-Wellesley cannot handle," Parker said, "and in all the years I've practiced here we've had to refer only one patient, with a rare blood disorder, into a Boston hospital for special treatment connected with the infant in utero."

The so-called neo-natal infant mortality rate at Newton-Wellesley is only 13 per thousand in comparison with a national rate of 19 per thousand births. This includes all neo-natal deaths after 20 weeks' pregnancy such as fetal deaths in utero and abnormal births.

Parker said that although he used to deliver babies at a few hospitals, he has confined his practice now to Newton-Wellesley because "it supplies everything I need including an excellent staff and facilities."

He remains an enthusiast of natural childbirth which he says Newton-Wellesley was one of the first suburban hospitals to allow. "This was very revolutionary back when Newton-Wellesley first permitted it," he remembers.

Another plus for the suburban institution, according to Parker, is that every member of the staff is board-certified by the American Board of Obstetrics and Gynecology.

But nurses, doctors, fetal monitoring, medical support staff, etc. are but the parts that go into creating that somewhat indescribable experience known as motherhood and fatherhood.

As one father told a nurse on duty when his son was born: "No drug could put you in the state of euphoria we experienced." That's what was celebrated May 12 and will be observed again June 16.

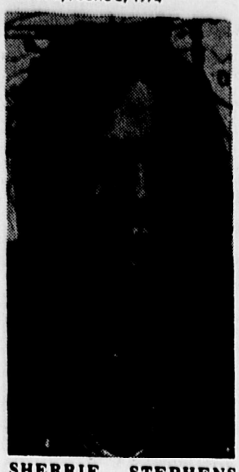
Business Briefs



SHERRIE STEPHENS CUTLER, 33 Copley St., Newton Corner, is a regional panelist on the awards committee for the City Options program of the National Endowment for the Arts in Washington, D.C. She is responsible for reviewing grant applications for the northeast region.

Architects commend projects

The Boston Society of Architects has presented certificates of commendation to six housing developments in the Greater Boston as a result of its second annual program in "excellence in housing and neighborhood design."

One of the projects honored, in the category of rehabilitation, was Cleaves Court Apartments in Roxbury. The architects were Bastille-Neiley and George Stephen of Newton.

Jaycees swear in new officers

The Newton Jaycees began their thirty-seven year with the swearing in of their new officers for 1974-1975.

The new president is Robert R. Alkon. Alkon has been a resident of Newton for 15 years. During his three years of membership as a Jaycee he has been a volunteer probation officer, membership chairman and vice-president.

Alkon has formed a partnership with John L. Vaccaro as certified public accountants in Newtonville.

In accepting the presidency, Alkon said the Jaycees should provide organization and leadership and work with other organizations in the city for community betterment.

Robert Wayne Snyder is a vice-president. Snyder has been a member for one year. During that time he served as chairman for Get Out The Vote Campaign 1973 and co-chaired the 1974 Distinguished Service Award banquet. He also served on the ways and means committee and chaired the Law Day ceremonies for the city of Newton. Snyder has recently opened a law office in Newtonville. Walter Tennant is also a vice-president. Tennant is a new member and is currently involved in the Jaycees Annual Field Day to be held at the end of June. Tennant played an active role in the 1974 Cancer drive.

A newlywed, he works with his father at the R. L. Tennant Insurance Agency in West Newton. Francis Schiavone is secretary. Schiavone is also a new member and is chairman of the 1974 Field Day. He is employed as a department manager at Newton Waltham Bank and Trust Co.

Bruce Cohen is treasurer. Cohen has been a member since 1973. His contribution to the Newton Jaycees has included work with the crime prevention committee and the mental health committee. He is currently an accountant with Peat, Marwick, Mitchell and Co. of Boston.

Jeff Cornell, last year's president, automatically becomes this year's chairman of the board of directors. Cornell operates his own insurance agency in Newtonville. His last act as president was to recount the successes of the past year, and the impact the Newton Jaycees has had on the Newton community.

He presented the Presidential Award to Buster Hagaman for outstanding service over the past ten years. Hagaman has served in most of the officer positions and represents commitment to the concept of Jaycees.

Jaycee membership is open to all young men between the ages of 18 and 36. For information, people may call Bob Alkon at 969-6032.

Townhouses in Newton Corner

G. Arnold Haynes Inc. has completed the construction of four townhouses, called Carriage Manor, on the property located at 21-35 Waban St., Newton Corner.

The original house, owned by Adelaide and Margaret Ball until 1973, was built by John R. Farnam in 1864 with the adjacent two lots used for a barn and his race horses. Farnam, once owner of the Davis-Farnam Foundry, built the Victorian iron fence which has been preserved and surrounds the house today.

The home was purchased in 1868 by John A. Buckingham. Son of Joseph Buckingham, printer and state legislator, John was a clergyman at the Hammond Street Church in Chestnut Hill and was the pastor who officiated at the wedding of Teddy Roosevelt and Alice Lee.

John Buckingham and wife were the grandparents of Adelaide and Margaret Ball. Sometime after World War I, the house underwent modernizing with the installation of plumbing and electricity. The house, once a rambling 17-room mansion with servants quarters has been restored to reflect the dignity of its Victorian past, yet modernized to accommodate the needs of the present.

The gardens which flourished over the two adjacent lots in the early 1900's were known as "a showplace of Newton Corner." The four Carriage Manor townhouses are now located where the gardens once were.

Serves United Way

Martin R. Daley, assistant vice president of Newton-Waltham Bank and Trust Company, is serving as west division associate chairman in the 1974 United Way of Massachusetts Bay campaign, according to Giles E. Mosher, Jr., UW west division chairman.

Daley is organizing and coordinating United Way community campaigns in Newton, Sudbury, Waltham, Watertown, Wayland and Weston.

Daley, a graduate of Boston College, has served the United Way in previous campaigns as a loaned executive. He is a member of the board of directors of Boston College Alumni Association and BC Class of 1967 Alumni Treasurer. He is also a member of Robert Morris Associates and the Newton-Needham Chamber of Commerce.

Daley lives in West Newton.

Ron Mabry promoted

Cramer Electronics has named Ron Mabry as outside salesman for the company's special systems division.

In his new position Mabry will be responsible for servicing the component needs of the Raytheon Corporation in the Northeast.

Mabry and his wife, Tina live in Wellesley with their two children.

Reappointed Newton Ald. Michael Lipof (right) has been reappointed by Gov. Francis Sargent (left) to a three-year term as gubernatorial representative to the Metropolitan Area Planning Council.

Alfred White receives citation

Alfred W. White of Waban, vice president and treasurer of Offices Unlimited Inc. of Boston and Lowell, was a recipient recently of a citation from the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

The citation, signed by Gov. Francis W. Sargent, and presented by Frederick A. Centanni, Commissioner of the Massachusetts Department of Commerce and Development was the "Faith in Massachusetts Award" in recognition of the recent expansion of the company and its contribution to the economy of Massachusetts.

AAA rating for Newton

Mayor Theodore D. Mann of Newton has announced that the latest listing of the municipal financial rating by Moody's Investment Rating Service shows the City of Newton's credit rating has moved up to the highest category of AAA rating.

Mann stated, "Newton is now one of five communities in Massachusetts enjoying this favorable status. I am pleased to note that we moved up from the AA category at the time we were offering our bonds for public sale. This rating increase has no doubt saved us substantial sums of money, according to City Treasurer Theodore L. Scafidi, who commented that he regards the $3 million bond issue which was bought up at 5.25 per cent as an extremely favorable rate in this particular money market."

The mayor noted that in a financial period when communities are losing their preferred status Newton has now recaptured the rating of triple-A which it had enjoyed many years ago.

Seminar June 11

The Massachusetts Psychological Center is sponsoring a community seminar beginning June 11.

Dr. Gene Bocknek of Boston University will lead a group of persons from Brookline and Newton in "The Future of Marriage" on Tuesday afternoons from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. at the Center's offices at 25 Huntington Avenue in Copley Square.

The seminar is limited to twelve persons and costs $36 for the six sessions.

Health group reports on job-related deaths

The Public Health Service says that 100,000 workers die from on-the-job exposure. Each year.

The deaths are caused from sexposure to poisonous chemicals, dusts, noise, heat, cold, radiation, and other conditions at work. In addition, the PHS estimates that 390,000 more workers develop disabling occupational diseasees. And countless thousands succumb to still other job-related diseases that have not been specified by scientists yet.

Among the known dangers, exposure to coal dust, asbestos, cotton fibers, as well as metals like berylliium and dusts like silica cause severe lung disease. And when workers in coal mines and asbestos installation also smoke cigarettes, their rates of crippling lung disease skyrocket.

Although an occupational health law was passed in 1970, enforceable federal standards to protect workers exist for only 450 of the suspected 15,000 substances which may injure a worker's health. Each year industry introduces another 400 new chemicals, nearly all of which are untested for possible long-term effects on workers who handle and inhale them. There is almost no testing at all of combinations of substances that may be harmless by themselves but become deadly when combined.

In thousands of plants, workers do not even know what chemicals they work with; to protect trade secrets, companies keep records of the substances only by code numbers. And unless a federal safety standard exists for the chemical, the company is not required to monitor worker exposure to poisonous agents or to perform periodic medical examinations on those exposed.

To find out more about occupational diseases and protecting lungs people may contact the Norfolk County-Newton Lung Association at 326-4081.

Big turnout at Camporee

More than 400 scouts attended the annual Spring Camporee of the Norumbega Council recently.

According to Morris Bond, chairman of the event, boys from Newton, Wellesley and Weston pitched their tents at Nobscot Reservation to compete for awards in camping skills.

Judging took place in the pioneer, woodsman and camper categories. Scouts spent their afternoon comging the entire reservation in a massive scavenger hunt.

The feature of the weekend was the induction of a group into the honorary scouting society, order of the arrow. This took place during an evening campfire. Entertainment for the event was supplied by the order of the arrow dance team.

Approximately 50 cub scouts joined the older scouts for the annual Webelo's Day at Nobscot. Webelos were treated to demonstrations of backpacking, axemanship and scouting skills. Dlnald Gay was chairman of the event.

Haust named division manager

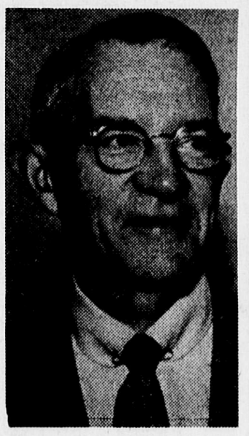
Cramer Electronics has named Steven Haust division general manager of Cramer-Tri-States, according to Joe Feller, Cramer vice president.

In his new position, Haust will be responsible for managing all sales and services for customers in the Indiana, Kentucky and Southern Ohio areas.

Haust joined Cramer in 1968 from Stack Electronics. He began as outside salesman in Cramer's Syracuse office and soon moved to the company's Binghamton, New York office. Called on to establish a new sales operation in Pittsburgh in 1972, Haust returned to Binghamton that same year as sales manager. He was promoted to division manager of the Binghamton office in 1973.

Haust graduated from Syracuse University with a business degree in marketing, attended Boone Technical Community College in Binghamton.

Married to the former Mary Denniston, the couple resides in Cincinnati with their two children, Kristen and Steven.



Robert S. Kretschmar

Auburndale man retires

Robert S. Kretschmar, 100 Day St., Auburndale, retired recently as general manager of Mass. Division of the American Automobile Assocation after 28 years of service to motorists.

He will continue as a member of the Mass. AAA Advisory Board and the AAA National Board of Directors. During his tenure, the organization grew from the Boston Auto Club with 6,000 members into the Mass. Division with more than 260,000 members. Kretschmar spearheaded campaigns for automotive safety, car insurance reform, and better highways. He has been active in numerous community affairs.

Driscoll aiding United Way

Richard D. Driscoll, senior vice president of New England Merchants National Bank, is serving as special accounts division chairman in the 1974 United Way of Massachusetts Bay campaign, according to William C. Mercer, UW campaign chairman and president of New England Telephone.

Driscoll, a graduate of Boston College and Harvard Business School, has served the United Way in previous campaigns. He is treasurer and member of the trustee council of Boston University Medical Center, director of the Greater Boston Chapter, American Red Cross and Greater Boston YMCA, both United Way agencies.

He is also a trustee of Saint John of God Hospital and a director of New England Bankcard Association and Merrimack Paving Corporation.

South wins two tournament games

By HOWIE APPELSTEIN

Last year's Newton South baseball team finished in first place in the Dual County League standings, but it failed to win a game in the Division One play-offs.

This year's team finished in second place, but won its first two tournament games.

The Lions' opening victory in the post-season tournament came on Friday, May 31, as they defeated Reading, 6-4.

South opened the scoring in the top of the first inning with one run on three hits.

After leadoff hitter Pete Castellanos lined out to third base, Reading pitcher Chuck Ross walked Co-Capt. Rob Shahon. Steve Tresca then banged a single to left field.

A Steve Rittenberg ground ball forced Tresca at second base, but Co-Capt. Tony Lombardo laid down a beautiful bunt to load the bases. Hal Bennett then smashed a ground ball through the middle which hit the pitcher's glove, causing the ball to stop on the infield grass. Shahon scored and the bases remained loaded. Bill Tartar popped out to third base to end the rally.

The Lions added to their lead with a single run in the fifth inning. Phil Small led off with a single to left field, and was sacrificed to second by a Ken Bianco bunt. Small went to third on a Castellanos ground ball to second, and scored when Tom Dwyer booted a Shahon ground ball.

South pitcher Bianco had a shutout going until the sixth inning when Reading struck for three runs.

Leadoff single Jerry Wallace led off with an infield single. After Bianco struck out shortstop Paul Clemons, first baseman Ted O'Brien walked. Ross then hit a towering three-run homer to left field to give Reading a 3-2 lead. The ball clearly went over the fence but it almost went foul as it just went to the right of the foul pole by a few feet.

The Lions came right back with three runs in the top of the seventh, but not final inning. In playoff competition, all games are scheduled for nine innings.

Bianco, not usually a strong hitter, lef off with a double to left field. Bianco went to third on a ground ball to secojd by Castellanos. Shahon then tied the game with a well-stroked single to center field.

Ross walked Tresca and Rittenberg to load the bases. After Lombardo popped to the first baseman on a bunt attempt, Bennett came through with another clutch hit, as he lined a two-run single to center field.

In the top of the ninth inning, South added another run to make the score 6-3.

With one out, Tresca was hit on an arm by a Ross pitch and went to first base. Rittenberg followed with a double which scored Tresca. Rittenberg was thrown out when he tried to stretch his hit to a triple.

Reading scored one run in the bottom of the ninth on a throwing error by Shahon.

A highlight of the game was one of the best catches of the year by centerfielder Tresca. In the second inning,Tresca made a great catch of a ball hit to deep left-center field.

On Monday, June 3, the Lions crushed Durfee, 15-6.

The bottom of the batting order supplied the punch this game as seventh hitter Bill Tartar had four hits and two runs batted in, and eighth hitter Phil Small had three hits and five RBI's.

South went to work right away as it scored five runs in the first inning. Mike Malkasian led off with a walk off Durfee pitcher Gary Perry. A Shahon ground ball forced Malkasian at second base.

After Tresca and Rittenberg walked to load the bases, Lombardo hit a ground ball to the Durfee second baseman. The second baseman threw the ball into left field and two runs scored.

Tartar then singled to right field to score another run. Small drove in the final two runs of the inning with a triple to right-center field. After Durfee changed pitchers, Chandler Bosworth lined out to shortstop for the third out.

Durfee battled back with two runs in the second inning. A double, single and three walks scored the runs.

A home run by Bob Kelly in the third inning which cleared the fence in right field made the score 5-3.

The Lions upped their lead to four runs in the fifth inning. After Rittenberg and Lombardo walked, Bennett laid down an excellent bunt. The Durfee pitcher fielded the ball and hit Bennett with his throw. When the ball went past the Durfee first baseman, Rittenberg broke for home, but was thrown out at the plate.

With runners at first and second, Tartar ripped his third single of the game, scoring Lombardo. Small followed with a single to center field which scored Bennett.

Newton South scored eight more times in the sixth inning. With one out, Shahon singled to center field. After Tresca walked, Rittenberg singled down the left field line and Shahon scored. Lombardo walked to load the bases.

Bennett drove in two runs with a single to left field. Tartar singled for one more run. Small hit a ground ball single to left field which went through the left fielder's legs, and Small came all the way around to score. South added one more run later in the inning.

Both teams were scoreless in the final three innings.

South had three double plays in the game. The first one occurred when Small took a ground ball, stepped on second, and fired to first. The second double play was a Lombardo to Small to Tartar combination.

The third double play was more unconventional. A pop fly was hit to Lombardo, who slipped and fell, but managed to get up and catch the ball on one knee. He fired to first for the double play.

This year's Newton South team placed more players on a Dual County League all-star team than any other team in the league. South players who made it were: Tresca and Rittenberg in the outfield, Lombardo in the infield, catcher Bennett, and pitcher Bianco.

South tennis team wins EMass title

Unseeded in the EMass Tennis Tournament, Newton South upset top-seeded Weston to capture the EMass team title this week.

The win ended a three-year drought, as the Lions last won the tournament in 1971. South defeated two Dual County League foes, Wayland and Weston, enroute to the title.

The Lions' first match was against a strong Framingham North team. South was victorious, 3-2.

Gary Hassler, Framingham's North's number two player, was hurt and unable to play in the match.

Humberto Fagundes and Jay Levensen tangled in a very exciting first singles match. Levensen, a sophomore stayed even with Fagundes through the first two sets.

In the third set, Fagundes jumped out to a 5-1 lead. In the seventh and final game of the set, Fagundes twice had match point, but Levensen stayed tough. Fagundes finished Levensen off with two good serves and a fine passing volley.

Coach Ted Dada felt that with the services of Hassler his team would have been successful. The Spartans were seeded second in the tournament.

South's Bill Karol lost in second singles to Dan Radler, 9-7, 4-6, 6-4. Dan Braverman won in third singles.

In first doubles, Roger Gordon and Tom Karol lost 7-5, 6-3. South's Doug Fisher and Jeff Levin won in second doubles, 6-1, 6-1.

Newton South next defeated Reading, 5-0.

In first singles, Fagundes won 6-2, 6-1. Karol was victorious in second singles, 6-2, 6-1. Gordon won in third singles, 6-1, 6-1.

Tom Karol and Braverman won in first singles, 6-2, 6-1. In second doubles, Doug Fisher and Jeff Levin trounced their opponents, 6-0, 6-2.

The Lions' third opponent was Wayland, which beat Newton North, 4-1, to make it into the semi-final round.

The Lions defeated Wayland, 3-2, at Weston. Fagundes won again in first singles, beating Tom Gray, 7-5, 6-4. Bill Karol defeated Paul Griffin, 7-5, 6-1.

Gordon played well but lost in third singles to Dave Rashin, 6-3, 8-10, 6-3. Braverman and Tom Karol lost in first doubles, 3-6, 9-7, 6-4. South's second doubles team of Fisher and Levin came through again as they won 6-4, 3-6, 6-1.

The victory advanced South to the tournament final against Weston. The top-seeded Wildcats beat Natick, Lincoln-Sudbury and Needham enroute to the final.

This was the match. The Lions had been unable to beat Weston in two league meetings. Weston had a 21-match winning streak on the line.

South scored wins in first and second singles and second doubles and defeated Weston, 3-2.

Fagundes played excellent tennis to defeat Ken Swain, 8-6, 6-3. Bill Karol was victorious, 6-3, 6-4.

Gordon was beaten in third singles, 6-3, 6-1. Tom Karol and Braverman wrapped up he match with a 7-5, 4-6, 6-4 win. Fisher and Levin lost in second doubles.

Newton South, Weston, and two teams from Western Mass. were to have played this week for the state title.

Newton North netmen lose in quarterfinal round

By BOB LOW

Newton North's two-year reign as Eastern Mass., State, and New England champion was essentially ended by Wayland in the quarterfinals of the Eastern Mass. tournament last week.

The Tigers, who were unseeded in the tournament after having been the top seeded team the last two years, met Wellesley in the first round on May 28 at Weston.

Wellesley, although finishing fourth in the Bay State League, had a record of 12-6 and gave Newton a tough match before bowing, 4-1.

Neal Kravitz whipped Jeff Eagleson at first singles, 6-2, 6-3, while Baird Haney trounced David Andrew, 6-1, 6-1. John Kosa took third singles by edging Kim Mardin, 6-2, 4-6, 7-6.

Wellesley earned its only point in first doubles as Dick Wright and Tom Murray defeated Stu Brightman and Lincoln Frank, 5-7, 6-3, 6-4. Newton won second doubles as Bob Low and Dave Bikofsky bested Bill Goodman and Caleb Aldrich, 6-3, 6-4.

Two days later, however, the Tigers ran into fourth seeded Wayland and were eliminated by an identical 4-1 score. Newton had a chance to win but lost two three set matches.

Wayland swept the singles as Tom Gray topped Kravitz, 6-3, 2-6, 6-4, Paul Griffin defeated Haney, 6-4, 6-2, and Dave Rashin beat Low, 6-2, 6-1. Kosa and Brightman came through at first doubles for Newton with a 2-6, 6-1, 7-5 win over Seth Johnson and John Hagenstein but Chip Lang and Bikofsky lost six straight games in their final set to Mark Vanelli and Steve Pesek as they lost in second doubles, 7-5, 4-6, 6-4.

The loss put the Tigers' final record at 17-4, including 12 wins without a loss in league competition. Although they failed to match their success of the last two seasons, this year's team was far from disappointed by the final record.

Kravitz commented "I think we did well considering we were supposed to be so weak. Unlike last year, every match was tough. We were still undefeated in the Suburban League."

John Kosa added "for a rebuilding year we didn't do badly; next year we'll be New England champions."

The future does look promising for Newton. Bob Low, Stu Brightman, Dave Bikofsky, and Chip Lang are all graduating but four of the top six players are returning. Along with players from this year's undefeated junior varisty and some fine ninth grade players, next season's squad ought to be an excellent one.

All the netmen had winning records this year. Kravitz, playing almost exclusively first singles, was 14-8-1; Haney, who was mostly at second singles or first doubles, was 17-7; Low, who played second and third singles, and some doubles, was 15-5-1; Brightman, who was a standout at first doubles throughout the season, was 16-5-1; Kosa had the best record, 18-1, playing mostly third singles or second doubles; Frank had a record of 10-5-2, playing primarily doubles; and Bikofsky and Lang, who as a team were unbeaten in public school competition until the final match, were 14-5-1 and 9-5-1, respectively.

Concert at Presbyterian Church June 7

On Friday evening, June 7, the Sanctuary Choir of the Newton Presbyterian Church will present a musical program entitled, "Music for a Summer Evening."

Guest artists will be Norman and Leonore Curtis, baritone and soprano. The Curtises are particularly well-known in the Greater Boston and New England areas. They have sung hundreds of engagements in the area's colleges, schools and concert halls; for fraternal and patriotic organizations, churches, Hadassah groups, women's clubs, Rotary, Masonic and Eastern Star organizations, as well as banquets, festivals, symphony concerts and choral groups.

Their popularity, both local and nationally, stems from the variety with which their programs are filled. Having performed in grand opera, operetta, musical comedy, summer theater-in-the-round, television, radio, symphony and oratorio, throughout extensive careers, they draw from this wealth of repertoire to present music in their programs for nearly every taste.

Norman and Leonore Curtis met while singing together in Sol Hurok's touring Opera Company's production of "Die Fledermaus." Mr. Curtis was on a short leave of absence from the New York City Center Opera Company and Mrs. Curtis from NBC television.

Eleven months after the tour, they were married and have been a singing team ever since. Their operatic repertoire includes "Aida," "Carmen," "Samson et Dalilah," "Die Fledermaus," "La Boheme," "Faust," "The Love for Three Oragnes," "Madame Butterfly," "I Pagliacci," "La Traviata," and many others.

In operetta and musical comedy leading roles that number well over 50, they have realized success in productions such as, "Desert Song," "Merry Widow," "New Moon," "Song of Norway," "Most Happy Fella," "South Pacific," "My Fair Lady," and "Brigadoon."

Included in their concert on June 7 will be ballads, love songs, a humorous song or two, a group of operatic selections, a group of sacred songs and a goodly number of show tunes.

Among these will be, "The Passagebird's Farewell," "Deaf Woman's Courtship," "Large Al Factotum," from "The Marriage of Figaro," Bach's "My Heart Ever Faithful," "If I Were a Rich Man," from "Fiddler on the Roof," "The Sound of Music," and selections from "Oliver." The Choir will join Leonore Curtis singing "The Italian Street Song," from "Naughty Marietta."

A reception will be held immediately following the concert. There is no admission charge and all are invited to attend. The Newton Presbyterian Church may be found just off exit No. 17 of the Massachusetts Turnpike Extension at Park and Vernon streets.

ought to be made to help youngsters in trouble.

"There are a lot of youngsters in need of help. Most are innocent victims of fate, the dependent child, the handicapped child and the juvenile offender. We must give them the help they need and deserve."

In that respect DeNucci has filed and urged passage of two proposals presently in the Legislative process. One bill would limit the number of children who may be detained by the Department of Youth Services in one detention home or facility. The second bill would create a second Youth Forestry Camp under the Department of Youth Services. The joint committee on Social Welfare unanimously voted in favor of the two bills.

"These are the type of reforms I'm most interested in," DeNucci said. And I am not one to be in favor of reform just for the sake of reform. We must put our priorities in order for the sake of fiscal sanity."

Later DeNucci pledged, "I will be a full-time state representative. I would make it my only job because in terms of both the amount of work which the Legislature is now handling, and in terms of the complexity of those issues, the demands are full time demands, and they don't end when the session ends.

"I'm willing to devote all of my efforts to the office of state representative. I will at all times be available to the people of my district, not only in regard to legislative issues, but also to help with any problems or concerns they may have entangled in the bureaucracy of state government."

The son of Alexander and Katherine DeNucci, the candidate was born August 30, 1939, in Newton. Educated in the Newton public schools, and graduated from Newton High School in 1957, DeNucci also attended Boston University.

He is presently a member of the advisory board to the Newton Youth Commission, a member of the board of directors of the Newton Boys Club, and past president of the Young Americans Junior Olympic Club of Boston.

DeNucci is a member of the Newton Democratic City Committee and was an elected delegate to the 1972 Democratic State Convention.

He is married to the former Barbara Ann Cedrone of Newton, and is the father of four children, Deborah, 11, Diane, 10, Alexander, 6, and Joseph, age 3. Deborah, Diane and Alexander are students at the Davis School.

DeNucci and his family reside at 119 Warwick road, West Newton.

the state Department of Community Affairs, the funding agency for low-income housing, are quite stringent as to the condition of housing bought by local housing authorities. There must be no large maintenance problems, for example, Quinn said.

"It is not as simple as it would seem at the outset," Quinn said, "to buy and rehabilitate existing housing."

The rule of thumb, Quinn said, is that acquisition of housing for rehabilitation accounts for one-third the total cost.

Race Unity Day to be observed

The Newton Baha'i Community will observe Race Unity Day with a public talk by Edward Prince on "Harmony in a Multicolored Garden" Sunday, June 9.

Price, formerly of Newton Highlands, is a student of psychology and religion at the University of Virginia. The public is cordially invited to attend this meeting which will be held at 12 Cotton St., Newton, at 8 p.m.

Race Unity Day is celebrated annually by the Baha'is in over 5,000 localities throughout the United States to focus on what they regard as the most challenging and vital issue confronting Americans today - that of racial prejudice.

Chorale sings at donor dinner

The Newton Chorale, will present a musical interlude at the annual donor dinner of the Greater Boston Auxiliary of N.E. Sinai Hospital, Wednesday, June 12, at Sidney Hill Country Club.

Under the direction of Mrs. Hans Seligman, an appropriate program has been arranged which will include Israeli and Yiddish folktunes as well as how tunes and specialty numbers.

This will be the last concert for the season but rehearsals will continue throughout the summer. Singers interested in joining the Chorale can contact Mrs. Seligman at 527-8350.

Temple to install officers June 7

Temple Reyim of Newton will hold its annual installation of officers on Friday evening, June 7 at 8 p.m. as part of the Sabbath evening Services. Past President Morris Katz will be the installing officer.

Temple officers to be installed include: president, Bertram Lipman; vice presidents, Walter Silver, Marvin Milton, Signey Fruman, and Dr. Robert Kramer.

Also, treasurer, Frederick D. Kay; assistant treasurer, Myron E. Shapiro; financial secretary, Kenneth Karger; ass't. fin. sec'y, Mark Alimansky; recording secretary, Mrs. Stanton Davis; corresponding sec'y, Mrs. Jacob Cohen; as well as newly-elected members of the board of directors.

In addition, the officers of the several arms of the Temple family, Sisterhood, Brotherhood, Pt.a., will also be inducted.

Incoming President Bertram Lipman will address the Congreagation on plans and aspirations for the coming year.

The installation committee under the leadership of Mrs. Louis Green (Sally) will provide a specialOneg Shabbat for this occasion following the Services.

Temple members and friends are invited to attend.

Anniversary celebration

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Saltzman of Newton are co-chirpersons of Temple Sinai's (Brookline) thirty-fifth anniversary celebration. They are working with a large committee including the following Newton residents: Mr. and Mrs. Elliott Bachner, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Cohen, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel M. Cotton, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Goldfarb, Mr. and Mrs. David L. Kaplan, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Lechten, Dr. and Mrs. Albert H. Soloway, and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Wheeler.

They have worked throughout the year on a series of events marking this occasion.

The celebration culminates on June 7 and 8. On Friday, June 7, Sabbath evening services will focus on this event. On Saturday evening, June 8, there will be a dinner-dance at the 57 Restaurant. Honored will be Rabbi and Mrs. Beryl D. Cohon. Rabbi Cohon is the founding Rabbi of Temple Sinai.

Itek Corp. to exhibit

Itek Corporation, Newton, will be an exhibitor in the 1974 International Machine Tool Show.

The show, which has the theme "A World of Productive Ideas," will feature machine tools and related products from 28 countries. The event, scheduled from Sept. 4 through 13, will be so big that two exhibit halls—McCormick Place and the International AMPHITHEATRE IN Chicago—will be required to house all the exhibits. An attendance of 70,000 is expected, including 10,000 visitors from overseas.

More than 700 exhibitors will use more than a half-million square feet of space to showcase their products as compared to 607 firms using 450,000 square feet in the 1972 exposition.

Mrs. Pepper to receive award

Mrs. Charles A. Pepper, Sacred Heart, Newton, CYO leader, will be among the youth and adults being honored at the Archdiocesan Chi Rho Congress June 7-9 at the Statler Hilton Hotel, Boston.

Mrs. Pepper is one of 14 adults throughout the Archdiocese of Boston who will receive the For God and Country Award, a national citation conferred on adult leaders who render distinguished service to youth.

Commenting on Mrs. Pepper's selection, Rev. Donald P. Clifford, Newton Deanery CYO and Chi Rho director, said, "Josephine Pepper is one of those rare persons who are genuinely interested in youth and who are willing to give their time and talents in their behalf."

Mrs. Pepper is a physical education director at Newton Catholic and at Sacred Heart School.

Men completing course at Military Academy

Three Newton men are concluding a 13-month course at the Massachusetts Military Academy which leads to commissions as second lieutenants in the Massachusetts Army National Guard.

Dino J. DiCarlo of 44 Verndale Road; Phillip J. Silvia of 97 Charlesbank Road; and William E. Pelletier of 55 Falmouth Road are among more than 90 senior cadets currently undergoing the final phase of the federally prescribed program at Camp Curtis Guild.

The cours is comprised of two 15-day field training periods and thirteen weekend sessions. It encompasses 350 hours of basic military subjects with strong emphasis placed on the development of leadership traits.

DiCarlo is a graduate of Wentworth Institute. He is a vice president of D & D Excavators of Newton.

Silvia is an electrical engineer working on urban rail transportation test programs for the U.S. Department of Transportation Systems Center in Cambridge.

Pelletier, a Wentworth Institute graduate, is a customer engineer for Telex Computer Products, Inc. of Waltham.

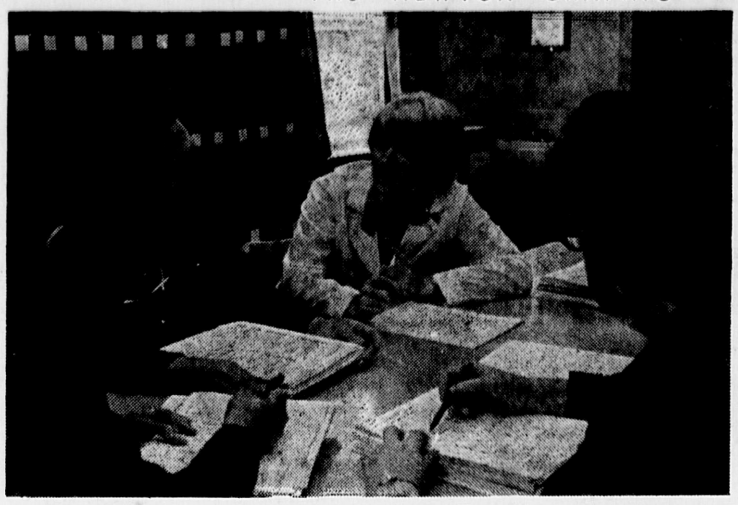
Graduation on June 11

The Meadowbrook School of Weston will hold its graduation exercises at the school on Farm Road at 9:30 a.m. on Wednesday, June 12.

On Tuesday, June 11, there will be an athletic awards program held in the gym at 2 p.m. to which parents and friends of the school are also invited.

The following local students will be attending the schools listed: Elissa Kaplan of Newton will go to Milton Academy and Warren Burroughs of Waban will attend Rivers Country Day in Weston.



System

Christina Brown, R.N., (third from left), training coordinator in the Beth Israel Hospital Ambulatory Care Project, discusses a proctocol system with nurses Martha Apodaca, Martha Carroll and Elaine Gill, who have come from the VA Clinic in El Paso, Tex., to participate in a training session.

Day camp for Cub Scouts to be conducted in July

A program of activities including swimming and many other new features will be offered to Cub Scouts and candidate Cub Scouts at the Norumbega Scout Council's day camp.

To be conducted during the first four weeks of July at the 500-acre woodland Nobscot Scout Reservation in Sudbury, the revamped program will include, in addition to swimming, mystery hikes, games, enlarged handicraft opportunities, and overnight camping.

The program is being opened this year to boys who are finishing the second grade of school in June even though they may not yet be 8 years old or Cub Scout members. Such membership is necessary and may be arranged by contacting the Scout Service Center.

Swimming will be an important part of the day camp program for the first time in the three-year history of the camp. Clifton C. Dean of Newton, scoutmaster of Troop 242, a junior high school teacher and waterfront director for several seasons at the Hidden Valley Scout camp, will be in charge of water activities, assisted by other camp staff members.

Transportation to and from the Sudbury camp will be by school bus this summer for the first time. Pickup points will be established in Newton, Wellesley and Weston.

A highlight of each weekly period is the Thursday night overnight campout. Wilderness cooking, a giant campfire with songs and stunts on the shores of Nupsi Lake and a probably visit by a mythical creature from the black lagoon, are features of the weekly event.

Loch Ness of Scotland may have its monster. Lake Nupsi of Nobscot has its "Nupsi Nemesis" according to local legend.

An authentic Indian burial ground presided over by the spirit of an ancient chief, the Indian lookout point, Tippling Rock, and the outdoor laboratory opportunities of the 500 acre reservation for nature and ecology study, together with chances to work on Cub Scout achievements and outdoor scouting skills can add up to a great experience.

Youngsters may enroll for one week only or up to four weeks by calling the Scout office at 332-2220. Boys not yet Cub Scouts but completing the second grade in June may also arrange Cub membership and camp enrollment through the Scout office.

Paul Slater to receive award

Paul D. Slater of Newton will receive the "Man of the Year" award from the New England Jewish National Fund at its annual dinner meeting Sunday evening, June 16, at the Statler Hilton Hotel, Boston.

A citation, in recognition of outstanding service to Israel, will be given by Lawrence L. Suttenberg, also of Newton, and a past winner of the "Man of the Year" award.

Dr. Davidson re-elected

Dr. Barry A. Davidson of Newton-Wellesley Hospital has been re-elected secretary of the Massachusetts Society of Plastic Surgery at the Society's spring meeting.

A graduate of Columbia University College of Physicians and Surgeons, Davidson served his internship and residency in general surgery at the New England Medical Center Hospitals and the Boston City Hospital. During this period he developed the water mattress and pioneered its use for the treatment of decubitus ulcers and certain neurologic disorders.

Davidson subsequently trained in plastic and reconstructive surgery at Bellevue Hospital Center and Manhattan Eye and Ear Hospital, under Drs. J. M. Converse and Thomas Rees.

Davidson is a diplomate of the American Board of Surgery and the American Society of Plastic and Reconstructive Surgery. He specializes in both cosmetic surgery and hand surgery.

Scout leaders honored at annual recognition dinner

Two-hundred Scout leaders of the Norumbega Council, Boy Scouts of America, met recently at the Wellesley Country Club for the Council's annual Scouters' Recognition Dinner.

T. Guy Spencer of Weston was the general chairman and toastmaster of the event and Dr. Howard W. Johnson, chairman of the corporation and past president of M.I.T., was principal speaker.

Awards and recognition for outstanding leadership, membership service, Scout leader training, activities leadership and administrative work were presented to 74 leaders.

Arthur G. Alexander, training chairman for the Norumbega Council presented Tantamous Awards for completion of basic Scout leader training to the following Newton leaders: Raymond R. Kiley, Troop 331; Robert Barter, Troop 301; Kevin E. Nelson, Troop 301; Lance Carleen, Troop 301; and Robert Norcross, Troop 311.

Two Woodbadge international training awards were made to Charles Hurwitz of Newton and Charles Tower of Southboro.

Dr. Franklin P. Hawkes presented veteran scout awards several Newton residents. 30 years - Charles W. Walker, Auburndale; Philip Bram, Newton . 25 years - Morris M. Danovitch, Newton Centre; 15 years - Marvin Berkowitz, Newtonville; Charles Hurwitz, Newton Lower Falls.

Order of the Arrow Lodge Chief Dennis Geary of Newton was recognized with a plaque by S. Joseph Melick of Newton.

Thomas C. Reilly recognized 13 leaders with statuettes. They served as the committee to plan and conduct the recent Scout Show-Explorer Expo at Wellesley High School.

A special award was made by Amos E. Kent to Scoutmaster Clifton Dean for Troop 242 of Newton for its consistent work in ecology and recycling.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert D. Cotell of Wellesley presented awards to Richard Benes and David Winer of Newton for leadership of the Scout expedition to New Mexico's Philmont Scout Ranch and of the New Hampshire Winter Survival Training Course in February.

Mary Beth Caruso of Wellesley, first vice-president of the Exploring Program in the United States, recognized Mary V.L. Wright for her work as retiring president of the Council Explorer Presidents' Association, and Miss Wright in turn presented service awards to Explorer Posts 300, 500, 511, 520 and 525. Receiving the awards were Robert Braceland, Sgt. John Likely, Glenn Harris, Dennis Geary, Gail MacInnis, Robert Antonelli, Edward Mitchell of Honeywell, Julian Coen, John Rogers and S. Joseph Melick.

Plaques were presented to Norris B. Bond of Wellesley and Donald A. Dery, Newton, by Antonio P deCastro of Wellesley for their service in organizing the Scout Camporee and Webelos Scout Day. Two top Explorer recognitions, the William H. Spurgeon Award, were made to Francis J. Keeman, M.D., chairman of the Norumbega Council Exploring Division and to Honeywell Information Systems for their sponsorship and support of local Exploring. Receiving the latter award was Robert Henderson, vice president and general manager, Honeywell Information Systems, North American Operations.

The newly-instituted "Nobscot Builder" award was presented by Council President Neises to Sidney J. Greenleaf of Newton and Antonio P. DECastro of Wellesley for their leadership and work toward the development of Norumbega Council's 500-acre outdoor reservation in Sudbury.

Achievement of membership and program goals by the Norumbega Council and by each of its three Districts was recognized by Laurance E. Boyden, Jr., of Wellesley, New England Area President for Scouting, and Robert E. Door, New England area director.

The awards were presented to Council President Neises and Executive Adolf Adnersen, Jr. for the Council; to T. Guy Spencer, Robert D. Cotell and H. F. Newcomb for the Wellesley-Weston district; to Carl G. Pohlman, Warren L. Carleen and Ralph S. Brisson for the Newton district, and to Dr. Francis J. Kleeman and Larry A. Bearfield for the Exploring Division.

District Awards of Merit recognizing significant contribution to Scouting on that level were presented to Mr. and Mrs. Paul R. Sawin of Newton, Stanley G. Schroter, Newton and Warren L. Carleen, Newton, by District Chairman Carol G. Pohlman of Newton.

Presenting the award to Dr. Stephen D. Peabody of Wellesley and Dr. Robert C. Duncan of Wellesley was Anne E. Mulroy, Wellesely, chairman of cub leader training for New England.

The comparable Silver "E" Award for Exploring went to Robert V. Braceland, member of Newton Police Department and Dr. Ralph H. Scott, Pathologist, Newton-Wellesley Hospital. It was presented by Dr. Francis J. Kleeman.

The highest award of the evening, The Silver Beaver Award, presented for distinguished service to youth within the area, was made to Dr. Edward C. Michaud of Weston and Thomas C. Reilly of Newton.

Reilly became a scout leader in 1963 and since then has been a cubmaster, scoutmaster, program director at Hidden Valley, Philmont leader, jamboree leader, training instructor, vigil member, and advisor to the Order of the Arrow.

Also, a Council camp committee member, camporee chairman, and executive board member.

Reilih is a foreman with the New England Telephone Company, and has worked as loaned executive with the United Way of Mass. Bay.

Presiding over the Silver Beaver Court of Honor was past president of Norumbega Council G. Arnold Haynes of Wellesley.

Murray Road working on conservation project

Students at the Murray Road School in West Newton are currently finishing al all-school project which has focused on conservation in Newton.

The project has involved a wide range of activities which include locating pipes which send waste into the Charles and surveying the banks of the Charles for pathways that would form a greenbelt along the river in Newton.

One group is working to clean out and restore Dolan's Pond, a wetland near the school, while another plans and maps scenic bike routes, some of which provide easy access to MBTA lines for commuters.

Seven students and a teacher have been working in Webster Vale, which, along with adjacent conservation area, was purchased by the city in 1968 and is protected by law to remain in its natural state.

They have removed debris which was dumped when land on the Madoc Street side was filled in for construction of a house on the edge of the Vale. Besides carting off metal drain pipes, buckets of concrete, barrels, barbecue pits and bottles, the students have also cleared trainls, They are constructing a map of the entire path system to be posted at the entrance to help visitors explore the woods and enjoy the tranquility of the area.

Dolan's Pond, known as the "Swamp" to most Murray Road students, begins at the end of Cumberland Street in West Newton.

Originally, water absorbed from adjacent land ran into the lowland pond from under the surface. Much of the surrounding land is no longer porous, since the streets are paved and the main source of water for the pond consists of run-off from the streets.

Oil and chlorides from salt which enter the pond through overflow drains create a certain pollution problem. The students, however, are less concerned with this than with other kinds of pollution. They have removed, with the help of the Public Works Department, the worst of the piles of dumped rubbish, boards and discarded machinery in order to restore as much as possible, the natural state of the area.

There are plans to use the pond to study wetland fauna and flora. Some of the group's ideas for observing wildlife include building birdhouses and perhaps a blind for camouflaged bird-watching. Many varieties of birds have already been spotted in and around Dolan's Pond, among them mallards, catbirds, Baltimore orioles and rose-breasted grosbeaks.

Students involved in the project have been assisted by neighbors, notably Ms. Linda Shapiro. They hope that the clean-up effort will enable people who live nearby to appreciate and enjoy Dolan's Pond in its natural setting.

Is Darrel Johnson an unlucky manager?

sports spice

Commentary by Mark Witkin

Would you rather be lucky or good? Sports fans have been asking that question since the first horse race when the favorite stumbled leaving the starting gate. There is no doubt that luck plays an important part in sports - not only in isolated events but througout the careers of some men. Some are lucky, others are jinxed.

Pete Reiser, for example, was an extraordinarily talented baseball player. He came to the major leagues with the same type of reputation carried by Mickey Mantle. Kids today won't believe that, but it's true. Pete Reiser could do anything on a baseball diamond. But everything he did was jinxed.

He broke bones running the bases. He broke bones crashing into outfield walls. He was beaned when batting, time after time. Finally he quit, his career ruined by his fate. He could have been one of the greatest ballplayers ever, every one said so - but he had no luck. No good luck that is. What luck he did have was consistent even when he became a manager in the Dodger chain.

In true Pete Reiser fashion, he then suffered a heart attack. He could have been a great star. Instead, he's just an unlucky and tired middle-aged man.

Other men have good luck. Almost all great coaches and managers have had good luck. Some like Casey Stengel or Vince Lombardi have to live in obscurity working year after year until they're lucky enough to get one vital opportunity. Stengel is thought of as a great manager - which he was. But if he hadn't been lucky enough to become manager of the Yankees, he would have eneded up as just another frequently fired leader, an answer to a Sports Trivia Quiz.

Vince Lombardi, like Stengel, was a comparatively late success. He worked as an assistant coach for many years. Years of long hours and little money. But he was lucky enough to be chosen to coach a team that had Bart Starr, Paul Horning, Jerry Kramer and Max McGee.

Art Rooney, owner of the Pittsburgh Steelers, is an interesting example of a basically lucky man, who was jinxed in football. Rooney has won fortunes betting on horses and betting on the commodities market. A very religious man, whose brother was a priest in Boston for many years, Rooney was once lucky enough to hear of a message for assistance from a missionary in China. A wireless report from a priest told of a great flood which had ruined many of the Chinese farmers' crops.

Art Rooney is a very charitable man and presumably he answered the call for help, but first he used the information and invested heavily in the commodities market and made a killing. But as lucky as Rooney was in business, he was as unlucky in picking coaches for his football team. One coach, Jock Sutherland, couldn't get along with Bullet Bill Dudley. So Dudley, who was such a great running back that he could have brought a championship to the Steelers, was traded. Soon after the trade, Jack Sutherland died of a brain tumor. Dudley went on to a great career with others.

Another of Rooney's coaches, Walt Kiesling fancied himself a great judge of young talent. He was so good in fact, he didn't want to listen to the opinion of the players on the team, or the coaches, or the owner. He had his perogatives and cut his young quarterback Johnny Unitas. Poor Art Rooney. Lucky in love, lucky in business, but no Johnny Unitas and no championships.

Red Auerbach is probably the greatest coach in the history of sports. He is also very lucky. Unaccustomed to interrupting people when they are calling hima genius, he is the same man who passed up Bob Cousy the first time Cousy was available. It's also true, although few people remember it, that the team with the first crack at Bill Russell in the basketball draft was Rochester. But they had no money to pay him. That meant Auerbach could make the trade with the St. Louis Hawks for Russell's draft rights. Naturally, with Cousy and Russell, Auerbach became recognized as a great coach - which he was - and lucky - which he also was.

Continuing on the local scene, Chuck Fairbanks of the Patriots, although not in Auerbach's league, as a coach or general manager seems almost as lucky. Fairbanks jumped into a nice fat Patriots contract right before the uncovering of a University of Oklahoma football recruiting scandal that might have cost him his job in Boomer Sooner country.

So it definitely pays to be lucky. Red Sox fans realize this, of course, and try to gauge the future success of the team by asking themselves. "Is Darrel Johnson lucky or unlucky?" Some answer that Johnson is unlucky because (1) some of his key ballplayers are injured, (2) the Red Sox have lost a lot of close ballgames and (3) he was mugged at the ballpark.

On the other hand, I think Johnson is lucky because (1) none of the injuries to his key ballplayers are serious, (2) his losing streak came when most fans were concentrating on the Bruins and Celtics playoff games and (3; the mugger couldn't hit any better than the Sox.

Registration for boating classes on June 10

Registration for the Newton Recreation Department's boating and canoeing classes will be held at Crystal Lake on Monday, June 10.

This year there will be two sessions, each lasting for two weeks. The first session will be held from June 26 and July 5, and the second from July 8 to July 19.

There will be seven classes a day, Monday through Friday. The times are as follows: 9:15-10 a.m.; 10:15-11 a.m.; 11:15 a.m. to noon; 12:30-1:15 p.m.; 1:30-2:15 p.m.; 2:30-3:15 p.m. and 3:30-4:15 p.m.

The boating and canoeing instruction program is for children aged nine to 12, who have passed the advanced beginners swimming course, or the equivalent in a test to be given at the beginning of each season.

The Recreation Department has announced that there are still some openings in sailing classes scheduled to begin on June 10. The classes for the period June 10 to June 26 will be from 3-5 p.m. in the afternoon, and 6-8 p.m. in the evening.

Beginning June 26, there will be one class in the morning and two in the afternoon. Registration for three classes will be held at Crystal Lake on June 10. The instructor is Timothy Johnson.

Innovations In Sound

You've probably never thought of your car as an ideal stereo listening studio. Well, it is! The minute you sit in your stereo equipped auto, you're blanketed in thrilling sound. You'll witness an entirely new perspective in stereo listening; a richness in stereophony and realism of sound reproduction that has never before been possible. Now, with stereo tape cartridges, whether you listen in your car, home, boat, plane or trailer you enjoy an unparalleled sound sensation . . . crisp clarity and maximum fidelity, superior craftsmanship . . . and a wealth of music for every taste from Broadway to The Beatles, from current hits to classical.

Stereo cartridges are carefully engineered to afford maximum reliability and convenience of operation.

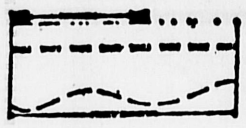
1. You never have to thread or even touch the tape.

2. You may change from one stereo program to another with the press of a button.

3. Tapes are continuous and never need rewinding.

4. With a minimum of care, the playing life of the tape is practically unlimited.

What is four-track and eight-track stereo tape? Within the ¼-inch tape width, music is recorded on four or eight parallel tracks which run the length of the tape. Two tracks play simultaneously and produce true stereo sound. Standard tapes provide up to 40 minutes of continuous music. Twin cartridges up to 80 minutes.



How does a tape cartridge work? Stereo cartridges contain a tape in a continuous loop, which simply means that the tape runs from the center of the spool and is returned to the outer lap of the reel. Thus, never needs rewinding. Inserting the cartridge into the tape playback unit is probably as easy as replacing your cigarette lighter in the dash.

Seeing is believing, however, and perhaps the least expensive method for you to experience the unusual convenience engineered into a stereo tape is to visit a dealer and ask for a demonstration.

Realizing that stereo tapes are here to stay, Lechmere Sales of Cambridge and Dedham is now compiling substantial stocks. This foresighted record dealer and department store devoted exclusively to providing the consumer with even a larger and more complete musical selection than previously realized with the more traditional record album departments.

Long recognized as a retailing leader and innovator, Lechmere now features perhaps the largest selection of stereo tape cartridges in New England. It's a certainty that a visit to either Lechmere in Cambridge or Dedham will prove a most rewarding musical experience.

And remember, every Lechmere diamond carries a registered guarantee of color, cutting, clarity, weight, and full purchase price turn-in value.

The Green Thumb

ONIONS FOR HEALTH—Onion sets and onion plants are high priced this year. If you can't get the sets or plants, start plants from seeds, which are available and which can produce edible plants by fall or late summer. As you eat the young plants, you automatically thin them out so that the remaining ones can grow larger and produce bulbs. If you want green onions, make monthly sowings from spring until late summer. We like to leave some plants in the ground over the winter. These send up succulent leaves in early spring and are delicious, at a time when we're hankering for a touch of fresh vegetables. Most people don't know that onions are hardy and will live over winter.

Onions have many relatives such as Leeks, sturdy biennial with flat foliage. These come up year after year once you get them started. Chives are hardy perennials producing many upright, hollow stems about a foot tall. These can be grown in a pot next to your kitchen. Shallots are a mild flavorful member of the onion family.

Everyone should grow Multiplier Onions (Allium cepa multiplicans) as they come up year after year. Don't forget garlic. Cloves can be divided and planted.

POTTED TOMATOES—If you grow or buy plants in peat pots, here's a hint for better growth. Peat pots, made from compressed peat, are popular for starting and growing plants, and the usual recommendation is to plant pot and all. However, when you buy the potted plants or grow them in peat, pressed paper, or manure pots, it's a good idea to gently tear off the bottom of the pot and release the roots.

Some growers take their thumb nails and break the side walls, so that the roots and soil are exposed. Why? Although the roots will penetrate through the peat or paper walls, they may not always do that. During a dry period the peat walls are hard and tough, keeping the roots potbound and hindering good development.

We've seen some potted plants make little or no growth in dry seasons because the organic walls formed a barrier and kept soil moisture from reaching the roots.

To ensure a healthy plant, gently remove the bottom or sides of the peat pot before planting. Immediately after transplanting, give the plants a thorough watering. If you use Jiffy pellets, take a sharp razor blade and slit the sides of the netting, before planting in the ground.

GREEN THUMB CLINIC—A reader writes: "We hear that charcoal is good for house plants. Would it be safe to crush up some briquettes and use them in a potting mixture?"

Ans—No. Charcoal briquettes are held together with coal tar derivatives, and these can be harmful to the plants. Use regualr charcoal.

Good time now to plant fruit trees

This is a good time to put in fruit trees, and with prices where they are there is special appeal to the idea of having fresh fruits for the family right in your own backyard. . . delicious foods you'll never have to buy again.

The American Assn. of Nurserymen, the national organization of authorities in such matters, has a few simple instructions that can contribute to the success of your fruit tree addition. The two major factors to consider in planting your fruit trees, they say, are good drainage and plenty of sun. Pick a spot where water will not remain standing and where the tree is in sunlight as much as possible during the day.

Select your own favorite fruit varieties suitable for this are from nursery-grown stock available from any reputable nursery garden center or mailorder house. Planting and care instructions will be readily available from the firm supplying the trees, but to give the new gardener an idea of the simplicity of the project he is undertaking the American Association of Nurserymen offers these brief hints.

First, prepare a hole large enough so the bare roots of the fruit tree fit in their natural shape. If the tree roots are balled in burlap the hole should be about twice the size of the ball. The soil you put back in the hole should fit snugly around the roots to avoid air spaces. When planting is completed, the new tree should be at about the same depth as it was in the nursery. Finally, protect the young tree's trunk with a wrapping of burlap or cloth or tree paper for its first season or two.

It sounds fairly simple the way the nursery people describe it, doesn't it? And it is. This is the right time to begin to enjoy nature's gift of fresh foods you'll never have to buy again.

Nature's Ways

By WAYNE HANLEY
Mass. Audubon Society

While there is no intent of having you tiptoe through the garden as though you were surrounded by panthers, the Arnold Arboretum has produced an authoritative booklet on common poisonous plants that anyone with small children should read.

For instance, daffodils look good enough to eat. But any child who eats any part of a daffodil may become subject to "vomiting, diarrhea, trembling, convulsions," according to "Poisonous Plants" which the arboretum published in May.

Unlike too many poisonous plant guides, the arboretum volume clings closely to common plants and thus has a value that exceeds the more exotic productions. In addition, it tries to give an evaluation of the degree of poisoning one is likely to suffer. Namely, whether it is serious enough to be possibly fatal, or just the producer of a violent abdominal upset. In addition, it lists the seven poison control centers in Massachusetts which are open 24 hours daily and to which a poison victim might be rushed. Those who live in other states will find the volume just as valuable - if they will take the time to rummage through telephone books and write in the back of the book the address and telephone number of the nearest poison control center.

Some poisonous plants are surprising. Unripe potatoes which have turned green, or the sprouts of potatoes, when eaten cause "headache, colic, vomiting, diarrhea; pupils of eyes may or may not be dilated; mental confusion, stupification, coma."

Another edible plant with parts which are dangerous is rhubarb. The green expanded leaf of rhubarb contains calcium oxalate. The chemical can cause: "Stomach pain, vomiting, weakness, coma and death result from large amounts. Muscular weakness and twitching, slowed respiration, weak pulse, coma, and death occur from small amounts."

Other plants which contain calcium oxalate and may cause death include: Jack-in-the-pulpit; caladium; dumb cane and philodendron, the last two being house plants. Fatalities involving calcium oxalate usually are from a swelling of tissues in the windpipe which causes suffocation.

The misnaming of plants is illustrated in comparing the effects of water hemlock and poison hemlock. Both are common weeds, rather than trees, and have flowers that look like Queen Anne's lace or elderberry. Poison hemlock causes "muscular weakness, dizziness, disordered vision, loss of muscular control." But, the safer-sounding water hemlock causes "excessive salivation, then tremors of the limbs and sudden and violent convulsions. Unconsciousness and death follow."

The leaves or berries of English ivy when eaten cause "excitement, labored breathing, diarrhea, anc coma." The leaves and berries of holly do almost as well but wind up in "stupor" rather than "coma."

College commencements held across nation

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Newton Graphic relies upon each college or university to submit material about graduations. Each school has its own method of presenting material about local students and the material is used here as submitted by the school.

Due to the volume of mail received at graduation time, not all graduates could be included in this issue and not all schools have as yet sent press releases.

Graduation stories will continue to appear on a space available basis in succeeding issues. Dean's Lists and undergraduate honors will also appear in other issues of the paper.

Parents of graduates whose schools do not send information to the local press are invited to submit their own graduation stories to this paper.

These scholars have received college degrees from various universities across the United States:

NCNP elects new slate

At its annual meeting the Newton Coalition for New Politics elected a new slate of officers, William Carmen and Harry Crosby co-chairmen.

Other officers are George Hauser, Faye Cohen, Caryn Mofesnson, Jim Neely, Edward Kovar, Fran Zamcheck, and Anita Greenbaum.

NCNP plans to continue its efforts to focus on issues, both local and national, and to take a role in trying to change the status quo. One of the goals this year will be to attract new members who are willing to be active. The Coalition has always worked for liberal candidates, Republican and Democrat, and in the past has endorsed such people as Eugene McCarthy, George McGovern, Cong. Robert Drinan, Sheriff John Buckley and many others.

The Coalition was started by a group of McCarthy-for-President workers who decided to carry on the ideals for which he stood - peace, less military spending, equal rights for all citizens, and other social changes.

Anyone interested in either attending meetings or obtaining more information may call George Hauser at 332-4055.

When our loss was shared by you
Our sorrows were lightened
And we even found it in our hearts
To rejoice - that we could share
Our beautiful memories of Ros — together with you.
For being with us in this hour — We extend such gratitude — Along with our love.

Moral integrity is stressed at Christian Science meeting

Today's need for moral integrity is "one of the most obvious urgencies in our society," Christian Scientists from many countries were told at the denomination's annual meeting Monday in Boston.

"No nation could long prosper while drifting into a miasma of moral blindness, public and private," said DeWitt John, new chairman of The Christian Science Board of Directors.

John, a Christian Science teacher from Lincoln, Mass., said, "Human thought today is widely afflicted with a deadening of conscience. Yet it's natural for the Christian Scientist to listen to the voice of conscience . . .

"Nothing can silence this voice. May we cultivate the spiritual sense which will enable us to hear and follow this silent inner voice, the guiding voice of the redeeming Christ."

More than 6,500 members of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, were on hand for the meeting.

The overflow from the original Mother Church edifice and the domed extension in the Christian Science Center viewed the meeting's proceedings via closed-circuit television in the John B. Hynes Civic Auditorium.

John was editor of The Christian Science Monitor six years prior to joining the five-member board of directors in 1970. The new chairman, a native of Arizona, is a graduate of Principia College and holds a master of arts degree in political science from the University of Chicago and a master of science degree in journalism from Columbia University.

In 1958 he entered the public practice of Christian Science and bacame a teacher of Christian Science six years later. He recently completed a tour of branch churches in Asia.

The importance of spiritualizing thought was also brought out in other reports to the membership.

Eric Bole, a trustee of The Christian Science Publishing Society from London, England, noted The Christian Science Monitor "reports the problems confronting mankind" and The Christian Science Herald and the other religious publications "show us how to confront these problems — how to be problem solvers, not problem dodgers."

Bole reported that Portuguese and Spanish religious periodicals are now being printed monthly for the first time, and that more than 20 new translated publications were issued during the past year.

Store opening Marshall's, one of the nation's fastest growing retail organizations, continued its upward spiral when it opened its newest stores in Portland, Me., on May 2 and in Nashua, N.H., on May 9. The new stores mark the 23rd and 24th in the Marshall chain, which is based in Woburn, Mass. Above photo shows crowds on opening day at the Nashua store.

Coast Guard Reserve has summer jobs

High School juniors seeking a summer job may be eligible for a new program being offered by the Coast Guard Reserve. The "Summer Job" program provides qualified students who, because of their studies, would be unable to fulfill the regular active duty requirements, the chance to "stretch" their training period over two summers.

During the first summer, enlistees attend ten weeks initial training to learn what the Coast Guard is all about, how it works and what is expected of them. Then, during th school year they can attend regular Reserve meetings without interrupting their education. The second summer is dedicated to on-the-job or specialized training in the field of the individual's choice. Throughout the training, enlistees receive the same benefits, pay and allowances as their active duty counterparts.

Although the program is intended to principally attract high school juniors, qualified seniors and other bonafide students already attending or planning to attend college will be accepted.

Anyone interested in this new program should contact his nearest Coast Guard representative.

. . . How much was spent by the Mass. DPW & MBTA in building new transportation facilities in 1973?

. . . How many airports were there in Mass. or how many passengers were accomodated at Logan Airport in 1973?

These and many other questions are answered in the new 1974 pocket-size edition of the "Transportation Fact Finder."

DPW Commissioner Bruce Campbell said the handy "Fact Finder," which folds to a convenient 3-inch by 4-inch size, summarizes important statistics for all modes of transportation in the Commonwealth: highways, railroads, public transit,, air and marine. Also included are Massachusetts socio-economic highlights as listed in the 1970 national census.

Commissioner Campbell added further that the compilation was made possible through the complete cooperation of all the principal transportation agencies in the Commonwealth.

"Last year's edition was the first of its kind in the country," said Commissioner Campbell, "and this year's edition has been updated to reflect statistical changes of the past year."

The new pocket "Fact Finder" is available at no charge to the public. A copy may be obtained by writing to Commissioner Campbell, Mass. DPW, 100 Nashua St., Boston, MA 02114.

Armenian night at Museum of Science

On Friday night, June 7, Bostonians can visit Armenia and be back home in the same day.

Impossible? Yes, but visitors to Boston's Museum of Science that night may not think so when they arrive to find the exhibit halls given over to special programs on the culture of these people. Plans for the evening call for displays and demonstrations on Armenian dancing, music, lacemaking, rugs, clothing, stone rubbings, and language. The last of four monthly evenings focussing on a variety of ethnic groups, the June program is being planned by the Museum's Service Legue and the International Institute, Boston. As with the previous presentations, there is no charge above Friday night half-price admission for any of the evening's activities.

Richard Tashjian will represent the Armenian Artists Association of America that night with an audio-visual presentation, recently aired on channel 2 and 44, on 20th century Armenian artists, and a display of original works by a number of them. In addition Mrs. Berj Kalian will lend her collection of Armenian headstone rubbings to the Museum for the evening.

Some of the secrets of lacemaking will be revealed by Mrs. Alice Odian Kasparian, who will demonstrate this painstaking and intricate art. A very accomplished artisan, Mrs. Kasparian has exhibited at the Boston Museum of Fine Arts and Jordan Marsh, and was awarded first prize at the annual Arts and Crafts Harvest Show in Washington, D.C. Her lace collection, which will be on view, includes pieces made by her since she learned at age six, and a number of delicate antique examples of the art.

Rug dealer Arthur T. Gregorian will be on hand to discuss the history of rugmaking and talk about several rugs from his extensive collection.

Violinist Dorothy Sahagian will play Armenian music on the halls, and the A.G.B.U. Daron Dance Ensemble of Watertown will give two fifteen-minute presentations in Cahners Theatre. Joining the dance troupe will be the Armenian Club of Belmont High School, whose members will model a variety of traditional Armenian clothes.

Visitors will have a chance to learn a little Armenian in fifteen-minute introductory lessons; and they may sample Armenian cuisine in the Museum's Sklyine Room, where authentic dishes will be served along with the regular American menu from 5 until 8 p.m.

A display of Armenian books and objects d'art from the National Association for Armenian Studies and Research will round out this evening-long salute to a rich heritage and culture.

The Museum of Science is located near the Science Park Station on the MBTA Green Line. For those who drive, there is ample parking in the garage at reasonable rates.

Gilbert and Sullivan shows at Harvard

The Harvard Gilbert and Sullivan Players will present "Jibo and Joke—An Evening With Gilbert and Sullivan" on Monday, June 10, and Tuesday, June 11. Performances will be at 8 p.m. in the Leverett House Old Library, DeWolfe Street, Cambridge. Tickets may be purchased at the Harvard Co-op or at the door.

The cast, who are alumni of HGSP and who will be recreating some of their most memorable roles, consists of Benjamin Cox, Bruce Macdonald, Anita Scott Road, Susan Stone, Arthur Waldstein and Alison Keith Whitney. The music director is George Nelson.

Houseware Lodge B'nai B'rith to meet June 6

The next meeting of the Housewares-Hardware-Toy Lodge of B'Nai Brith will take place this Thursday evening at Valle's on Route 9 in Newton.

President Dave Lipsky will accept the gavel as incoming president and will turn the meeting over to Fred Garmon as program director.

The speaker will be George A. Glenn editor in chief of "Housewares" magazine, one of the leading publications in its field.

An honorarium will be presented to Steven Kadish in memory of his late father and beloved charter member and officer of the lodge.

Wives of members have been invited to attend the meeting and meet with Glenn who is a national authority in the field of housewares.

Downeast Special coming June 15

A "Special Train" to the senic mid-coast area of Maine will depart Boston's North Station—stopping at many suburban statigns to the north for passenger convenience—on Saturday, June 15.

Passengers on this unique train will have the option of spending their weekend in one of six senic locations: Old Orchard Beach, Portland's Casco Bay, Bath, Damariscotta, Camden or Boothbay.

Included in the package price are three meals, hotel accommodations, senic tours and round-trip rail transportation. The train will return to the Hub Sunday evening.

For further information and fares write to: Mystic Valley Railway Society, Inc., P.O. Box 32, Mattapan, Ma. 02126.

Emphysema Club to meet

The Norfolk County-Newton Lung Assn. has announced the initiation of its 1974 season of meetings of the Emphysema Club, a group concerned with people who have breathing problems.

The first meeting will be held on June 12, at the offices of the Christmas Seal Agency, 745 High street, Westwood, at 7:30 p.m.

This meeting is open to Westwood area residents who may have a chronic lung disease.

Club members pay no dues since the meetings are sponsored by Christmas Seal contributions. Family members and friends are invited to attend, and refreshments will be served. Highlighting the first meeting will be a discussion of clinic facilities available to area residents.

Stamp exhibit on June 9

The Cardinal Spellman Philatelic Museum will hold a stamp course and exhibition on Sunday, June 9, in the museum building from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Fourteenndealers will be present. The United States Post Office and old time general store will be open.

Highlights in the gallery are an exhibit of French Ballroom Posts and the postal history of Rochester, Mass.

Lake and pool to open June 8

The Newton Recreation Department has announced that Crystal Lake and the Gath Pool will open at 1 p.m. on Saturday, June 8.

This first weekend, both swimming facilities will be open from 1 p.m. to dusk on Saturday and Sunday. The following week, the Lake and Pool will be open from 2 p.m. to dusk. Saturday, June 15, the hours will be 9 a.m. to dusk and Sunday, June 16, 1 p.m. to dusk.

Swim permits will go on sale Thursday, June 6 at the pool and at Crystal Lake. The fees remain the same as last year, $1 for children and $3 for adults.

Holders of indoor season permits at the North High Pool may exchange them for a summer badge permit at no cost. These exchanges must be made at the North High School pool.

There are still some openings in the classes to be held at Crystal Lake, except in the tiny tot program. Instructors will be on hand from 3 to 6 p.m., beginning June 10, to register people for these classes.

Barndt named

Ronald LaMar Barndt has been chosen an "Outstanding Secondary Educator of America for 1974."

Barndt has been a teacher at the Murray Road Annex of Newton North High School since its inception in 1967.

A biography of Barndt will be in an WARDS VOLUME, "Outstanding Secondary Educators of America."

TV show

"The Healing Experience" is the title of a half-hour television program to be shown on WNAC-TV, Channel 7 and other CBS network stations on Sunday, June 9 at 10 a.m.

Part of the series "Lamp Unto My Feet," the program will center around the annual meeting of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, which thousands of Christian Scientists attend each year.

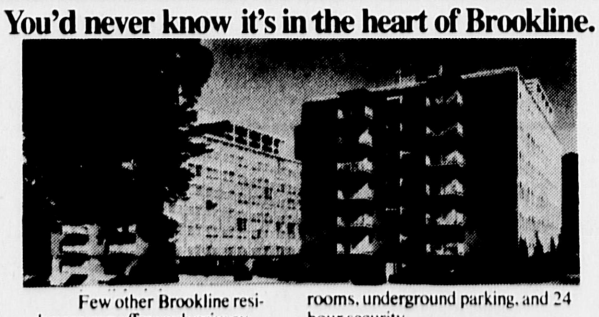
You'd never know it's in the heart of Brookline.



Few other Brookline residences can offer such privacy. 70/80 Park luxury condominiums are secluded on their own 2½ acres. Beautifully landscaped and adjacent to Griggs Park.

From the parkland vista of your condominium, you'll never know you're in the heart of Brookline. Yet the elegant shops, MBTA into Boston, and convenience stores are all just a short walk away at Coolidge Corner.

A few one, two and three bedroom apartments are still available, most with balconies. And all with huge 600 square foot living rooms, underground parking, and 24 hour security.

70/80 Park. See it. For yourself. Prices from the forties to the seventies.

The average age of U. S. cars is nearly 5.7 years, reports the Motor Vehicle Manufacturers Association.

Gas conservation measures are still important

By AUTOMATIVE INFORMATION COUNCIL

The lifting of the recent oil embargo, more gasoline stations pumping fuel longer hours, Sunday gasoline sales and the disappearance of long gas lines have given many motorists the feeling that the gas shortage is behind us, and the days of unlimited carefree driving are just around the corner.

Unfortunately, such is not the case.

Oil experts indicate that the U.S. still faces major long-term energy problems. Our country is still dependent on oil imports - both crude and refined - to meet our demands.

The current situation regarding the availability of oil is unstable because the oil producing countries have lifted the embargo on what they call a trial or temporary basis, and a firm price structure for oil has not been formulated.

While many motorists have faced hardships the past few months, excellent cooperation, generally, by motorists practicing fuel conserving measures helped prevent the fuel shortage from becoming critical nationwide. Car pools, gas-saving driving habits and regular maintenance to keep cars performing at peak efficiency all helped to reduce the consumption of fuel by about 15 per cent from anticipated levels, according to industry sources. The fuel shortage, by the way, made many motorists realize how dependent they really are on the automobile for essential needs.

As we approach the traditionally heavy driving season, the time of vaction trips, graduations, weddings, etc., plus other energy-consuming leisure time activities such as boating, fuel supplies are expected to be about the same as long summer. But in the meantime we have added about four million cars on our nation's highways.

Based on the best available facts, there are about 10,000 more licensed drivers in the U.S. every day and about 8,000 more cars in use per day, therefore, consumption requirements continue to increase.

In order to have fuel for the things you want to do this summer, fuel conservation measures that you followed during the fuel crisis are still necessary.

News from Hollywood

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Dan Dailey, the old song and dance man of MGM's back lot and current star of television's "Faraday and Company," has simplified his life by ridding himself of most of his possessions.

Dailey once lived on a 20-acre spread in the San Fernando Valley where he kept a stable full of horses and a flock of foxhounds. His home was a showcase of opulence.

Today he lives at Malibu which he jokingly calls the skid row of the beach.

The place is tiny and hangs out over the water on stilts. When the Pacific is stormy, ocean spray rattles the windows. In good weather one looks out those same windows as if through the wheel house of an ocean-going liner.

Remembers the Past

The long divorced, Dailey fends for himself, doing the cooking, housecleaning and other chores in the single bedroom house.

Evidence of his past cling to the walls in the form of hunting horns, horse show trophies, old hunting prints and ribbons and the like.

The actor is still fond of horses and fox hunting. But for the past five years he has traveled so much in road company productions there was no point in maintaining a ranch and large home.

"When I was on the road I had to keep a lot of people in help," he says. "It finally dawned on me the help was enjoying the pool and the horses and I was doing all the work."

He still owns 10 acres of the ranch, but rarely visits there.

Special Pork Chops

It takes Dan 40 minutes to drive to Universal Studios where his series is filmed, but the drive is well worth it. He commutes in a medium priced station wagon which he keeps to haul groceries and for skiing trips to the mountains in winter.

Dailey is more ambitious in the kitchen than most single men who settle for steak and a salad. He fixes veal picata, linguini and other Italian specialties.

He boasts that he is an inventive chef. Among his dinner guests the favorite is a horrible sounding concoction he calls Pork Chops Malibu.

He takes pork chops, covers them with peanut butter and puts them in a cake pan on top of strips of bacon. He cooks them 20 minutes, pours off the fat, then cooks them another 20 minutes with a canned cheese soup poured over the top.

Believe it or not, his friends clamor for second helpings.

Likes Girl Watching

Dan's stepdaughter, Donna, lives in a small garage apartment on the beach property and frequently acts as hostess for Dailey. His son, Dan III, is a student at the University of Southern California.

Because the NBC series is made in 11 days per show, and only four were produced this season, Dailey has a great deal of time to himself. Most of it is spent reading and girl watching. There is a pair of powerful binoculars for viewing the girls on the beach and, to a lesser textent, ships passing on the horizon.

Dan doesn't date much. He prefers to have a few couples in for dinner while he does the cooking. Most of them are people he has known in and out of show business over the past 30 years.

At one time he owned 60 foxhounds. Now he has no pets because he is never sure when he might be called out of town without warning to work in a stage production.

Dan swims in the ocean almost every day when the sun is shining. He also surf fishes right in front—or underneath—his house, catching perch, calico bass and bonita. Fish is a favorite entree in his house.

In open shirt, denim and bare feet, Dan Dailey might be mistaken for a beachcomber by the unsuspecting. He wouldn't have it any other way.

The Mariana Trench in the Pacific Ocean is 36,198 feet deep.

Fashionettes

By United Press International

Wrap and tie jewelry makes the scene for summer. Sample, from the Dubaux Collection designed by Michael Moraux: Many strands of seed pearl, 360 inches of it, to be worn at the neck, wrist or as a belt with clusters dangling in textured beads made of lacquered glass.

Don't tell the string players in the neighborhood, but kids are wearing violins on their feet. It is called a violin but it looks like a shoe —which it also is. Joe Famolare, designer of the "Violin" shoe, got the name from the vamp —which is shaped like a violin. No. It doesn't make music but it might squeak now and then — for the usual reason a shoe squeaks.

For the most feminine evenings, Luis Estevez, designer, promotes a lace chemise gown, floor-length. It is lined with alluring nude jersey and has a built in bustline support forr ease and control. The designer suggests it for romantic occasions.

The University of Missouri first admitted women students in 1868.

In accordance with Section 5-3(c) of the Charter of the City of Newton, notice is hereby given that a public hearing will be held on TUESDAY, JUNE 25, 1974, 7:45 p.m., at CITY HALL, on the Capital Improvement Program 1975-1980 as summarized below: (Program may be seen at Office of the City Clerk)

A. Program Summary

The proposed FY75 - FY80 Capital Improvement Program represents proposed expenditures totaling $16,189,000. Of this total, reimbursement of $4,186,500, or 26 percent from state and federal sources may be anticipated. Projects scheduled for the first program year, FY75 (July 1, 1974 to June 30, 1975), total $5,980,100, approximately 37 percent of the program total (exclusive of deferred projects).

The FY75 - FY80 Capital Improvement Program represents a significant departure from previous Capital Improvement Programs in that it reflects the initiation by the City of a conservation land acquisition program. This program, which reflects the recommendations of the Planning Department's 1969 Recreation-Open Space Plan, will expand significantly the lands held in public ownership for conservation purposes.

1. Schools

Four projects are scheduled for FY75: additions to the Underwood Elementary School and to South High School (Automotive Center), completion of the North High School parking area, and athletic fields and renovation of the old F.A. Day Junior High School as a permanent headquarters for school administrative functions. With the exception of the F.A. Day renovation, it is anticipated that approximately 65 percent of the total cost of these projects, including principal and interest on funded debt, will be refunded to the City through the School Building Assistance Bureau (reimbursements are scheduled over the life of bond issues.)

2. Library

The construction of a new main library has been reflected in previous Capital Improvement Programs as a future project. Recent discussion of the project has raised question regarding the future direction of library facility development within the City. The current Capital Improvement Program contains a recommendation that this question be resolved with the benefit of a formal study of alternative library facility systems.

3. Public Works

Public Works projects represent a total expenditure of $8,934,000, approximately 55 percent of total expenditures programmed. Public Works projects continue to include requests for traffic signals, street betterments and reconstruction, and improvements to sewer and water service systems. Also included in the FY75 - FY80 Program are: improvements to the City's solid waste disposal system, improvements of Public Works maintenance facilities, and new printing equipment for use by the Engineering Department. Substantial portions of these expenditures will be either self-financing (water improvements) or reimbursable to various extents (street betterments and reconstruction).

4. Recreation

Improvements to a wide range of recreation facilities, including parks, playgrounds, playfields and the Crystal Lake swimming area, are proposed. Included as a FY75 project is the acquisition of additional land at Allison Park, and programmed over the FY76 - FY80 period are major improvements to Crystal Lake, Cold Spring Park, the City Infirmary on Winchester Street, and Hunnewell Playground in Newton Corner.

5. Conservation

The Conservation Commission's Land Acquisition Program represents a substantial addition to the City's Capital Improvement Program. Proposed is the acquisition of thirteen parcels, encompassing approximately 105 acres, at a total cost of $1,400,000. These acquisitions are programmed over a four-year period (through FY78) and substantial reimbursements from state and federal programs (50 to 75 percent of acquisition cost) is anticipated.

Auction goes on through June 8

The Channel 2 Auction, being aired through June 8 over WGBH-TV, is involving hundreds of Newton people.

The general auction chairman is Hamilton Osgood of Chestnut Hill. Such well-known Newton personalities as Maxine Kumin, the Pulitzer Prize winning poetess, are serving as auctioneers. Newton people are also manning phones, modeling clothes, running bids and doing many of the "behind camera" chores of the auction, which it is hoped will bring in some $500,000 to carry on educational programs provided by the station.

According to Newton go-getting co-chairmen, Mrs. William R. Leitch and Mrs. J. Marc Rector, Newton merchants and individuals have donated almost $25,000 worth of merchandise to the auction.

Bronze Newton sculptor Polly Egelson discusses her 26 inch bronze, "The Family," with a visitor at the First National Bank in Boston. Ms. Egelson is one of the Newton artists who donated their work to the Channel 2 Auction, being aired through June 8.

Camera club show to open on June 10

Show-off No. 5, the Newton Free Library camera club's fifth annual spring photo show opens Monday evening, June 10, at 7:30 p.m. when club members host a reception at the Main Library, 414 Centre Street, Newton Corner.

Club president Leo Myers, with board members Phil Coyne, Jim Saret, and Jack Keough, have put together a show featuring black and white prints, color prints, and color slides, a representative selection of the talents of camera club members.

The show also includes photographs and slides by Herb Abrams, Florence Coslow, Ed Shade, Stan Cronig, and Mr. & Mrs. Rubin.

Interest in photography has been lively in Newton and skilled photographers as well as enthusiastic novices belong to the Newton Free Library camera club.

Field trips, photographic competitions among members, guest speakers, group shows, and lecturers are just a few of the club's activities.

Meetings are held on Monday evenings, twice a month and club officers and members welcome inquiries from potential members of all abilities junior high school age and up. Sign-up cards for the '74 - '75 season may be left in the box near the main circulation desk, or at any branch library.

Show-off No. 5 remains on view at the Newton Free Library until July 1 when an exhibit of paintings by Judy Stevens of Newton goes up for viewing.

Library hours at the Main Library are 9 a.m. - 9 p.m. Monday through Friday: 9 a.m. - 5:30 p.m. Saturdays, and 1 - 4 p.m. Sundays through June 15, when the Library begins its summer schedule.

During the summer schedule, the Library will be closed weekends through Sept. 2.

Registration under way for creative arts centers

Registration is now under way for the 1974 summer Newton creative arts centers.

Again there will be three centers in three school locations. Newton South High will house the secondary center (grades 7 - 12) while Mason-Rice and Peirce Elementary Schools will each house an elementary center (grade 1 - 6).

The centers will run from July 1 through August 2 and will open daily at 9 a.m.; the elementary centers will close at noon, the secondary centers at 12:30 p.m.

The Newton creative arts centers attempt to serve young people who have a strong interest in the arts. At each center a child may work at his own pace, with others on a group project or on his own program. Instructors are chosen for their rapport with young people as well as their skill as teachers and practitioners of the arts.

A portion of the curriculum changes each year as the centers respond to shifting interests of children or as a teacher with something "special" to offer is discovered. This year will see new programs in photography and television. There will be a dance specialist at each center, and the class in film animation will work with Super-8 sound.

The elementary centers will have two non-graded groups (first-second, and third-fourth) which will operate as an open classroom for all of the arts.

The first and second grade group at Mason-Rice will be based upon a new related arts program developed by a committee of Newton arts teachers. Fifth and sixth graders in each center will chose from an array of arts specialists.

Students will be accepted at the centers on a first come, first served basis. Tuition and fees for the total program is $60 with an additional lab fee of $10 for those students accepted in the film animation class.

Senior high students may, if they wish, work for credit in photography, ceramics, general art studio, and film animation.

There will be a total staff of 25 teachers, assistants for the elementary teachers, as well as 14 student teachers and community volunteers. The faculty at each center is as follows:

South High School: Robert Arruda, photograph; Linda Bickelman, dance; Thomas DePeter, drama; Yvonne Andersen, film animation; Gary Good, video tape TV programming; Willard Robinson, general art studio; Neil Jacobs, ceramics, assisted by Marc Glickstein; assistant in photography is Richard Sobel while Amy Kravitz and Paul Falcone will assist in film animation.

Mason-Rice Center: Anita Amado, dance; Clifford Crowther, drama; Carol Nocolucci, music; Carolyn Shapiro, general art studio; Arlene Bandes will have the related arts, grades one and two, assisted by Pamela Martin; Kenneth Roberts will teach grades three and four with Angela Capone as assistant.

Peirce Center: Carol Gladwin, drama; Anne-Marie Morre, general art studio, assisted by Nancy Whitney; Jane Lent, music; Barbara Tyler, dance; Gregory Hurray, related arts one and two, assisted by Christine Anderson; and Ellen Zitner, related arts three and four assisted by Jean Comeau.

An instrumental music program will be carried out by Robert Giorgi, Karen Wormwood, and Thomas Wormwood.

Brochures and registration forms have been distributed to all schools. If a child has not mentioned it, parents may check with their principal and-or the art teacher in the elementary schools; art, music, drama staffs in the junior high schools and senior highs, and the house offices in the senior highs.

For further information people may call the art office, 969-9810, ext. 297.

Mother and daughter to exhibit in Boston art show June 10-14

TWO Newton artists, Marie J. ViVardo and Regina ViVardo, will be exhibitors in a six women art show to be held at the Galerie of the Arts, Boston, June 10-14.

Other exhibitors are Mrs. Irene Morey, Marcia Blakemore, Ruth Boyce, and Marion Tuttle. The all-woman exhibit is being sponsored by New England artist Robert F. Morey.

Mrs. Marie ViVardo is an active member of both the Newton Art Association and the Copley Art Society. Besides her current involvement in numerous group exhibits at the Sidney Hill Country Club and R. H. Stearns, she has had one woman shows throughout New England and the South in past years.

She was a student of art at the Boston Museum School and received private tutelage from Boston Impressionist Scott Carbee.

She is an original art enthusiast, which reflects dominantly in he painting. She has become noted for her oriental character figurals depicting brightly costumed Geishas and Kabukis in familiar poses and scenes, reminscent of the now popular Japanese woodblock prints of Utamaro, Sharaku and Hiroshige. Of late she has extended the field of her figural depictions to include literary and historical characters.

Besides painting Mrs. ViVardo keeps busy as a licensed auctioneer, appraiser and art restorer.

Her daughter, Regina, has just recently started to exhibit. Previously known for her work as a classical pianist, she has aroused attention with her abstract painting techniques. She too attributes her style to her interest in oriental art, but it is the Chinese porcelain glazing techniques of the Tang and Sung Dynasty that are her inspiration.

Elementary School Orchestra to perform at Library on June 7

Fifty-nine young musicians from 18 Newton elementary schools will perform in the fifth annual spring concert at the Newton Free Library on Friday evening, June 7 at 7:30 p.m. with the All-Newton Elementary School Orchestra.

Led by Co-Directors Robert Giorgi and Mrs. Karen Wormwood, instrumental music teachers in the department of music, and under the aegis of John Harper, Coordinator of the Arts for Music, Newton Public Schools, the Orchestra's program ranges from Beethovan and Hummel, to Telemann and Berlioz.

Laura Jean Goldberg, Claflin School violinist and sixth grader, is concertmistress. Other orchestra members include Tim Bronk, Marie Boule, Lisa Ehrmann, Kim Hoffman, Leslie Kadwell, Steve Kaston, Becky Katsenes, Douglas Koller, Shara Lewis, Mary McGowan, Carol Meyer, Beth Mullen, Lynn Peck, Dan Powdermaker, Larry Pradell, Chris Pringle, Michael Robinson, Becky Saltzer, Sara Siegal, Theresa White and Marcy Widershien, all violins.

Also Penny Barker and Sabine Wils, viola; Beth Donaldson, Marc Hammarlund, John Eric Sandberg, cellos; Jenny Shader, bass; Joel Bard and Debbie Lewis, oboes.

Pamela Bowers, Janice Casey, Diran Heller, Andres Hurwitz, Julie Miller, Bumby Schnitzer and Susan Wessel, flutes.

Also Julie Bowers, Barbara Green, Robert Giorgi, Aram Heller, Sherry Levin, Mike Pringle, Harry Raphael, and Kevin Roberts, clarinets.

Cara Cotrigno, alto sax; Joe Conneley, Bob Drew, Dan Martin, Tim Martin, David Pill, Glen Seidner, and Joris Wils, trumpets; Margaret Prager, French horn; Dan Murphy and Bradley Stolbach, trombones: Bud Gartland, tuba; Jeffrey Nottonson, piano; and David Birmingham and David Ponds, drums.

Boys and girls audition for places in the orchestra, which rehearses once a week during the school year and draws its membership from the city's elementary schools. Throughout the year, concerts are performed at different schools in the city. The orchestra has presented eleven concerts thus far this year.

The concert is free and open to the public. A wide selection of related books and records from the Library's collection will be on view and available for borrowing.

Art exhibit planned for Boston Common

Nine Newton area residents are among more than 300 artists and craftsmen who will exhibit their works at the fourth annual June Art in the Park, a public exhibit to be held on the Boston Common on June 8 and 9 from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Exhibitors include Jeffrey Doyle of 46 Newtonville Ave., Newton; Robert Kaufman of 58 Roundwood Rd., Newton Upper Falls; and Jo Anne Cooper of 20 Westgate Rd., Newton Centre.

Also, Anatol Zukerman of 283 Tremont St.; Eobert A. Kaplan of 21 Ivanhoe St.; Marjorie S. Millen of 73 Clark St., Newton Centre; ANGELA Petrovic of 152 SUFFOLK Rd., Chestnut Hill; Mark Rabin of 31 Dunicklee St., Newton Highlands, and Deborah Citron of 11A Faxon Street, Neewton.

More than 2,000 feet of oils, watercolors, photography and charcoals, as well as sculpture and crafts of all kinds—many for sale—will be displayed along the paths of the Boston Common near Beacon, Tremont and Park streets.

June Art in the Park is co-sponsored this year by the Mayor's Office of Cultural Affairs, the Boston Parks and Recreation Department and the "Boston Phoenix."

Visitors to this open-air gallery on the Common will have the strains of live folk, jazz, string and gospel music to view the art by during the hours of the exhibit.

Open space concern grows

Newton residents and city officials are becoming more and more concerned about loss of open space and failure to acquire what is left.

Another expert opinion has been added to the growing body of thought that, in the long run, Prompt purchase of remaining open space by city is the wise course.

Most recently, city acquisition of Newton's four private golf courses has been recomminded to save both open space and money.

Robert Brandwein, vice-president of Harbridge House, economic consultants, made the recommendation Tuesday night at a meeting of the Open Space Committee of the Newton Conservatiors, Inc., and followed up his report with distribution of a 60 - page documentationof his conclusions.

The four golf courses comprise 625 acres, more than 5 per cent of Newton's total area, and ar all presently zoned for single-family residence.

In an effort to save open space, any communities have created zoning for planned unit development (PUD), and that is probably the way Newton's large tracts of land would go, Brandwein said, but results have been generally unsatisfactory.

Typically Bradwein said, 25 per cent of land given over to PUD is retained as open space, with most developments having 700 to 1,000 dwelling units on a minimum of 100 acres.

Professional planners were most favorable toward PUD, followed by elected officials. According to Brandwein, "On paper, it sounds great; in practice, very few communities like it."

The problem lies partly in the inexperience of most public officials with the concept of PUD and the subsequent chance that experienced developers could take advantage of the community. The "arbitrary power" that local officials would have over the zoning and density bonuses inherent in PUD could hinder the PUD proposal, Brandwein said.

An amendment to Newton zoning ordinances to allow PUD has been before the aldermanic City Planning Committee ffor more than a year.

Fewer schoolchildren, better site development, and a commitment from the builder, because the development usually requires several years, are among the advantages of PUD cited by Brandwein.

If the golf course's 625 acres wer e all developed by PUD, Brandwein estimated, the result would be 1,474 new units occupied by 4,717 residents.

The revenue available to the city in real estate and automobile excise taxes has been calculated by Brandwein at $4.8 million for such development. He based his figure on $24,000-27,000 cost for a two-bedroom garden apartment or townhouse up to $60,000 for a sigle-family detached house.

But the total cost to the city for municipal and schoool services would be $4.4 million, Brandwein said, leaving $448,518 as an apparent surplus, or about $1.20 on the tax rate.

The $448.518 does not, however, include what Brandwein called "environmental costs." These he outlined as the cost of pollution, the decrease in property values resulting from loss of open space, the hidden costs of additional landfill requirement, water pollution, etc.

No price tags were put on these environmental costs.

In the comparison of costs of acquisition versus development of the golf courses, no mention is made of the cost of maintaining 625 acres of land.

Having established that the cost to the city would just about offset the revenue gained by the city in allowing development of the golf courses, Brandwein went on the to cost of acquisition of the land.

Using a per-acre value of $20,000, Brandwein says the total cost over a 20-year period, including interest and 50 per cent federal funding, would be $9.7 million.

With an additional 25 per cent reimbursement from the state funding programs apply only to land acquired for recreation purposes. If some of the land were devoted to low-income housing, an alternative mentiond but not advocated in

More money sought for learning disability staff

By TOM GRAVES
Of the Graphic Staff

Newton teachers filled the auditorium at Day Junior High School this week to show support for 48 learning disability teachers who are having a contract dispute with the School Committee.

The contract was not a School Committee agenda item at the open part of its Monday night meeting, but some 300 teachers waited patiently to hear discussion of the issue during an audience participation period at the end of the meeting.

According to the Massachusetts Teachers Association, the learning disability teachers have been offered a 5.5 per cent cost of living increase.

David Geikie, president of Newton Teachers Association, told the School Committee that learning disability teachers are "grossly underpaid." He noted that their starting salary is $5.25 an hour and their final salary is $8.08 an hour.

Geikie claimed that the starting salary in Cambridge is $10 an hour.

Geikie asked that learning disability teachers be given both a salary correction and a cost of living increase. He said that the Newton Teachers Association will not object if the learning disability teachers get more than a 5.5 per cent cost of living increase, which is what the rest of the staff is scheduled to receive next year.

The Newton Teachers Association is bargaining for the learning disability teachers for the first time this year.

Earlier in the meeting, School Committee Chairwoman Eleanor Rosenblum pointed out that the budget line item for learning disabilities has grown from $35,000 to $250,000 in the last four years.

Dr. Joseph C. Clancy, a school psychologist, said that the proposed budget for learning disabilities next year is inadequate in view of Chapter 766. "It will not meet the need," Clancy said.

Mrs. Rosenblum commented that the School Committee passed the learning disabilities budget as submitted by program co-ordinator Dr. Jesse Grimes.

Mrs. Ellen Davis of Auburndale said that the quality of the program is superb, but that "quantity is another story." She said that there are children being denied entrance to the program.

Several Newton educators spoke favorably about the learning disabilities teachers. Thomas Linn, principal of Warren Junior High, said that "the learning disabilities people at Warren have done a magnificent job."

The audience responded to several statements with loud applause.

The scheduled agenda item for the School Committee was the program of Day Junior High.

Principal Edward C. Martin said that the faculty at Day cares about kids and what they teach.

North High parking plan revised

Since last Friday, when members of the Newton North High School Neighborhood Association were told that the location of the parking lot had been set, Planning Directoor Charles Thomas has come up with a slightly revised plan.

The revised plan will be submitted to the School Committee and the Board of Aldermen for their approval, Thomas said, and will probably have a public hearing.

The new plan provides the minimum 300 spaces required by the School Department and the School Committee, but does not meet the objection of the neighborhood association as to access and egress.

Basically the same plan was presented to the neighborhood association at the hastily called Friday meeting, but only 235 parking spaces were provided.

The neighborhood association countered with its so-called Sahagian plan, which it first submitted to the Planning Department last December.

The differences between the two plans are in the location of the parking. The city has located the parking directly behind the student mall, which is behind the northern end of the high school. Elm Road would end at Kimball Terrace, and the present temporary lot at Kimball Terrace and Elm Road woould be incorporated into the permanent lot. A new road would be put in from the northerly end of the parking lot to Walnut Street.

The Sahagian plan calls for a parking area extending easterly from the student mall toward Walnut Street, with access and egress on Walnut Street.

Harold Scheibert, president of the association, said Tuesday that even with the additional parking spaces, the plan does not meet the approval of the neighborhood association.

Scheibert has felt, and still feels, that the city plan, which has the only access and egress on Elm Road, does not take the wishes of the immediate neighbors into account.

Residents of Blithedale Road, Kimball Terrace, and Elm Road do not want the traffic generated by the school passing by their homes, and they have said that the Walnut Street access would be the "natural approach," since Walnut Street is slated for widening at the point they suggest for the parking lot road.

The plan for locating the parking immediately behind the student mall was called several times by Chief Administrative Officer James Salter a "policy decision", apparently meaning that the decision has been made irrevocably to proceed with that location.

Thomas said the parking lot could be in use by next October.

Superintendent of schools Aaron Fink at the Friday meeting reiterated the position of the school that a minimum of 300 spaces is necessary, while the plan presented at tat meetng provided forr only 235 spaces.

Fink, confirmed by Richard Mechem, NNHS principal, said that if the 300 spaces were impossible to attain while taking

Harrington will seek reelection

State Representative Peter F. Harrington has filed nomination papers for reelection.

Harrington, former vice president of the Newton Board of Aldermen, was first elected to the State Legislature in 1972. House Speaker David M. Bartley, appointed him to the Joint Committee on Urban Affairs. For the past year he has served on a special subcommittee redrafting the Zoning Enabling Act.

As a freshman legislator, Harrington received a high honor when his colleagues elected him chairman of the Middlesex County Legislators Caucus. This bipartisan group of representatives is actively working to enact reform legislation for Middlesex County. Under Harrington's leadership, the caucus has started a procedure to review the Middlesex County Budget which included meeting with county officials and others before the budget was submitted.

Land Use covers 10 public hearings

The aldermanic Land Use Committee this week made its way through a schedule of 10 public hearings.

Dominating the action were plans to rezone land in Ward 5, put a nursery school at 44 Davis Ave. in West Newton, and build 10 townhouses on Florence Street in Ward 7.

Aldermen also heard, without opposition, about the planned move of the Multi-Service Center from Newtonville to 866 Beacon St. in Newton Centre; and saw representatives of Freeport Inc. reappear for the yearly renewal of its permit.

Meeting in committee after the hearings, Land Use members also voted 5-2 in favor of recommending a proposal for parking lot expansion made by Cramer Electronics.

It was the only matter they voted on. The subjects of the hearings were not discussed.

Cramer, on Wells Avenue in Newton at 128 Industrial Park, would like to use some of the "peripheral" floodplain and would take part of a knoll on its propert to expand parking. The firm has already gone to the Conservation Commission to talk over infringing on the floodplain.

Ald. Terry Morris and Susan Schur have asked that land on Sweet Street berezoned from its current manufacturing zoning to private residence zoning.

"We have a unique opportunity to rectify inappropriate zoning," Schur said. "More manufacturing would only add to the congestion and noise already suffered by residents."

Morris quoted figures to support his claim that the city could generate more tax revenue by building homes on the land than it could by building businesses.

He said he was addressing himself to the argument that is often made in support of manufacturing districts that businesses do produce more tax revenue.

A spokesman for WHDH, the radio station that owns a piece of the land in question, rose to ask the committee to hold onto the zone change request until the company has a chance to present a plan of its own.

Earlier this year, the station was interested in locating a studio adjacent to its Sweet Street broadcasting tower but later withdrew the proposal.

Asked if there were any plans to build on the land if it were rezoned, Morris replied, "there are no plans to develop this land now."

Maria Kreeft, petitioning to run a nursery school at her Davis Street home, ran into what appeared to be unexpected opposition to her plan.

Mrs. Kreeft, mother of four, said plans were to run the nursery school from 9 to 11:45 a.m. Monday through Thursday for eight weeks this summer. The enrollment is expected to be 10 or 12 children.

"Our service would be unique,"Mrs. Kreeft said, pointing out there are 42 young children in the immediate area. "The need in the neighborhood is small but acute."

"At no time did we plan to put forth a large scale operation," she added.

A petition signed by 22 people in favor of the nursery school was given to the committee. Opponents produced a petition from 32 residents that are opposed.

Ward 3 Ald. Richard J. Bullwinkle also spoke in opposition to the plan.

Describing the situation as a "classic problem" Bullwinkle told the committee the abutters most directly affected by Mrs. Kreeft's proposal are against her opening the school.

"It is a commercial venture going into a private residence district," Bullwinkle noted, "and it does present a potential traffic hazard."

Most of the neighbors who spoke said they objected to the proposal on the basis of having a commercial operation in a private residence neighborhood.

One also pointed out that while Mrs. Kreeft was saying the school would only be

'Father Charlie' cares

By ELIZABETH McKINNON
Of The Graphic Staff

School guidance counselor, chairman of the Youth Commission, member of the mayor's committe on health, surrogate father to hundred of Newton kids, Roman Catholic priest — these are not necessarily different people.

Rev. Charles Coyle

Rev. Charles G. Coule, S.J., is all of these and more, but he is probably best known by the young people, many of whom call him "Father Charlie."

Born in New Orleans, Father Coyle had a background of schooling and then teaching in the Deep South between entering the Society of Jesus in 1952 and being ordained a priest in 1965. Then while studying for a doctorate in counseling psychology at Boston College in 1969, he first applied for a part-tiime job at Newton South High School.

"By that time I was 37 years old," Father Coyle said, "and I was getting a little bored with college."

Father Coyle's long experience in teaching, and several intervening positions as therapist, had led him into guidance counseling, where he thought he could offer something extra to young people.

He decided after his first semester at Boston College not to continue his work there and asked permission from the Jesuit Father Provincial in charge of this region to work full time in the schools.

"The Jesuits have always been kind and understanding," Father Coyle said. "All they require is that I check in once a year on what I'm doing."

Five years later, Father Coyle is still a guidance counselor, but some time ago began to feel that wasn't enough. So he accepted the mayor's appointment as chairman of the Youth Commission, at a point at which the Youth Commission was foundering in a sea of well-meaning but unproductive meetings.

But politics is not a temptation. "I'm not interested, he said, because I'd rather be my own man, not responsible to anybody but God."

Involvement with kids on drugs at Newton South High School then drew him to the Advisory Committee on Health when the city and all its agencies were trying to cope with the drug problem. He still serves on that committee.

His being a priest is the reason forr all his other work, but he still fulfills his priestly duties in many ways — being the nuns' chaplain at Newton College, being on call for emergencies at Newton - Wellesley Hospital, by serving mass at his home for anybody that happens to be there.

His participation in school, city and church has one goal, Father Coyle says — "to reflect God's presence in the world, to bring more truth, honesty, beauty into the world, to help in people's development of themselves."

As a guidance counselor, he looks at himself as a reconciler of the discipline of education with the needs of the adolescent.

As a substitute father whose house is always open to kids — troubled or just looking for some one to talk to — he is also the reconciler between youth and family.

In both spheres he emphasizes the importance of values. "Kids learn values by imitation and identification. Some of my colleagues say I shouldn't moralize when a kid asks me to help him, but I say,

Backman bill ups AFDC benefits

The Massachusetts State Senate has given final approval to legislation filed by Sen. Jack H. Backman (D-Brookline), which will provide a yearly cost-of-living increase for recipients of Aid to Families with Dependent Children, general relief, and veterans benefits. It now goes to the House of Representatives for action.

The legislation utilizes the rise in the Consumer Price Index (CPI) for the previous year and provides a percentage increase in benefits based on a percentage increase of the CPI.

Backman noted that there have been only two cost-of-living increases for AFDC recipients since 1970, while the actual cost of living for that period has risen over 20 per cent.

"I believe the Commonwealth of Massachusetts has a moral commitment to provide our needy poor with an income commensurate with the skyrocketing cost of living. The framework of this legislation is such that it does not make the recipient rich, but allows them to live with a modicum of decency," said Sen. Backman.

According to official figures, a family of four in Massachusetts who is eligible for AFDC benefits receives about $4,300 per year. On the other hand, the U.S. Department of Labor, Bureau of Labor Statistics, has declared that a family of four requires a minimum of $8,100 per year.

"It is my goal to create an environment in which every child can grow up and develop to his or her full potential in life regardless of physical, emotional or social disabilities. This bill is the first step in that direction. Next year I will endeavor to provide our children with more tangible benefits," concluded Sen. Backman.

Dukakis to clarify position on imbalance

As a result of serious doubts expressed by members of the Newton Coalition for New Politics about his stand on racial imbalance in Massachusetts public schools, gubernatorial candidate Michael Kukakis will explain his position to the group on Wednesday, June 19, at 8 p.m. in the Film Hall of Newton North High School.

Mr. Dukakis' stand, which has been called a "return to separate but equal," drew sharp criticism at the last meeting of the Coalition.

During the meeting members will discuss endorsement of Cong. Robert F. Drinan and State Rep. David Mofenson, Peter Harrington, and Lois Pines. Candidates Joseph DeNucci and Richard McGrath will discuss issues and receive questions from the floor prior to NCNP deliveration on endorsing one of the two candidates for state representative.

Lewis Songer, executive vice-president of the Newton-Needham Chamber of Commerce, will present the need for community support to secure funds from the new manpower act which replaces OEO.

The public is invited to all meetings of the Newton Coalition.

Police report

Man faces burglary, assault charges

A 19-year old Needham man was arrested by Newton Police early Monday morning and charged with burglary and assault upon occupants.

Loring C. Nye, 72 Beaufort Ave., was arrested after police were informed that a man had forced his way into a Centre Street, Newton Centre apartment. The arresting officers were Sgt. Frank R. Gorgone and Officers Vincent P. Lipoma and Harold Hollie.

A man reportedly forced his way into the apartment of two women and got into bed with one woman, and then the other.

Nye's case was continued in Newton District Court to June 25. The offenses listed on the court complaint were: burglary, assault upon occupants, breaking and entering in the nighttime in a dwelling house with intent to commit a felony to wit rape, and assault.

A 33-year old Revere man was charged with two counts of assault and battery with a dangerous weapon on Thursday after an alleged macing incident in Waban Square.

Stephen Collins, 40 Cushman Ave., pleaded not guilty to the charges in Newton District Court and was released on personal recognizance. The case was continued to June 27.

A Waban woman and her granddaughter were reportedly accidental victims of the mace incident. They were taken to Newton-Wellesley Hospital by Newton Police.

Police said that a third woman was believed involved in the incident, but that she had disappeared.

Police were informed of the incident by an anonymous phone call. An Edison worker told a route office that he had seen the incident and gave a description of the assailant.

Newton Police apprehended six youths on Monday night in connection with destruction of playground equipment at Bowen School. The youths were turned over to their parents and a police spokesman said that complaints may be sought in Newton District Court.

Boston Police called Newton Police for assistance on Sunday in regard to a stolen motor vehicle. Five suspects were being chased near Gethsemene Cemetery.

Newton Police assisted in the apprehension of four suspects and they were turned over to Boston Police.

A breaking and entering was reported at 26 Larch Rd., Waban on Sunday night. Entrance was reportedly gained by breaking glass in a rear door. Reported missing were a color television, a 12-13 piece Tiffany place setting, and assorted jewelry and clothing.

Another break was reported at 50 Fairlee Rd. Waban on Monday. Glass in a rear door was reportedly broken, and a dining room and two bedrooms ransacked. Reported missing were several articles of jewelry. A list was to follow.

A refreshment stand at the 12th hole of Brae Burn Country Club was reportedly broken into either Friday night or early Saturday morning. Candy, cakes and tonic were reported missing.

Police reported that they recovered five stolen bicycles over the weekend.

Chief Perkins offers advice on fire safety

As summer vacation time approaches, Chief Frederick A. Perkins, Jr., of the Newton Fire Department, wishes to bring some important items tothe attention of the citizens of Newton regarding fire safety:

When having cool outs or family picnics always make sure that the grill is loated on level ground to prevent it from tipping over.

Never allow children to play near grills — do not allow horse-play in the area — by people present.

Under no conditions should gasoline ever be used to start a charcoal fire.

When travelling, check with auoomobile clubs as to the availability of fuel for your trip. Never carry containers of gasoline in your car trunk or inside as escaping fumes can make a bomb of the vehicle.

When staying in motels or hotels, check the number of exits and locations of same on your floor — check the inside of the room door where proper fire exit procedure is posted.

When staying with friends or relatives, check your sleeping quarters for a second means of escape in case of fire.

Remember — never refill the gasoline tank of a power lawn mower or outboard motor while the engine is hot — this could cause a flash fire with very serious or fatal results.

Although not a fire hazzard, Chief Perkins, reminds all to use "common sense" around poll areas and while out boating — fatal accidents due to foolishness are just as heart breaking as any other accident.

With these few reminders and a few minutes of thought before starting your picnic, trip, pool or boat party, Chief Perkins, is sure people can all enjoy a happy carefree fire safe summer.

Correction

In the May 23 story on the Recreation Commission meeting it incorrectly stated that an exercise trail is to be located on the Burr School playground in Auburndale.

The trail will be located at Lyons Park in Auburndale.

Banking reform attained by Fishman legislation

State Senator Irving Fishman's package of 1974 banking reform legislation is advancing into law. Nine of his bills have already passed the Senate and House and been signed into law by the governor. They provide for such reforms as mandatory notice of maturity for term deposit accounts, improved loan appraisal regulations, and annual publication of bank balance sheets.

"Banking reform legislation must not be overlooked simply because it's complex," Sen. Fishman said. "The industry needs consumer watchdogs. Banking reforms should be high on the agenda of any broad-based consumer protection program."

Other Fishman 1974 banking reform legislation advancing in the Senate and House relates to his activities as chairman of the Special Commission to Investigate the Failure of the Surety Bank and Trust Company of Wakefield. After conducting a year-and-a-half of research and hearings into the issues of white-collar bank crimes and bank failures, Fishman proposed a series of substantive changes in the Commonwealth's banking policies.

He is sponsoring bills to regulate borrowing by officers, directors, trustees or majority shareholders of savings banks, cooperative banks, trust companies and credit unions.

"The major problem discovered in the Surety failure, the Brighton Five Cent Savings Bank difficulty and other bank defalcations is fraud on the part of bank officers, directors or trustees," Fishman said. "The fraud usually involves collusion and results in loans to people connected to the bank in some capacity. These loans become uncollectable and the bank has either serious losses or collapses altogether."

Fishman's corrective legislation which passed the Senate and is now in third reading in the House requires a reporting system designed to have the Banking Commissioner closely monitor all loans to bank officers or any business entity they own or control.

Furthermore, the proposed law would prohibit the extension of any preferential rate of interest or other preferential treatment to any such officer or director. It also would tighten current regulations by closing the loophole of loans to organizations controlled by bank officers and directors.

"Institutions like banks are established to serve the needs of the public, not the other way around," Fishman explained. "It's the consumer who needs the protecting, not the banks."

If Fishman's Surety package is adopted it will be easier to investigate bank loans to directors and other officers, and to appraise the value of the land they mortgage. It will also give the Commissioner of Banks the power to directly remove an officer, director or trustee of a banking institution, something which all federal agencies are empowered to do now.

Prendeville to present paper at conference

Paul W. Prendiville, senior vice president of Camp Dresser & McKee Inc., of Boston and a resident of 51 Parker Street, Newton Center, has co-authored a paper entitled "Prospect Water Treatment Works for Sydney, Australia — World's Largest Direct Filtration Facility."

The paper will be given on Wednesday, June 19, at the 94th annual conference of the 25,000-member American Water Works Association, a professional organization comprised of environmental engineers and public works officials from all over the world.

The conference, to be held in Boston, from June 16 to June 21, will its headquarters at the Sheraton-Boston Hotel. Meetings of the conference will be held in the hotel and at the John B. Hynes Veterans Auditorium, which also will be used for conference exhibits.

Prendiville has been with Camp Dresser & McKee Inc. since 1959. He has been involved with many of the firm's major projects, including several overseas assignments.

City's 'dream book' up for hearing

By ELIZABETH McKINNON
Of the Graphic Staff

The "Let's Play Capital Impgovements' game will start again on June 25 with a public hearing at City Hall.

"Capital improvements" are generally considered a public facility or piece of equipment that has a long life and a cost of more than $10,000.

Under the city charter, a five-year program of these items must be submitted at least 30 days before the final date for submission of the annual budget, but Newton has always had trouble meshing the capital improvement program (CIP) with the budget.

This year was no different in that respect. The new CIP for 1975-80, dated March 1, was not actually received by the city until April 26, well after the approval of the 1974-75 budget.

Planning Director Charles Thomas says, however, that many of the items in the '75-'80 CIP have been incorporated into the 1974-75 budget.

But when did the citizens get the opportunity to give input? The budget for this year has laready been approved, and now a public hearing is being held on CIP items, some of whichhare already in the budget, some not.

Again under the charter, the public hearing is required to be held not less than two weeks after the publication of the CIP.

This year's hearing will be almost two months to the day after official publication.

The intent of the Charter Commission, which set the CIP dates and also made the acceptance of the CIP by the Board of Aldermen mandatory, seems to have been to have the CIP drawn up, heard publicly, and adopted by the Board of Aldermen before the budget is approved by the Board and signed by the mayor, so that Newton citizens will be able to comment on items proposed for the next five years and on their priority.

Last year, the CIP was submitted before the budget, but was referred to the City Planning Committee, where it languished for many months, undergoing some revisions now and then, until finally reaching the Board for approval early this year.

Apparently a change in the charter, one of many contemplated, will be necessary to get the CIP back in gear with the budgetary process, since the new fiscal cycle of July-June has thrown it more out of whack.

The CIP for 1975-80 calls for expenditures totaling over $16 million, of which the city expects state and federal reimbursement of over $4 million.

The greatest amount ($8.9 million) will be spent on the Public Works Department, followed in decreasing order by schools, recreation, conservation, Fire Department and Police Department.

Copies of the capital improvement program are available at the office of the City Clerk, City Hall.

Advanced tennis lessons may be given

Tennis lessons directed toward the intermediate and advanced player will be offered under the sponsorship of the Newton Recreation Department if the Recreation Commission approves them at its Monday, June 17, meeting.

Harvey Harrison, currently ranked 12 in New England by the NELTA, has volunteered to give the free lessons.

The lessons, if the commission approves them, will be given twice a week on Tuesday and Thursdays beginning Tuesday, June 18.

Reservations can be made through the Recreation Department, 969-3171. Enrollment is too be limited to 32 people.

The first three lessons will deal with equipment, strokes, mechanics and mental awareness toward developing conditinal reflexes. The remaining lessons will focus on strategy in singles and doubles play.

Harrison, an electrical engineer, has taught tennis for the New England Youth Foundation, New England Close the Gap Program, the Agawan Hunt Club and Sidney Hill Country Club.

NCDF wants Hatch Act hearing waived

By ELEANOR SIEGEL
Graphic Correspondent

In an effort to speed up a proposed project to construct 50 apartments, the Newton Community Development Foundation (NCDF) appeared before the Conservation Commission June 5 to ask them to waive a Hatch Act hearing, stating they felt the legislation did not apply to them. Twenty of the apartments are to be utilized for low income housing.

An aldermanic order requires NCDF to come before the Commission for the hearing. The Hatch Act, officially known as the Wetlands Protection Act, gives the commission authority to regulate the alteration of streams, ponds or other wetlands to prevent the danger of flooding or pollution. Violation of the Hatch Act carries criminal penalties, i.e., a fine of up to $100 or 6 months in prison or both.

Marc Slotnick, who made the presentation on behalf of the NCDF, feared a hearing would delay the project until spring when construction costs might be considerably higher. Slotnick said that Howard Levine, City Solicitor, "shared the view that there is a question we come under the (Hatch Act) procedures." Levine denied he said this.

Juris Alksnitis, senior planner for the planning department suggested to the commission that "since the need for housing is well established, the commission can exercise discretionary powers and achieve the methodology through other means than the Hatch Act."

The commission was not inclined to waive the hearing, but agreed that members of NCDF could appear at the June 19 meeting for further discussion.

Although the commissioners were united on the stand they should take on the NCDF proposal, they were somewhat divided on their position regarding Cramer Electronics, Inc. Cramer wants to expand its building and parking facilities at the Newton-At-128 Industrial Park.

The attorney, Anthony Medaglia, was seeking guidance from the commissioners on several proposed site plan revisions to determine which plan was the least objectionable from the standpoint of regulation under the Wetlands Protection Act.

The original WPA permit was issued in December, 1968, and expired May 2 again subjecting the area to the Hatch Act.

NRA gets approval to modify footbridge access

MDC Commissioner John W. Sears has notified the Newton Redevelopment Authority that plans have been approved to modify access to the footbridge in back of the Shipley Company loading dock Lower Falls.

This means the authority can move ahead on the development on the south side of Washington Street.

Shipley had proposed this modification so that the trucks coming and going from its plant could get in and out without blocking Washington Street traffic as is the present case.

In a letter to the NRA, Sears stated that the current plans "do reflect a greater awareness of the value of the river bank location." Shipley will fund the development of the plan.

While Shipley's plan was approved, the NRA sent a preliminary plan submitted by Gregorian's back to the drawing board. The plan was turned down by Halasz and Halasz, design consultants for the NRA.

However, all is still not going smoothly in the NRA's efforts to move ahead. A tenant in the house in the middle of the commercial project has refused to move thus far and the project cannot procede without the demolition of her house. Members of the authority, notable Otis Robinson, have spent considerable time going over options with the tenant. However, the authority felt it has a responsibility to make the site available, thus they voted to serve a writ of summary process, or eviction notice. And they plan to continue to work with the tenant to find adequate housing.

In addition to these problems, the NRA was presented with a letter by Morris Kobrick, stating that he will be unable to participate in votes dealing with developer, Spaulding and Slye. Kobrick explained that as a trustee of "certain unnamed trusts" since the 1950's, he holds title to land in Lexington which is being rezoned for development. The development for the parcel will be Spaulding and Slye. Kobrick's letter stated that neither he nor any member of his family had any financial interest in the land, that he did have a "responsibility to the beneficiary."

Kobrick said he did not know how long he would have to abstain from voting and declined to comment on the question of whether he could serve the NRA effectively while not voting on matters pertaining to Spaulding and Slye.

Streetworkers might stay on all year

There seems to be little doubt that Newton will soon have four streetworkers, year-round and full time, out working with Newton's young people.

Both the aldermanic Public Health & Public Safety Committee and the Finance Committee have approved the appropriation of $6,784 to fill out a total of $15,152 needed for the fiscal year 1974-75.

Of the total amount, $13,152 will pay for three full-time workers under the federal ACTION program. The federal government will then supply one VISTA worker at no cost to the city.

The full Board of Aldermen votes on the request for appropriation at its June 18 meeting.

If the Newton-Wellesley-Weston Multi-Service Center receives permissive use to move into a large house on Beacon Street near Centre Street, Newton Centre, two workers will use it as a base of operations. The two other workers will be attached to the Newton Community Service Centers in West Newton.

According to Ms. Jane Pitt, director of the Department of Human Resources, the streetworkers will go to parks, school grounds, and other places where young people tend to congregate, contacting kids who do not use the traditional resources of the city.

The needs are widespread, Ms. Pitt said, among the 14-18-year-olds. To this age group the streetworkers will offer short-term counseling and will be "sympathetic and supportive listeners."

The full-time program is an outgrowth of last year's summer program that was considered highly successful, although only two workers were available.

Michael Furstenberg, who works for Multi-Service Center in Wellesley, said he is known as "something akin to a social worker."

"At first kids wondered who and what I was," Furstenberg said. Some thought he was some sort of undercover agent. But gradually the youngsters began to approach him indirectly, and eventually he was seeing about 20 kids a week, and conducting an informal therapy group.

Furstenberg used the school as a base of operations during the school year.

In Newton the Youth Commission (which will also make recommendations on the hiring of the streetworkers), the Department of Human Resources and representatives of the Multi-Service Center and the Community Centers will be responsible for overall monitoring of the program. Clinical backup will be provided by the Newton Guidance Clinic, the state Department of Mental Health, Freeport and other agencies as required.

The program, if approved by the Board of Aldermen, should be in full operation by July 15.

The ACTION grant is for one year, renewable by mutual consent, Ms. Pitt said.

Arnold Kublin resigns

Another department head in the city administration has resigned.

Arnold Kublin, who has been director of personnel for the past six months, will be leaving the end of the month to take a position with a jewelry manufacturing company in Providence, R.I.

Kublin said the new job offer came some time after he had assumed his duties in Newton. He had answered a "blind" ad, he said, before applying to Newton. The new job pays "considerably" more money, Kublin said.

"I have not been dissatisfied in Newton," Kublin said, despite the fact that his budget request for 1974-75 was cut.

"But to accomplish what is asked in the ordinance setting up the Personnel Department can't be done with a staff of two," he added.

Asked whether he thought he had made any inroads toward getting the department operating, Kublin pointed to the department's involvement in labor relations, labor negotiations, and safety practices.

Mayor Theodore Mann has reactivated the search committee to screen and interview applicants for the job of personnel director.

Marttila to speak

Americans for Democratic Action will have John Marttila, political consultant, as its featured speaker at an annual garden party fundraiser on Saturday, June 15 at the home of Nan and Steve Friedlaender, 52 Hyde Avenue, West Newton.

Cocktails and Buffet dinner will be served from 6 - 9 p.m. and reservations at $10 per person can be made through: ADA, 3 Joy Street, Boston, o2108, or by calling 523-3631.

First aid course

The Newton Chapter, American Red Cross, will offer a standard first aid course beginning July 8.

Classes will be held at the Chapter House, 21 Foster Street, Newtonville, on the following Monday evenings from 7-9 p.m.: July 8, July 15, July 22, and July 29.

This eight-hour course provides valuable information for treatment of burns, poisoning, shock, deep wounds, fractures, and other emergency situations which occur in the home, business and on the highway.

YMCA announces summer programs

The Newton YMCA has announced three physical programs for children and adults that will be offered this summer.

For boys and girls three years old to 15 years old, swimming lessons will be offered Saturday mornings, beginning June 22, at the Y's Chickami Recreation Center. Three groups - tiny tots (3-5), tadpoles (6-7), and regulars (8-15) - will be taught by YMCA instructors in the Olympic-size outdoor pool. The cost is $12 for the eight-week program.

For adults, tennis lessons with M.I.T. instructor Hy Greenbaum will be offered on the Y's clay court. Courses three-weeks in length begin June 24, July 22, and August 19. The six-lesson program costs $22.

Also for adults, scuba lessons with a certified YMCA instructor begin June 18 and continue for eight weeks. The course, which includes three open-water dives, is vital to beginners since certification is now required to purchase oxygen for diving. All equipment is supplied by the Y.

For further information about these programs, all of which are open to members and non-members alike, call the Y at 244-6050.

Beaconwood bids expire — what next?

The Newton Housing Authority has been unable to get bids extended on its Beaconwood Road 20-unit family housing development.

The question now is whether the Housing Authority may go to the second lowest bidder or must go through the whole bidding process again.

The low bidder, P.J. Stella of Wakefield, declined to extend his bid again after doing so once last month.

The state funding agency for the housing, the Department of Community Affairs, stipulated that the city must have voted to appropriate $150,000 toward site devdlopment of the property before it would approve the total funding of over $1 million.

The delay occasioned by the appropriation process required the bid extension.

Stella was successful in getting subcontractors to extend their bids to him once, but was unable to guarantee that he could meet the original construction costs now.

The difference between the first and second lowest bidders was not significant at the time of bidding, but if the construction must be rebid, cost escalation and the availability of contractors will be the unknown factors.

Presumably, if new bids are obtained DCA approval will be required again.

A meeting was held Wednesday morning between members of the Housing Authority and the DCA to find out how to proceed, but no decision was immediately available.

The Highlands

Newton Highlands has been, for the last decade, usually quiet, content and without any big problems and has really had no need for an improvement society.

The people appreciate the stability of the neighborhood and the excellence of Hyde School, which serves as a unifying force in the community, not only through its active PTA but also through the community school program and the general interest of parents in the school.

Residents until recently; had not been disturbed by the lack of interest in the Highlands on the part of the city. The Square looks like an awful little town, a messy montage of ugly signs, peeling storefronts, the huge billboard, the shoddy job the city did in resurfacing Lincoln Street.

Stores move in and out and indecision on the part of others as to whether they should stay or move is growing.

Newton Highlands has asked to have a neighborhood service area established, an official, city government sanctioned body of people to represent the area.

A logical question to ask would be whether an improvement society would not do as well as a neighborhood service area. Residents say "no," and we agree.

When is the last time any city governmental committee actively sought the opinion of an improvement society when planning for a special community within Newton?

Newton Highlands now asks the Board of Aldermen basically for the right to create an official representative body whose main function will be communication to and from the people of Newton Highlands.

Right now, the service area and council appear to be a good way for getting the people and their government back together again.

Political Highlights

GOP Convention Vote Contradicts the Polls

The political analysts are in a state of confusion as they try to size up next November's gubernatorial election. This is not an unusual condition for the political seers and soothsayers. But this time they have substantial reason for their uncertainties and misgivings.

The polls show Governor Francis W. Sargent to be strong. However, developments at the unofficial Republican State Convention indicate that Mr. Sargent could be in deep trouble in the November election if his Democratic opponent is Attorney General Robert H. Quinn.

Let's start with the concession that the delegates to the GOP conclave represented only the sentiment of the conservative wing of their party. For example, Sarge got no delegate votes from such communities as West Roxbury and Dedham. He will carry both those sections over former State Commerce Commissioner Carroll Sheehan in the September Republican primary.

However, the delegates to the Republican convention hurt Francis Sargent. There is no question about that, and in so doing they created political problems for other GOP candidates. It would have been much better for Governor Sargent and the Republican party if no unofficial convention had been held.

Either Mr. Sargent himself or some of his political advisers made a strategic blunder when they declared prior to the convention that Sheehan would not get more than 20 per cent of the delegate vote. The impression was created in the public mind that if Sheehan got more than 20 per cent of the vote, it would be a victory for him and a defeat for Sargent.

One of the basic rules of politics is to over-estimate the strength of your opponent, not down-grade it, if you are certain of winning, as Governor Sargent was. Someone in the Sargent camp ignored that principle, and it was a costly mistake.

If Sarge had sold the idea that Sheehan was a formidable adversary and that it might be difficult to beat down his challenge and defeat him at the convention, the professionals and experts would not have believed him, but the people would have thought he won something.

In all candor, this writer expected that Sargent would defeat Sheehan by a 4-1 margin. Prior to the convention, we chatted with a group of political pundits who set a 20 per cent delegate vote for Sheehan as the break-even point. They expressed the opinion that anything above 20 per cent would be a moral victory for Sheehan and anything below it would be a triumph for Sarge.

But it now appears that Governor Sargent took too much for granted and that he did not expend as much effort to line up delegate votes as the experts thought he did. He evidently did not do nearly as much work as he did four years ago to obtain votes to make Donald Dwight the convention choice for Lieutenant Governor.

Some persons close to Sarge voice the opinion that he may be over-confident about the November election. They express the hope that the convention actions will shake him up enough to start him working and cause him to stop taking his reelection for granted.

Several of Sarge's advisers believe he might have problems if Attorney General Quinn is his election opponent. They say that the anti-Sargent Republicans might vote for Quinn but that they probably would swing back behind Sarge rather than risk the election of the left-wing Michael Dukakis.

As matters presently stand, Governor Sargent is certain of renomination in the Republican primary but has some political fences to rebuild before the November election.

Some political experts believe the convention delegates dealt a serious blow to Governor Sargent's candidacy when they created the impression that the Republican party in Massachusetts is solidly behind President Nixon.

This observer does not subscribe to that theory. Our judgment is that the Watergate scandal will not be a major issue in next November's election—except with those people who feel that President Nixon has been persecuted and treated unfairly.

The writer questioned a number of the delegates who were most vigorous in their support of a resolution backing Nixon and who forced a support-Nixon sign into the hands of the surprised Senator Edward Brooke.

They were violent in their denunciation of the manner in which certain newspapers and national television networks have treated President Nixon. They expressed the opinion that Nixon has been persecuted for doing things which every politician has done back through the sweep of the years.

They assailed Governor Sargent and Senator Brooke for running away from Nixon in his time of trouble, pointed out that Sargent and Brooke didn't even support Nixon in 1968, and described Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski's investigation as "ridiculous."

The delegates we questioned stressed that they resented the manner in which Nixon has been treated. The most significant action at the convention was when the delegates hooted and voted down a watered-down resolution offered by Republican House Leader Francis Hatch in support of Nixon.

Governor Sargent's hostility toward President Nixon was the reason some delegates gave for supporting Carroll Sheehan, and they said they will not vote for Sargent either in the September primary or the November election. It will be impossible for Sarge to woo those Republicans back onto the party reservation.

That so many dyed-in-the-wool Republicans reared up against a sitting Republican Governor at an unofficial Republican State Convention was incredible.

Long Prison Term For Magruder Seen Cruel

Notes from the backs of envelopes!

This onlooker was unable to see how the purposes of justice were served by sentencing former White House aide Jeb Stuart Magruder to prison for a period of 10 months to four years. It appeared to be another case of over-kill by a cruel and incompetent judge named Sirica. And to keep the Cubans—who were conned into participating in the Watergate break-in—in prison, is absurd.

A criminal who broke into your home would be likely to get a suspended sentence of three or four months if it was a first offence. These were among the unfair aspects to the Watergate mess cited by delegates to the unofficial Republican State Convention.

Many Washington newsmen believe George McGovern is headed for defeat in his fight for reelection in South Dakota. "Most people in South Dakota didn't realize how far he is to the left until he ran for President," one pundit reported.

A vice squad raid on a house in Milwaukee found 18 women and one man playing a form of rummy called "pitty-pat" at $5 a hand. Seventeen of the women were arrested and charged with gambling, which is illegal in Wisconsin, because they were receiving welfare assistance.

"Had this been a situation involving working people using their own money, we wouldn't have charged them," declared Assistant District Attorney David A. Felger. "People who pay their own way should be able to enjoy social gambling in their own homes."

That obvious discrimination against welfare recipients not only produced newspaper headlines but caused such a furore that Felger reversed himself, and the charges were dismissed.

Officials in the Norfolk, Virginia, Health Department precipitated an uproar when they ruled that church potluck suppers were illegal unless the church kitchens were licensed as public food establishments. They said that food prepared at home and taken to the churches is more likely to become infected with dangerous bacteria than is restaurant-prepared food.

That arroused a flood of protests. One clergyman grumbled that the health officials "might soon be telling us how to run a communion service." In the end the health authorities backed down as gracefully as possible and decided that potluck suppers would be legal if only church members and their families participated in them. Apparently it would be all right if they were poisoned as long as the general public was excluded.

ANYONE FOR TENNIS?

This is Justice?

by Marquis Childs, national columnist

Washington—The chances are better than even that President Nixon and his principal confederates will get off scot free.

By an unprecedented defiance of the law subjecting the system of justice to an intolerable strain, the White House gang will go free in the courts and the President may escape the ultimate penalty of impeachment.

What emerges looks very much like a mutual protective society. The principals under indictment in the Ellsberg break-in are calling for White House tapes essential for their defense. The tapes are refused. Since the relevant evidence is not available, the charges against them must be dismissed. Judge Gerhard Gesell put this in forthright language when he demanded to know whether the President was aware that he was aborting the case by refusing to hand over the evidence. The same thing will happen when the seven principals indicted on March 1 come to trial. The tapes will be witheld by the President. The case will be dismissed and Mitchell, Ehrlichman, Halderman and Company will go free.

They will have performed their part of the bargain by concealing what they know about the President's complicity in the Watergate and related scandals.

It is impossible to exaggerate the damage this will do to the system of justice and law. However much the obfuscation about tapes, transcripts and the dates of conversations, with the process interminably drawn out, the lesson will not be lost. It will be written in ever-increasing cynicism and distrust of the system and contempt for the Nixon rhetoric of law and order.

The little people, the marginal people, the Jeb Magruders, the Dwight Chapins, the Egil Kroghs, go to jail. The big fish swim out of the net through the holes their clever lawyers find for their escape.

This was the reaction of cynicism and disillusion when former Vice President Spiro Agnew was let off with a legal slap on the wrist with a memorandum before the court listing 38 crimes of bribery and corruption.

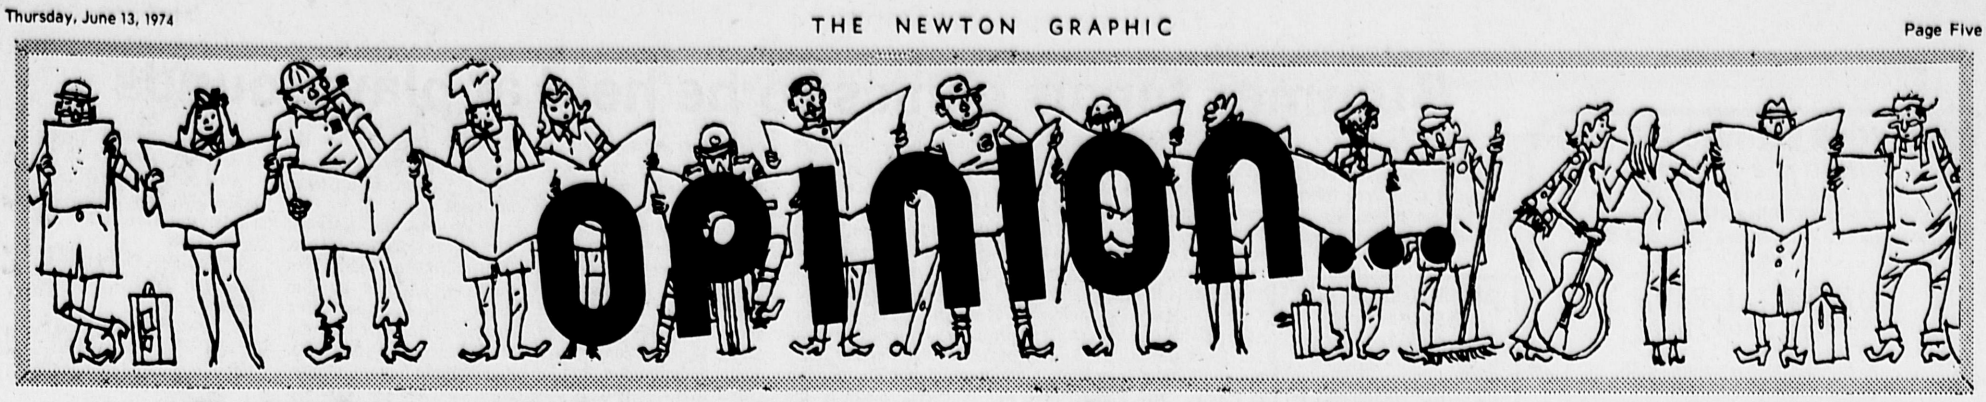
Consider whether just this same outcome may result if and when the President stands on trial before the bar of the Senate. His enormously clever and resourceful lawyer James St. Clair can argue that while a bill of impeachment was voted by the House of Representatives it was not underwritten by the relevant evidence. As in the courts, the House Judiciary Committee will have been refused the tapes sought to establish guilt or innocence.

Senators wanting to find a reason to vote for Nixon's acquittal will be able to fasten on this legalism justifying confidentiality, executive privilege and the rest of the rigamarole of concealment. Such a defense by a President defying every canon of the law will be even more a farce than, as Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski suggested, is the White House stonewalling in the courts. But it requires only 34 plus one to acquit and, fantastic as it seems at this moment it may be the escape hatch.

In all this is a terrible historic irony. It comes against the background of Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's success in bringing peace to the Middle East.

The reward for President Nixon is a tour of Middle East capitals, meaning a television spectacular at the time when the test in the courts occurs. The distracting effect hardly needs to be underscored.

It comes when the detente with the Soviet Union and the possibility of a further breakthrough in curbing the nuclear arms race is at a critical point. Except for die-hard cold war warriors and those with a political axe to grind, no one can want this to fail. These are some of the enormous credits of the Nixon-Kissinger foreign policy. But can they be built on a structure in such fearful disarray and disorder? We shall know in the weeks ahead whether the foreign policy initiatives can have what will be in effect an independent life of their own.



Gold Star mother writes

(Editor's note: This letter was sent to John P. Swift, department adjutant of the American Legion from a Gold Star mother and a copy forwarded to The Graphic.)

Dear John:

It is hoped that you would print this article in your paper as a favor to myself and the hundreds in this state, who I am sure feel as Ido, about this outrageous situation.

My son died in the military service of our nation as did hundreds of others. Time makes more mellow and reverent the memories of their childhood association with their parents, their relatives, friends, and associates.

Out of gratitude and remembrance of their sacrifices, an auditorium was decided to be called the "War Memorial Auditorium" by competent persons who were charged with the responsibility of choosing an appropriate name for this edifice.

The dedication ceremonies held on Feb. 21, 1965, lasted several hours, participated in by notable people in the military, business, educational, professional, life of this state and nation along with members of veteran organizations and the Gold Star mother's organization.

We woke up one morning to find by notice in the newspapers and other means of communication, that this building dedicated to the memory of our veteran dead, was changed from its chosen name the "War Memorial Auditorium" to the "John B. Hynes Civic Suditorium."

This "slap in the face" to all of us who know the sorrow of the loss of a loved one in the service of his country was a disgraceful gesture of arrogance and insult to the memories of those so significantly honored on that day, Feb. 21, 1965.

After years of conferences, a compromise was reached whereby the name of this edifice was called the "John B. Hynes Veteran's Auditorium." Hardly ever in newspaper advertisements, radio or TV announcements, has the name subsequently agreed upon been correctly applied in referring to this building.

You can readily visualize the constant torment caused to us and the number of times this building is mentioned, with no reference whatsoever to the word "veteran."

Nowhere in this nation do we know of a similar instance where an edifice was named with such pomp and ceremony by so many outstanding citizens of the community life of this Nation memoralizing the debt of cratitude owed those whose memory was thereby to be perpetually enshrined, which edifice was at a later time, without notification to any of the parties interested, without notification to any of the military or veteran organizations concerned, changed in such a manner as to completely wipe out the meaningfulness of all such ceremonies.

Representation to the members of the City Council that veteran organizations had been contacted and voiced no objection to such change is a proven fraud.

At this time of the year during the month of May, the hurt of all these circumstances is felt more deeply than at any other time of the year when Memorial ceremonies are being held in the memory of those who gave their lives that this nation might live.

I am sure I express the thoughts of all the families who suffered the heartache of tragic loss of a loved one and the dishonorable treatment given their memories by these acts of desecration.

It goes without saying that your cooperation in the publication of this article will be deeply appreciated by all who know this common bond of grief and sorrow.

Tennis for kids

Dear Editor,

In support of a letter written to you by 10-year-old Debbie Kaufman, I'd like to say that I, an adult, also feel children shouldn't be excluded from the tennis courts on weekends or on weekdays after five.

They have as much right as anyone (perhaps more, considering how well some play) to use the Newton courts - at any time. Although I don't cherish the idea of increased competition on the already overcrowded courts, I still don't think it right to exclude one particular group from playing. It's especially unfair to do so arbitrarily, and then, support the action with a garbage pail full of execrable nonsense and odious rationalizations.

Kids seem like an easy group to exclude - perhaps that's why they were the chosen people. After all, it's rare that 9-year-olds come together to organize. But rare doesn't mean never. So, don't be too secure in your power, you ole' tennis hogs, if you've paid any attention to what a few small girls can do to the Little League, then don't take lightly the power our younger citizens can yield when riled. Little tennis players of Newton, Unite! You've nothing to lose but your bad tennis game.

A person who remembers being a kid.

When it's morning in Waban

The case of the crowing rooster has been solved.

Early Monday morning police responded to a complaint of a rooster crowing on Collins Road in Waban. Officers were reportedly unable to locate where the bird was.

A random phone call Wednesday morning to a family on Collins Road revealed that the rooster had belonged to David McGrath, 150 Collins Rd.

David, 15, acquired the bird when it was a chick as part of a school project. As a result of a complaint, the rooster is now at Owens Poultry Farm in Needham.

David's mother reported that it was a "very vocal rooster." Sometimes "it would crow at the sun in the morning."

The McGrath family still has two hens which provide them with fresh eggs. According to the Health Department, roosters in Newton are a no-no, but hens are akay.

Thompsonville's war dead

(Editor's note: The following letter was sent to Mayor Theodore D. Mann with a petition.)

Dear Mayor Mann:

Thank you very much for your letter of May 6th on the subject of the Veterans' Park at the corner of Langley Road and Boylston Street. However, in my opinion, it is inconclusive, containing no assurance whatsoever that the memory of Thompsonville's war dead or the wartime service of its sons and daughters will be respected by the preservation of our little memorial.

This was somewhat disappointing to me, as I had high hopes after the conversation between us on Langley Road late in April that you would find it possible to take decisive action to prevent the obliteration of the park by an access road to the "Chestnut Hill Towers," so-called, on Goat Hill, from Route 9 through the dog-leg and the park up the hill, as proposed by the attorney for the Towers developers, Mr. Richard Lovell, at the meeting before the Board of Aldermen on Jan. 9. And at that time, as I told you, no disagreement, on the part of the aldermen, with this particular detail of the Towers' proposition was uttered or even intimated. The attitude of the aldermen was one of complete acceptance.

In the discussion by the Towers' attorney, illustrated by a map on which he pointed out the access road through the dog-leg :the little road that runs by the park between Langley Road and Route 9), in which he went into rather minute particulars about the emergency nature of the access way (MITS USE LIMITED TO FIRE, POLICE, AND OTHER MUNICIPAL VEHICLES, CONTROLLED BY A GATE AND LOCK WITH KEYS HELD ONLY BY APPROPRIATE CITY PERSONNEL(, NOT A VOICE WAS RAISED BY THE ELECTED GUARDIANS OF OUR WELFARE.

In compliance with your suggestion that I call Mr. Charles Thomas, planning director, at City Hall,' because you insisted that you had no knowledge whatsoever of any such idea having been advanced by anyone in connection with the Towers, and your flat statement that such a road could not be built without your approval, and that you saw, therefore, no threat to our little park, I did call Mr. Thomas for verification of the outline presented to the aldermen by the Towers' lawyer on January 9th.

It turned out, however, that Mr. Thomas had very good protection from the inquiries of citizens and I was unable to get beyond his secretary, who detoured me to Mr. John Simmons.

Mr. Simmons was, It appeared, completely unaware of the discussion by Mr. Lovell before the aldermen, had never heard of the map on which the dog-leg and park were expunged by the access way, and had no knowledge of any plans for new roads to be opened up to the Towers. Apparently, the appointed officers of the city government do not take particular notice of public meetings before the elected office holders. Consequently, I set out to inform the people of Newton Centre of the fact that the Memorial Park to their sons and daughters, originally given to the City of Newton for the benefit of its people by a citizen of Thompsonville, Fiorangelo Gasbarri, was threatened with destruction like the Thompsonville Brook and the Webster Vale, all destined to be sacrificed to "progress" in the form of urban dwellings for over a thousand families, high density (as they say) urban settlements, on the edge of a lovely rustic landscape.

The people were eager to sign the petition against this new outrage on Newton Centre, and I am accompanying this letter with sheets containing the names of about two hundred men and women who implore you to tkae their side in preserving their community against destructive greed.

Thank you again for your letter.

Thanks divers

(Editor's note: This letter was sent to Richard Belliveau, president of the Pisceans, with a copy to the Newton Graphic.)

Dear Mr. Belliveau:

Please accept the grateful thanks of the City of Newton for the fine work the members of your Scuba Club did last Saturday at Crystal Lake.

Several bags full of cans and bottles and other debris were collected. The anchors of the main dock were retrieved and the docks secured. The raft was locked and secured in place and a large dead tree snap in the bathing area was located for removal with equipment.

This volunteer effort on the part of your organization saved many hours of work by the Recreation Department staff in preparing the lake for the up-coming swimming season.

Please convey my thanks to Divemaster Paul Delesdernier of Newton Highlands and the eight divers and three beach helpers who participated.

'Grave mistake'

(Editor's note: This letter was sent to Supt. of Schools Aaron Fink in response to comments he made at a School Committee meeting Monday night):

Dear Mr. Fink:

This letter is in response to your final comment at the School Committee meeting, June 10, that seemed to put the onus on Dr. Grimes for our inadequate salaries.

Although we do not know the procedures for budgeting that the administration uses, we are assuming that Dr. Grimes does not create a Learning Disabilities' budget without the recommendation and advice of the Newton Public Schools' administration.

We feel that Dr. Grimes has created for Newton a program that is very successful and one of the better public programs in the state and even New England.

We believe that is was a grave mistake for you, the superintendent of the Newton Public Schools, at a public forum, not to have assumed your share of the responsibility for planning that budget.

PTA dominates

To the editor:

I want to protest against letting the PTA dominate the Citizens' Advisory Committee in the surplus-school-building controversy. The PTA is a private organization that may play a useful role in the relationship between the teachers and the homes, but I cannot recognize them as experts qualified to steer either the education or the economical welfare of our city.

They are now attempting to organize the committee — so to say, loading the dice. It is noteworthy that the real party of interest, the much-abused taxpayers, have not been allotted a single seat in the committee, though the problem is decidely an economical one, and one that may further increase the tax burden if not solved properly.

I urge that the problem be solved on the basis of the strictest economy and that the costliness of our school system be reduced rather than increased.

An effective school system is not bought, but taught.

Summer tennis clinics to be held at playgrounds

Tennis Clinics

A series of spring youth clinics and adult tennis lessons will be conducted by the Newton Recreation Department at 10 playground areas from July 1 to August 23.

The program is geared to boys and girls from eight years through high school age. The schedule is as follows: Monday - 9 a.m. to noon; Newton Highlands; 1 to 4 p.m. Newton Centre; Tuesday - 9 a.m. to noon; Hamilton, 1 to 4 p.m., Burr Park; Wednesday - 9 a.m. to noon, Warren Junior High; 1 to 4 p.m., Cabot Park; Thursday - 9 a.m. to noon, Memorial School; 1 to 4 p.m., Burr Park; Friday - 9 a.m. to noon; Angier School and 1 to 4 p.m., Auburndale Playground. For further information, people may call Bill Barry at 969-3171, 8:30 to 10 a.m. or 4 to 5 p.m.

Swim Program

A stay-fit and 50-mile swim program was recently completed at the Newton North High school pool. The program was conducted jointly by the Newton Recreation Department and American Red Cross, and coordinated by John F. Walsh, Sr., pool supervisor.

Certificates were presented to Carol Amotongel, Francis Coffey, Robert W. Hopkins, Marcus Karel, Daniel N. Murphy Sr., and Lawrence Smith. Most of these swimmer have already enrolled for their second 50-mile swim.

Twi-League

Well over 100 players and coaches opened play in the National Division of the Newton Recreation Department's Twi Baseball League this week.

Players in the National Division are of high school age. St. Bernard's coached by Tom Pugliese, assisted by Jim Blake, is the defending champion. The other teams in the Division are Upper Falls, Highlanders, Newton Centre, Boys' Club and the Matthews Club.

Games are played at diamonds around the City on Mondays, Wednesday and Fridays, beginning at 6:15 p.m. Play will continue through June and July, and the playoffs will be held in August.

Senior Life Saving

A senior life saving renewal course was recently given at the Newton North High pool, under the auspices of the Newton Recreation Department and the American Red Cross. The instructors were John F. Walsh Sr. and Beth Carleo.

It was a ten-hour course combined with the senior life saving course currently nearing completion. A majority of the lifeguards taking the course have worked at Crystal Lake and will be assigned there again this summer. Instructors Bill Walsh and Lenny Beaucivus are affiliated with the Gath Pool, and serve as Red Cross instructors at the Newton North High pool.

Newton residents completing the course were: John Walsh Jr., Robert Capstick, Russell Brooks, Susan Cutler, Andy Cutler, Craig McCool, Paul Kiley, Christopher Murtaugh, Richard Dunne, and Damon Kazarisn.

Softball Standings

The first four teams in the Newton Recreation Department's three softball leagues as of Friday, June 7 were:

"A" League - Silver Lake Dodge 7-1-0; Oak Hill, 6-2-0; and Doveny Ford, 5-2-0, Art Carroll, 5-2-0.

"B" League - Post 24, 7-0-0; Elks, 5-1-0; Oak Hill, 6-2-0 and Tenneco, 5-4-0.

"C" League - Heshai Club, 6-0-1; NCP Club, 6-2-0; George's Cafe, 6-2-0 and St. Regis, 6-2-0.

Gath Pool
Swim Registration

There are openings in the intermediate, advanced, beginner, beginner II, and adult classes at Gath Pool. Registration for these classes will be held at Gath Pool on June 18 and 21 from 3 - 6 p.m. Bill Walsh, head instructor, will take all registration.

Newton North
High School

There are openings on beginner I and II, advanced beginner, swimmer, and the tot swim classes at Newton North High. Registration for these classes will be held at Newton North High School, 7:30 - 9:30 p.m., June 18 and 21.

Women's Summer
Basketball

The League opens Tuesday, June 18 at 6:15 p.m. at Cabot Park, with a triple game schedule: Magoos vs. Aster, Fox Drug vs. Regans, and Fats vs. Flip Tops.

All games are played at Cabot Park court on Tuesday and Friday nights.

Women's Suburban
Basketball

The Newton Suburban women's basketball team has its opening game, Tuesday, June 18 at Winthrop. Newton is in the South Dvision of the 16-team Suburban League. All games are played on a home and away basis, and there will be play-offs between the North and South Divisions.

Day care center enrollment grows

Newton Centre Day Care which opened in February with three preschoolers has grown to service 30 children. The center has consistently maintained a one to five staff-child ratio, employing experienced teachers, student interns and volunteers.

Staff, parents and the community at large are involved with developing the new center, participating in workshops and contributing equipment and materials.

Summer day care will be provided weekdays 7:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Programming will include weekly trips to parks, zoos and museums; exploration of the local community; outdoor activities in a play area which will include wading pools; use of the Newton Centre Playground; and indoor activities.

Children will experience arts and crafts, storeis and puppetry, reading, math and manipulative puzzles and games, construction, cooking and role playing. Hot meals, snacks, and on trip days, picnic lunches, will be provided by the center's cook.

People who need day care may contact Newton Centre Day Care, 80 Crescent Avenue, Newton Centre, 527-6352. Applications are available for this summer and next fall. The center also welcomes volunteer support and-or material contributions.

Use compost for mulch

Now that you have planted your summer garden, keep on top of the weeds. Go to the Beacon Street compost site and pick up a trunk full of free leaf compost to use as mulch on your garden. A generous layer of leaf compost spread on top of your garden will accomplish two things — it will keep weed growth down and will also keep your garden moist during dry spells this summer.

The leaf compost is available free at the compost site on Beacon Street west of Four Corners on Saturdays from 8 a.m. until 3:30 p.m. Remember to bring your own containers and pitchfork.

Notary commissions

Notary public commissions were given to Margaret, Robert W. and Walter F. Tennant recently.

Newton Ald. Robert F. Tennant, 189 Mt. Vernon St., West Newton, was on hand when the members of his family were sworn in as notaries. He also is a notary public and runs the R. L. Tennant Insurance Agency.

s, Sunday, June 2.

Approximately 100 police officers, city officials, widows and children of deceased police officers, and friends of the department attended.

Chief William F. Quinn and president of the Association, Lt. John Lidely, led a contingent of police officers and police women to the memorial plaque in front of Headquarters, where Lt. Likely placed a wreath in memory of departed officers.

Father David Bartly of St. Jean's Church led the prayers and stated police officers "are constantly exposed to bitterness cynicism and manage to avoid being infected by such feelings and still provide comfort and protection to the community."

Present were Mayor and Mrs. Theodore Mann; James Salter, administrative assistant to mayor; Victor Taglienti, assistant building commissioner; Rabbi Robert Miller, Temple Beth Avodah; Eliot Cohen, president, Board of Aldermen; Richard Bullwinkle; Richard McGrath; Mechael Antonellis; Inspector George Stitt, Registry of Motor Vehicles; Deputy Chief Jay I. W. Moskow,, Newton Auxilliary Police; Retired Deputy Chief William Burke.

The memorial association has conducted memorial services for the members of the department who have passed on annually since 1937 when the association was formed following the deaths of Lawrence Murphy and Henry Bell who were killed in action by an escaped convict.

In addition to conducting such services, the Association also provides benefits for the sick and injured and those retiring from active services.

The officers of the association are the following: John Likely, president; Edward Meredith, vice president; John Zilinskis, secretary; Raymond Thibault, treasurer.

The directors of the Association are: John Quinn, Walter Jenkins, Robert Mahoney, Paul Golden, Francis Burokas.

Crystal Lake cleanup

The Newton Pisceans, who used to be called the Newton Divers, assisted the Recreation Department in the annual spring cleanup of Crystal Lake shortly before the beach was opened Saturday. It was a cloudy, rainy day for divers (from left) Neil Langerman, Dick Delesdernier and Pat McIlhenny and officials (from left) Palmer Sargent of the Pisceans, Recreation Commissioner John Penny and Mr. Newman of the Red Cross.

Country Day School graduation held June 8

Newton Country Day School of the Sacred Heart held its 94th graduation on Saturday, June 8. The thirty-nine graduates included two girls who received early admission to college and returned to graduate with their classmates.

The day's activities began with a liturgy in the school chapel for parents and graduates. The graduation Mass was concelebrated by Rev. Msgr. Robert Kickham of St. Bartholomew's in Needham, and Rev. Msgr. William Granville of Sacred Heart Parish in Newton Centre.

Diplomas were awarded by Sister Anne Higgins, headmistress, in an outdoor ceremony at the school.

The address to the graduates was given by Regina Sullivan Todd, an alumna of the Class of '59. Mrs. Todd, a Worcester resident and mother of three children, received a master's degree in community mental health and counseling, and is now pursuing her Ph.D. in educational research at Clark University, Worcester.

The student speaker was Glory Michaela Fitzpatric of Newton. She addressed the audience on behalf of the Class of 1974.

Members of the graduating clas included: Patricia Annino of Winchester, Maria Augspurg of El Salvador, Deborah Boole of Newton, Mary Ann Conroy of Newton, Deirdre Daly of Pineville, Ky., Patricia Dendrow of Milton, Sharon Dobbin of Boston, Margaret Fahy of Belmont, Jean Finucane of Newton, Glory Fitzpatrick of Newton, Alexandra Garcia of Barranquilla, Colombia, Karen Guiragos of Providence, R.I., Eileen Heenan of Needham Height, Ellen Hasson of Holland, Lauren Hoppel of Sherborn, Margaret Hrushesky of Westwood.

Also Constance Kickham of Chestnut Hill, Mildred Kimbrel of Mattapan, Marie Kirk of Newton, Ann Christy Leveroni of Milton, Karen McCarthy of Needham Heights, Marain Marra of Charlestown, Carrie Mathers of Brockton, Karen Moore of Garden City, N.Y., Anne Elise O'Connor of Milton, Karen Quinn of Winchester.

Also Patricia Regan of ... Marianne Reynolds of Wellesley, Margaret Rogan of Wellesley, Mary Jane Rogers of Jamaica Plain, Jane Ronayne of Needham, Lisa Seufert of Newton Highlands, Maura Sheehan of Duxbury, Julie Slattery of Wellesley, Mary Ellen Stringos of Maracaibo, Venezuela, Christine Sullivan of Waban, Stacy Wise of Dorchester, and Susanne Frawley of Needham and Anne Marie Salemi of Haddan, Conn., who returned to graduate with their classmates.

Needlepoint class planned

The Newton Recreation Department, this summer, will offer as part of its "Art in the Parks" program, a needlepoint class. Mrs. Bette Feinstein of Newton Upper Falls will conduct the class under the trees at Cabot Park.

Those attending the course will be taught the basic needlepoint stitches and the intricacies of bargello or Florentine embroidery.

Mrs. Feinstein refers to this class as a "clinic," and is ready and willing to assist anyone who needs help on a project already in progress.

There is no registration fee, only a fee for supplies.

The classes will be held at Cabot Park on July 9, 11, 16, 18, 23, 25, 30 and August 1. All classes will be conducted from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m.

People may call the Newton Recreation Department at 969-3171 to register.

The 1974 State and National Insurance Youth Golf Classic

If you're a Massachusetts golfer 17 years or younger . . .

. . . this summer you could play in your first national tournament, competing right alongside leading golfers on the pro circuit. This is what makes the 1974 Massachusetts Insurance Youth Golf Classic such a unique, exciting event

To register, all that's required is that you live in a city or town in one of the specified local tournament areas.

If you win a trophy in your local field (as one of the 3 to 5 lowest scores), then you're automatically qualified to enter the state-wide 1974 Massachusetts Insurance Youth Classic. This state IYC championship will be held at the Folly Hill Country Club of Beverly, Thursday, July 11 and Friday, July 12, 1974.

Now . . . if you're among the finalists of the Massachusetts Insurance Youth Golf Classic at Beverly, you're eligible to tee off at the National Insurance Youth Classic, August 10-14 at Alpine Country Club, Providence, Rhode Island.

If you make the cut in the National IYC, you're off on a really great golf experience. One of the players in your IYC foursome will be a nationally-known top professional. He'll play with you stroke for stroke, as he competes with other pros in a separately-scored, nationally-recognized tournament.

Think you can make it into your first national event this August?

The Massachusetts Association of Independent Insurance Agents and Brokers, sponsors of the 1974 Massachusetts Insurance Youth Golf Classic . . . and the National Association of Insurance Agents, sponsors of the national IYC championship . . . invite you to register now.

Ask your school golf coach, athletic director or your insurance agent displaying this symbol.

Top high school musicians to form All-American Band

An annual search for this country's outstanding high school musicians is underway with the opening of the 1974 McDonald's All-American High School Band competition.

According to Paul Lavalle, director of the Band and the musical director of Radio City Music Hall in New York City, 102 top high school musicians - two from each state and the District of Columbia - will make up the group.

1974 marks the eighth consecutive year the All-American High School Band has been in existence, with new members selected each year. The Band is sponsored annually by McDonald's international restaurant chain.

The Band will play and march in the Macy's Thanksgiving Day Parade in New York City and in the Tournament of Roses Parade on New Year's Day in Pasadena, California. Its appearance in both parades will be broadcast on the MBC-TV and CBS-TV networks.

The Band will also perform a noon hour concert at Rockefeller Center in New York and a parade through Disneyland during the California trip.

The group is often called "the band whose pants don't match" because the musicians wear their local high school band uniforms topped off with matching All-American Band overlays and caps.

Each high school band director in the United States - more than 21,000 - has been invited to submit nominations of his two best musicians. Lavalle and members of the All-American Band Advisory Board will make the final selctions. The board includes Professor Al G. Wright, director of Bands at Purdue University; George A. Christopher, New York State Music Association, and other distinguished band directors.

In November, when the Band members gather in New York City, they will audition for two Paul Lavalle Scholarships given annually by the New England Conservatory of Music in Boston, Massachusetts. The grants honor the two top players in the McDonald's All-American High School Band. The scholarships offer full tuition, board and room at the New England Conservatory of Music.

June 10-15 is Consumer Week

"Be an Intelligent Consumer" headlines the display highlighting Consumer Week, June 10 - June 15, at the Newton Free Library, 414 Centre Street, Newton Corner.

Sponsored by the Consumer Affairs Committee of the Boston Federal Executive Board, Consumer Education Week will feature programs at the JFK Federal Building and at Faneuil Hall in Boston.

Program discussions and exhibits will focus on consumer protection and education, consumer organization, safe consumer products, nutrition, the filing of complaints, the implications of supplemental security income for older Americans, food and drug laws, labeling and "making the system work."

Virginia Knauer, director of the Office of Consumer Affairs in Washington, D.C., will give the keynote address, June 14 at 12:15 p.m. at City Hall Plaza, Boston.

Free consumer counseling and information will be available throughout the week at the JFK Building in the Government Center.

The library's consumer display, prepared by members of the NFL staff includes books and pamphlets on such varied topics as health care, taxes, investments, insurance, nutrition, wise shopping practices, consumer law and consumer organization.

The Consumer Week exhibit will remain on view through June 28.

School of Nursing graduation June 22

Sixty-two students will graduate from the Newton-Wellesley Hospital School of Nursing Saturday, June 22 at 2 p.m. at the Wellesley Junior High School Auditorium.

The Class of '74 represents a wide cross-section of students. There are seven men (13 per cent) in the class, and 55 women. Although more than three-quarters of the class is single, there are 15 married students.

Most of the students hail from Massachusetts, but other states are represented as well. There are students from Connecticut, Minnesota, New Hampshire, New Jersey, and Pennsylvania

Of the 62 students graduating, 11 already hold degrees. Seven have bachelor of arts degrees, one holds a bachelor of science and one has an associate degree. In addition, there are three licensed practical nurses (LPN's).

The Class of '74 has alumnae from Babson College, Endicott Junior College, Emmanuel College, Northeastern University, Regis College, Simmons College, University of Massachusetts, and Wheaton College.

The School of Nursing begins its commencement activities with Class Night June 18. A graduation breakfast will be held June 20, and the baccalaureate will be June 21 at 8 p.m. at Newton College. A reception for parents of the students will follow in Allen Riddle Hall at the nursing school.

Five graduate from Roxbury Latin School

Richard J. Barnet, author, educator, and co-director of the Institute of Policy Studies, gave the address at the 329th Roxbury Latin School commencement held on Saturday, June 8.

Among the 39 seniors who received their diplomas were five Newton boys: Robert J Bargar, son of Dr. and Mrs. Harold M. Bargar, 5 Sharpe Rd., Newton Centre; Bruce D. Dannenberg, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eli M. Dannenberg, 478 Quinobequin Rd., Waban; Steven F. Ehrenberg, son of Mrs. Ruth Ehrenberg, 269 Brookline St., Newton Centre; David H. Jernigan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Homer L. Jernigan, 158 Auburn St., Auburndale; and John A. Kaufman, son of Dr. and Mrs. Seymour Kaufman, 64 Bishopsgate Rd., Newton Centre.

Robert Bargar received four awards: the Bausch & Lomb medal and the N. Henry Black prize, both for excellence in science; the Class of 1913 award for significant contributions to a school activity and the William Coe Collar scholarship awarded to the senior who is chosen as most deserving by the faculty. David Jernigan received prizes for excellence in both English and French and John Kaufman won a Fowler Prize in history.

A junior, Kenneth M. Green, son of Dr. and Mrs. Kenneth M. Greene, 221 Woodland Rd., Auburndale, won the Tennis Cup; the Henry W. Cunningham Prize for high character and scholarship; and the Harvard Club Prize Book.

Patricia Moore named director

Patricia A. Moore of Waban has been appointed director of publications at Lesley College, Cambridge. Ms. Moore comes from Harvard Law School, where she was editor of the "Harvard Law School Bulletin" for six years as well as editor of the HLS "Adviser" and press relations officer for the Harvard Law School.

Carol L. Kort continues to serve as Director of public relations at Lesley.

Father Charlie cares

'This person wants to know my judgment, and that's what I give him."

About schools, Father Coyle believes that often school systems are actually "antieducational," meaning that tooo much emphasis is put on education as a "passport to wealth," instead of a tool by which to become a better person, a better mother, and so on.

"I don't feel I can change the world, but I can throw a pebble into the water to make some ripples," he said.

Father Coyle's comfortable house in Lower Falls, on the fringe of Waban, he describes as "an oasis for a kid who messes up school, job and everything."

It is a large comfortable house with a huge yard, where Father Coyle indulges his newfound passion for gardening.

Inside the rooms are done in bright colors and comfortable things to spread out in. There are games and puzzles all over the place to play alone or with somebody, games to challenge the intellect or the quickness of the hand.

Much of the work in fixing up the house has been by Father Charlie's kids, and much of the furniture and furnishings has been given to him.

But he himself gets the house one big Christmas present every year. Last Christmas it was a gigantic and expensive air hockey table that takes up a third of the living room.

A stereo is usually playing, and ther are usually kids around — some in the kitchen fixing a snack for hemselves or dinner for six.

Boys, and some girls, go to "Father Charlie's house for a variety of reasons. They began coming during the height of the drug crisis in the Newton schools, some for counseling by Father Coyle to help themselves stop using drugs, others because there they knew there would be no pressure from kids to use dope.

One of the few absolute NO's in the house is no drugs.

Sometimes during a crisis in a young person's life, Father Coyle puts him up at the house, with the parents' permission, and then starts trying to find out what can be done. The parents come for talks, and eventually a reconciliation is effected.

One boy lived at Father Coyle's house for nine months.

Since Jesuits take a vow of poverty, the house belongs to the society and if and when Father Coyle moves on, it will be for the Jesuits to decide its disposition.

When that will be, Father Coyle doesn't know. He has helped hundreds of kids so far, and has only scratched the surface. But he is a Jesuit and subject to recall at any time.

Could he have done what he is doing without being a priest?

Father Coyle thinks not: "I'd probably have been married and be going to the country club every afternoon to play tennis instead."

Brandwein's report, the cost of that land would not be reimbursed.

Brandwein's conclusions closely parallel those of Robert Lemire, chairman of the Lincoln Conservation Commission and an expert in the economics of land conservation, who reported at last year's Open Space Action Conference that an immediate program for land acquistion by the city is the economically practical step.

An outcome of his recommendations has been two or three proposals, one of which is to add $1 to the tax rate for an indefinite perio for land acquisition. Another suggests the expenditure of $1 million per year.

The Newton Conservation Commission has proposed in its four-year land acquistion program the acquistion of 105 acres scaattered across the city, which it estimates to cost $1.4 million, at least 50 per cent of which will be reimbursable.

The Conservation Commission request is included in the new captal improvement program.

The Conservation Commission has also recommended that the city set a policy that if the Chestnut Hill golf course is threatened with development the city acquire that land.

The Newton Conservators also presented the results of the year-long work of its Open Space Committee to classify and set up priorities for land acquistion.

Apoint rating was given each parcel of land evaluated. For example, Charles River frantage rates 10 points; geologic features,5; picnicking, 3; and 10 points each for iminence of change, being in an area with little open space, and meeting a unique need.

Ranking of importance in the report was based on the total points for each piece of land.

Four categories of land were described--city parks, conservation lands, farms and gardens, and neighborhood parks.

City parks would be large tracts of land that could be of major use to the entire city. Norumbega on the north side and the Xaverian Brothers Novitiate land on the south side received the highest ratings and priorities for acquisition. A conservation restriction was recommended for the four golf courses.

Under a conservation restriction, which may be written with various terms, no building or alteration of the natural propperties of the land is allowed by agreement between the city and the owner of the land.

Ten city parks are recommended.

For conservation, top priority has been given to the Staniford Street and Dolan Pond lands in Auburndale, with 15 other pieces of land listed ranging from one to 39 acres in size.

"Farmlands should not be allowed to slip into development without notice, "Open Space Chairman Sharon Francis commented, so three of the four working farms in the city ar recommended for conservation restriction and the other for "public discussion."

Ms. Francis would like to see a farm worked an studied as part of the school curriculum.

Acquisioon, conservation restriction, or public discussion are proposed for 32 parcels to be used as neighborhood pards. These range in size from a half-acre (Silver Lake) to 11 acres (Andover-Newton Theological School), and would be primarily for the use of people living within a short walking distance.

The report will be submitted to the aldermanic City Planning Committee.

Harrington will seek reelection

Harrington's major effort has been working for effective gun control legislation. He has gained statewide support for his proposals to license all handguns and to restrict ownership of handguns to pistol clubs, security personnel and collectors. Concerning the defeat of the bills this year, Harrington said, "I believe a vast majority of Massachusetts citizens want strict handgun control, but the Nation Rifle Association and the firearms manufacturers are spending, and will in the future, spend great sums of money to defeat this legislation with advertising and support for those opposed to these bills."

Harrington has also drafted legislation which, for the first time, will allow disaster victims of middle income to obtain relief benefits in the form of clothing and furniture from the state. The need for this bill, co-filed with Senator Mario J. C. DiCarlo (D—Revere), came to light after hearings by the Urban Affairs Committee on the causes and effects of the Chelsea 13-block fire in 1973.

House speaker Bartley has also appointed Rep. Harrington to a special commission to study the law and penalties for driving under the influence of liquor. With Harrington's participation, the commission has recommended the enactment of a bill that would require those convicted of driving under the influence to enter a driver retraining and alcohol recovery program. As an inducement to participate, the commission calls for an early return of driver's license (3 months). The program will be funded by assessing each defendant convicted, the sum of $200 costs, originally proposed by Harrington.

Within a month of his first day as state representative, he was called upon to contest Boston City Councilor Albert "Dapper" O'Neil and others on the question of amnesty. In spite of strong opposition, Harrington has also stood up to defend women's rights, binding arbitration and fiscal autonomy.

In an attempt to keep an original campaign promise to "open the legislative process and power to the voting people of this district," Rep. Harrington has established a 24 hour Hot Line (969-2050) and held regular office hours at the Newton Corner Library on Thursday evenings at 7:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m.

Concerning his first term, Rep. Harrington said, "I have thoroughly enjoyed serving in the Massachusetts House of Representatives, although there is great cynicism concerning government and the legislative process, I have been pleasantly surprised to find out that my one vote counts. For example, we created a new Black Senate seat, a new formula for county assessment (to Newton's benefit), and the state's forst lung act for incinerator employees."

operating in the morning, a letter from her to neighborhood residents indicated arrangements could be made to have a limited number of children cared for after hours and on Fridays when no hours are scheduled at all.

Developer Edward M. Levitt made his second appearance before the Land Use Committee Monday night and put forth his second plan to build townhouses on the Florence Street land.

Levitt's earlier proposal to build 14 townhouses on the site met with stiff neighborhood opposition and was denied by the Board of Aldermen.

Neighbors also object to the 10-townhouse plan, and have claimed throughout discussions that they are only in favor of construction in accordance with the present zoning. Under the zoning, the developer could build four duplex houses.

Brenda Ascher, 85 Louise Rd., gave the committee a petition signed by 70 residents opposing the Levitt development.

"Last time, we had 50 signatures," she observed. "The abutters object to the proposed degree of density."

"We object to any change not in keeping with the present zoning laws," she said.

care of the athletic needs, then the school would give up the baseball diamond and find athletic space elsewhere.

The latest plan allows for four athletic fields for each season of the year, plus the parking.

The Newton North High School Neighborhood School Association was scheduled to meet last night (Wednesday) to discuss further action, although members had not been informed of the revised plan by late Tuesday.

The neighborhood association has been cirtical, both verbally and in print, of the city's treatment of the association, saying that no one in the neighborhood has been in favor of the city's plan, and in fact the resident "input" claimed by the Planning Department was overstated.

Eleanor Rosenblum, School Committee chairwoman, spoke out strongly in favor of having a professional urban site designer, for the parking lot.

School Committee member Alvin Mandell proposed putting an upper deck on the 235-space parking lot.

Martin called Day a "family school," adding that it is "a school which recognizes disagreement and even conflict as part of being a family."

Martin talked briefly about parts of the He said that Day houses a nursery school for 30 four-year-olds which allows 75 students to work closely with young children. He noted that Day has a strong athletic program which involves about two-thirds of the students in the school.

Martin said that Day has a program for the hearing impared which integrates children with hearing trouble into regular classes. "It has been a learning experience for the whole faculty and the student body," Martin remarked.

Martin said that most courses at Day have been required during the last three years. Seventh graders have about five electives to choose from while eighthand ninth graders can choose from about 10 electives.

Martin pointed out that a "problem with electives is that kids at this age change their interests so quickly; teachers get discouraged." He said that a solution to this problem is for teams at Day to offer shorter run electives.

Martin stated that he feels having required courses has been effective at Day.

Superintendent of Schools Aaron Fink noted that Martin feels that a course can be organized with an opportunity for diversity within it. He added that Martin "can conceptualize what's going on in education as well as anyone I know." He said that Martin is "very much a realist."

Martin said that he has had a good year and thanked his faculty.

"HAVE WE NOT ALL ONE FATHER? HATH NOT ONE God CREATED US?" Malachi 2:10

A lot of people acknowledge God as Father. But do they really understand the man He made?

As you get a deeper understanding of the Bible, the spiritual nature of man and of all creation appears. Then Christian unity and the brotherhood of man appear in your life, too.

Selections from the Bible and Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures by Mary Baker Eddy, to be read in our church service this Sunday, will help you understand the Bible's message of brotherly love in a new light.

We'd love to welcome you.

Innovations In Sound

You've probably never thought of your car as an deal stereo listening studio. Well, it is! The minute you sit in your stereo equipped auto, you're blanketed in thrilling sound. You'll witness an entirely new perspective in stereo listening; a richness in stereophony and realism of sound reproduction that has never before been possible. Now, with stereo tape cartridges, whether you listen in your car, home, boat, plane or trailer you enjoy an unparalleled sound sensation . . . crisp clarity and maximum fidelity, superior craftsmanship and a wealth of music for every taste from Broadway to The Beatles, from current hits to classical.

Stereo cartridges are carefully engineered to afford maximum reliability and convenience of operation.

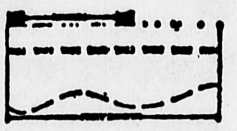
1. You never have to thread or even touch the tape.

2. You may change from one stereo program to another with the press of a button.

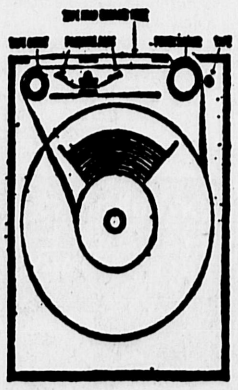
3. Tapes are continuous and never need rewinding

4. With a minimum of care, the playing life of the tape is practically unlimited.

What is four-track and eight-track stereo tape? Within the ¼-inch tape width, music is recorded on four or eight parallel tracks which run the length of the tape. Two tracks play simultaneously and produce true stereo sound. Standard tapes provide up to 40 minutes of continuous music. Twin cartridges up to 80 minutes.



How does a tape cartridge work? Stereo cartridges contain a tape in a continuous loop, which simply means that the tape runs from the center of the spool and is returned to the outer lap of the reel. Thus, neve, needs rewinding. Inserting the cartridge into the tape playback unit is probably as easy as replacing your cigarette lighter in the dash



Seeing is believing, however, and perhaps the least expensive method for you to experience the unusual convenience engineered into a stereo tape is to visit a dealer and ask for a demonstration.

Realizing that stereo tapes are here to stay, Lechmere Sales of Cambridge and Dedham is now compiling substantial stocks. This foresighted record dealer and department store devoted exclusively to providing the consumer with even a larger and more complete musical selection than previously realized with the more traditional record album departments.

Long recognized as a retailing leader and innovator, Lechmere now features perhaps the largest selection of stereo tape cartridges in New England. It's a certainty that a visit to either Lechmere in Cambridge or Dedham will prove a most rewarding musical experience.

In response to a recent request for a "good Greek style tomato sauce" here's a dandy from Mrs. Jasmine Andrews, Belmont, Mass. Thank you!

JASMINE'S TOMATO SAUCE

1½ pounds hamburg
1 small onion, minced
Oil
1 teaspoon salt
Dash pepper
½ teaspoon oregano
¼ teaspoon garlic salt
dash of cinnamon
1 large can Hunt's tomato sauce
¼ cup wine (or water)

Saute onion in a small amount of oil until onion is "shiny". Add hamburg and fry until meat looses its red color; add salt, pepper, oregano, garlic salt, cinnamon and tomato sauce. Stir well. Add wine and allow to simmer for at least 1 hour. This is a basic sauce recipe.

A neighbor of mine told me about a marvelous pizza-like meat loaf she had made and we promptly asked for the recipe—here it is—hope you enjoy

PIZZA MEAT LOAF

1 egg
1 can (10 oz.) pizza sauce
1½ teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
3 cups corn flakes
¼ cup chopped onion
1 can (4 oz.) mushroom stems and pieces, drained
2 pounds lean ground beef
Sliced mozzarella cheese

In large mixing bowl, beat egg until foamy. Add pizza sauce, salt, pepper and corn flakes; let stand until most of liquid is absorbed. Mix thoroughly. Add onion, mushrooms and ground beef; mix only until combined. Spread meat mixture evenly in ungreased 8x8x2-inch baking pan. Bake in moderate oven, 350 degrees, about 1 hour or until meat begins to pull away from sides of pan. Remove meat loaf from oven; arrange cheese slices in single layer over top. Return to oven; continue baking 3 minutes longer or until cheese is slightly melted. Cut into six servings; serve hot garnished with parsley if desired. Serves 6.

Question: The other night a group of us were sitting around talking about the "good old days" and we discussed the mouth-watering treats—peanut brittle and fudge. Do you have a recipe for both—just for old times? Thanks.

Mr. and Mrs. F.M., Newton

Answer: How well I recall those excellent home made candies—my sister was an expert taffy-maker! Here are your recipes—dream on!

PEANUT BRITTLE

2 cups sugar
1 cup light corn syrup
½ cup water
2 cups raw peanuts
1 tablespoon butter
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
1 teaspoon baking soda

In a large saucepan cook sugar, syrup and water until the mixture reaches a hard ball stage when dropped in a cup of water. Add peanuts and cook until golden brown. Add butter and vanilla and stir until well mixed. Remove from heat. Add soda and stir well. Do not stir too long after adding soda (the secret of success with this candy). Pour into large buttered pan. Makes 2 lbs.

Recipes will be judged on originality, flavor, quality and appearance. The contest will close at noon, June 22, 1974.

MARSHMALLOW FUDGE

½ cup butter or margarine (1 stick)
⅛ teaspoon salt
1 can (6 oz.) evaporated milk
2¼ cups sugar
1 pkg (8 oz.) marshmallows
1 pkg. (6 oz.) chocolate chips
1 square semisweet chocolate, cut in pieces
1 teaspoon vanilla
½ cup chopped nuts

Combine butter, salt, evaporated milk and sugar in a 2-qt. heavy saucepan. Stir and bring to a boil; then continue cooking at a steady low boil for 8½ minutes, stirring constantly. Meanwhile, combine marshmallows, chocolate chips, chocolate and vanilla. Pour hot candy over mixture and blend with electric mixer. Add nuts. Pour into buttered 9-inch square pan; cool. Cut in 1-inch squares. Makes 81 pieces or about 2½ lbs.

Question: I would like a good marinade for Shish-ka-bob and flank or top of the round steak, please.

Mrs. W., West Roxbury

Answer: This is an excellent marinade to have on hand in the refrigerator at all times.

WINE MARINADE FOR M[illegible]

1½ cups oil
¾ cup [illegible]
2 [illegible]spoons worcestershire sauce
2 teaspoons dry mustard
1 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon ground pepper
1 cup dry red wine
2 teaspoons dried parsley
¼ cup lemon juice

Mix well in jar or blender. Can be frozen.

Question: Every now and then I splurge on a brisket because my family loves this cut of meat even better than steak. I'd like to try a new method of cooking it other than the conventional long slow baking. Thank you.

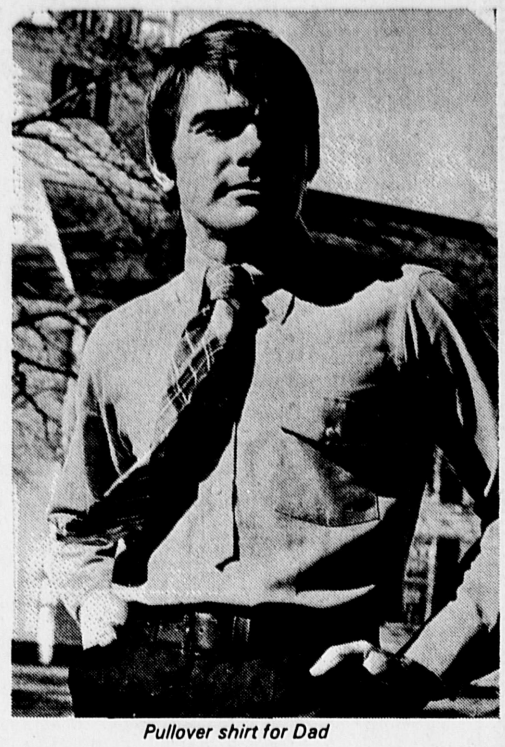
Mrs. N., Sharon

Answer: Brisket does require long cooking but in the following recipe the results are well worth the wait:

CHILI BRISKET

1 teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons brown sugar
1 bottle chili sauce
1½ cups vinegar
2 teaspoons seasoning salt
5 pound brisket
4 onions, sliced

Mix salt, brown sugar, chili sauce, vinegar and seasoning salt together. Pour over brisket which has been placed in roasting pan and let stand overnight in the refrigerator. Cover with sliced onion and roast uncovered in 300 degree oven for 4 to 5 hours. Cool and slice. Heat juices and pour over meat. Serves 8.



Pullover shirt for Dad

Gifts for Dad

Everyone loves a surprise. Agreed?

Then when Dad opens his gift on Sunday, be sure that it's not the same old box of handerkerchiefs. . or shirt and tie . . . or half-dozen black sox.

Never before have spring-summer men's fashions offered so much to so many. Men today have a need for more varied and interesting clothes because of an interest in attending spectator sports, traveling, better looking leisure outfits as well as classic business fashions.

The sporting scene has produced a variety of comfortable clothes in every category: golf, tennis, swimwear, beachwear, bicycling and even jogging. All will be coordinated outfits in bright colors in fabrics that range from all-cotton knit in jogging outfits to acrylic blend golf coordinates consisting of jacket and or sweater, knit shirt and slacks.

Dads of all ages will be wearing denim and bleached cotton jeans suits, colorful T-shirts and even the bold tablecloth-check suits. If he's a jean-fancier, he'll like those with contrasting top stitching, slimmer legs and metal stud trim and decor.

The Western influence is projected by the easy-to-relax-in familiar Levis and their matching jacket which have been a "uniform" for the young for quite some time now. Faded blues are most popular right now . . . and if Dad is really gung-ho for this look he might even opt for a strikingly mod blue denim shirt with printed satin yoke.

According to Chip Tolbert, fashion director of the Men's Fashion Association, golfing fathers are extremely easy to buy gifts for at this time of the year. They are virtually guaranteed to beam when presented with the newest colors and patterns in golf slacks or golf shorts.

Lightweight, colorful golf jackets in wind and rain resistant poplins in a full spectrum of colors are perfect for topping off his slacks, and lightweight sweaters will take the chill out of those early morning tee-offs.

Dad can always use a few more golf shirts and extra pairs of soft, cushiony, golf socks to save wear and tear on his feet.

Tennis has become the number one outdoor sport and Dad might want to put aside the tired old whites and introduce the pale blues and pastel yellows while the more venturesome players have gone "all the way" with greens, reds and bright yellows.

While you're shopping in the sportswear department, perhaps he could use new tennis shorts, sweat-absorbent tennis shirts, cable-stitched pullover sweaters or similar knits in cardigans, tennis socks with striped tops, or one of the new zingy warm-up suits.

Let's not overlook fathers whose hobby is boating — select a boating jacket of wind and water resistant fabric . . . perhaps one with a collar that unfolds into a snug parka hood. (These come in white and blue as well as in the approved safety colors of orange and yellow.) Non-skid deck shoes, nautical caps, lightweight wool jerseys with either turtle or mock-turtle necks would also be appreciated.

If your Dad is strictly the spectator at all sports, gift him with some appropriate leisurewear. There is no end to the array of short-sleeved sport shirts in solids as well as prints and patterns, cool non-wrinkle slacks, cool and comfortable one-piece jump suits . . . or how about one of those great big-brimmed straw planter's hats to shield him from the hot midday sun!

Resilio's Blair Lamont, suggests you buy Dad a shirt he'll enjoy all year round . . . such as a country-look plaid that is distinctive for dress-up yet classic for casual wear with a soft roll button down collar, back box pleat and hangar loop. The well bred shirt would be a club pattern cavalry twill which is ideal for sport or dress-up with Resilio solid color-coordinated tie. If he's a country man, gift him with the traditional country shirt with smart military epaulettes, squared-off bottom and deep-flapped pockets.

Neckwear variety is almost limitless. Currently, the trend is to the more classic designs such as stripes, orderly all-over designs and solid colors with which to complement his patterned shirts.

The Rooster tie with its ship-shape square-end neckwear would be the perfect gift for the sailing Dad because there is one with handscreened nautical prints designed to please the captain as well as the crew, during the busy office hours.

If he's a tennis buff, it's love, set, match with a racquet and ball on a hand-screened print tie. Chessmen march across a beautifully printed square-end Rooster tie.

Men's accessories offer limitless ideas for Father's Day gift giving — this includes cuff links, wrist watches, belts, dresser sets, etc. Perhaps this would be a good time to start Dad on another brand of after shave lotion, toilet water and anti-perspirant. Most men prefer to receive this type of gift rather than make the purchase themselves.

Then again, if that man in your life is chained to an office desk day after day . . . surprise him . . . buy him a bicycle so that he can experience again the joy of physical exercise out in the sun and wind.

Food and Fashion by Ruth Lenson

Across the Kitchen Counter

By RUTH LENSON

"And why not a day to honor fathers...a Father's Day," was the thought of Mrs. John Bruce Dodd in 1909, as she sat in church listening to a sermon on Mother's Day.

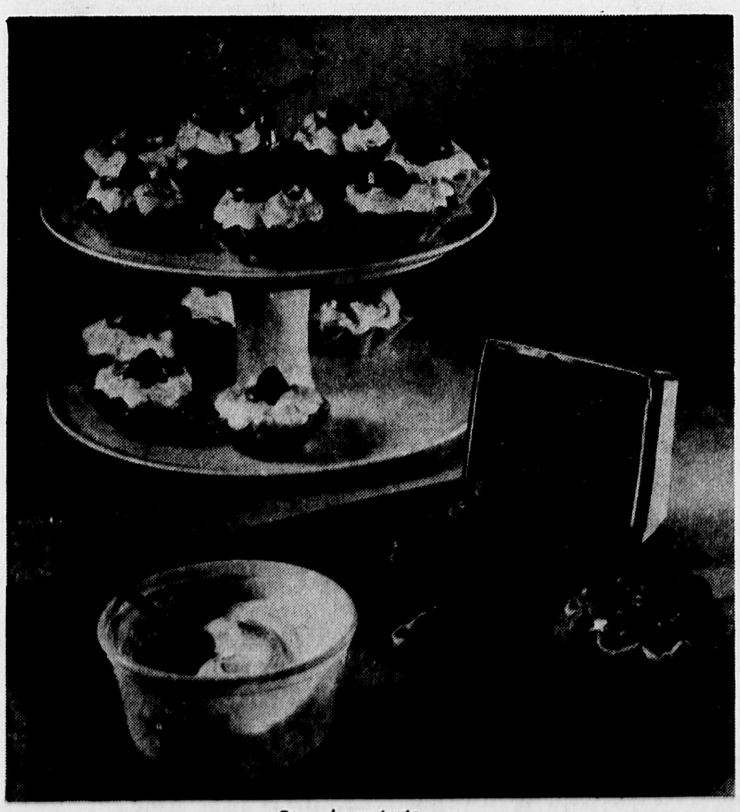
After all, her own father had dedicated his life to raising Mrs. Dodd and her five brothers after his wife died at an early age. A native of Spokane, Washington, Mrs. Dodd sent a letter to the president of the Spokane Ministerial Association suggesting a day to honor all fathers, living and dead. Though the day chosen by Mrs. Dodd was her father's birthday, June 5th, the first Father's Day actually took place the third Sunday in June—on the nineteenth.

The 1974 National Father of the Year is Vice President Gerald R. Ford. Sports Dad of the Year is Tom Seaver. Communicatios Father of 1974 is the late Frank McGee. Medical Statesman Father of the year, Dr. Michael DeBakey. Christopher F. Edley is Humanitarian Dad for 1974. Literary Father of 1974 is Louis Nizer. TV, stage and screen star Joel Grey is Performing Arts 1974 Father. Lovable Dom DeLuise has been chosen TV Father of the year.

Statistics show that favorite gifts for Dad seem to be men's apparel and following in importance are sports gear, liquor, tobacco products, photography equipment and hobby items.

But ask Dad what he'd like on Sunday and chances are he'll say, "Steak and potatoes!" Steak usually gets the nod from most men and depending on your budget, it might be anything from sirloin, rib, porterhouse to a well-seasoned marinated chuck steak barbecued or broiled.

And while everybody's waiting for the steak to grill or broil to perfection, there's nothing like a steaming bowl or cup of delicious Double Corn Chowder. Have ready a large crisp green salad and a casserole of marinated carrots. For dessert fresh strawberries, bright and luscious, dressed up in a fluff of whipped topping in crisp tart shells!



Strawberry tarts

DOUBLE CORN CHOWDER

3 slices bacon, diced
¼ cup finely chopped onion
3 tablespoons flour
1½ teaspoons salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
2½ to 3 cups milk
2 cans (12 oz. ea.) Mexicorn
1 can (17 oz.) cream style corn

In large saucepan, fry bacon until crisp. Remove bacon from pan and drain, reserving 3 tablespoons drippings. Saute onion in bacon drippings until tender. Stir in flour, salt and pepper. Gradually stir in milk. Add corn and cream style corn. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until soup comes to a boil and is slightly thickened. Garnish with crisp bacon bits.

SWANK PORTERHOUSE STEAK

1 2½ to 3 pound porterhouse or sirloin steak, about 2 inches thick
¾ cup finely chopped Bermuda onion
2 cloves garlic, minced
3 tablespoons cooking claret
2 tablespoons soy sauce
¼ cup butter or margarine
1 can (3 oz.) broiled sliced mushrooms, drained

Slash fat edge of steak—don't cut into meat. Slitting from fat side, cut pocket in each side of lean almost to bone. Combine onion and garlic, seasoning with a dash of salt, pepper, and celery salt; use mixture as stuffing in steak. Mix cooking claret and soy sauce; brush on steak. Broil over hot coals a total of 25 minutes—or till done to your liking, turning once. Brush occasionally with soy mixture. Heat butter and mushrooms in a small pan, pour over steak. Slice across grain and serve sizzling! Serves 4.

MARINATED CARROTS

6 to 8 large carrots cut in 3-inch sticks
½ cup water
¾ teaspoon salt
¼ cup olive oil
3 tablespoons vinegar
white pepper to taste
2 cloves garlic, crushed
1 bay leaf
2 tablespoons minced parsley

Cook carrots rapidly in wide-bottomed pan with boiling water and ¼ teaspoon salt. Turn once and cook till tender but still crisp (about 8 minutes). Drain. Place carrots in 1½ quart casserole. Mix oil, vinegar, ½ teaspoon salt, pepper, garlic, crushed bay leaf and parsley and pour over carrots. Chill for at least 6 hours, covered, turning once or twice. Serve at room temp. Serves 6

BROILED FLANK STEAK

½ cup salad oil
¼ cup soy sauce
2 tablespoons vinegar
2 sliced onions, chopped
1 clove garlic, minced
½ teaspoon ground ginger
½ teaspoon pepper
½ teaspoon dry mustard
2 flank steaks (approx. 2 lbs. ea.)

Combine salad oil, soy sauce, vinegar, onions, garlic, ginger, pepper and dry mustard. Score steaks on both sides; place in glass or enamel pan and pour marinade over meat. Refrigerate overnight. Place steaks, drained, on broiler rack. Insert broiler pan so that top surface of steaks is 3-5 inches from the heat. Broil first side about [illegible] minutes, brush with marinade and broil 2 minutes longer. Turn and broil second side, brushing with mixture often until steak is broiled to desired doneness. Slice and serve. Serves 6

STRAWBERRY TARTS

1 egg white
2 tablespoons sugar
1 container (4½ oz.) thawed frozen whipped topping
1 cup flaked coconut
8 baked 3½ inch tart shells, cooled
1 pint strawberries, sweetened

Beat egg white until foamy. Gradually add sugar and continue beating until mixture will form stiff shiny peaks. Fold in 1 cup whipped topping; then fold in coconut. Spoon into tart shells; top with strawberries. Garnish with remaining whipped topping. Makes 8 tarts.

Models

Modeling in the recent Diet Workshop "before and after" fashion show were Bernice Rothstein (left) of Newtonville, a 50-pound loser; and Mrs. Anna Moore of Waban, a 71-pound loser. Both women were chosen to model with 22 other men and women from Eastern Massachusetts. They represented a combined weight loss of 2,000 pounds; while the audience represented a drop of 14,000 pounds. Proceeds from this annual function were donated to the Massachusetts Heart Association.

Chaplaincy Committee receives $5,000 gift from Woman's Club

The Newton-Wellesley Hospital Protestant Chaplaincy Committee recently received a $5,000 gift from the Newton Centre Woman's Club, the first such gift given by a civic group to the committee.

Previous funding has been solely by church organizations.

Rev. Seaton M. Woodley Jr., chaplain for the committee, commented that the gift is the beginning of a permanent fund for the Protestant Chaplaincy Committee program.

Twenty years old, the committee is comprised of clergymen, laity and doctors. The clergymen are Rev. William J. Turner, committee chairman, St. Andrews Episcopal Church, Wellesley; Rev. Robert Decker, Wellesley Baptist Church; and Rev. Woodley, College Avenue United Methodist Church, West Somerville.

The lay members of the committee are: Mrs. John F. Donaldson, Auburndale; Mrs. Elwood Hettrick, secretary of the committee, Wellesley; Miss Ruth Perkins, Newton; and J. P. Eaton, treasurer, Wellesley. Dr. Robert Brownlee, Wellesley Hills, and Dr. Brooks White, Newton Lower Falls, both members of the hospital's medical staff, also are members of the group.

Representing the Newton Centre Woman's Club in the presentation was Mrs. Victor Baer, formerly a director of the club and chairman of its Educational Scholarship Committee.

Weddings

The marriage of Susan Certner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Irwin Certner of Hillside, N.J., TO James Barrett Oshry took place in May at the Plaza in New York.

Mr. Oshry's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Morris Oshry of Waban, and he is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Harry L. Oshry of Florida. A reception at the hotel followed the 8 p.m. double ring ceremony.

Mrs. James B. Oshry

Mr. Certner gave his daughter away. She wore a long sleeved gown of embroidered Swiss sheer over ivory silk. Her waist length veil was attached to a headband of lace sprays, and she carried a nosegay of white daisies, stephanotis and yellow roses.

Identically gowned in yellow jersey and carrying sprays of white daisies and yellow roses, the attendants were Marilyn Certner, sister of the bride and maid of honor; Mrs. Lawrence D. Dietz of Methuen, sister of the groom; Wanda Blumenthal of Levittown, Pa.; Rachel Miller of Atlanta; and Andrea Sucherman of New Orleans.

Stephen Bender of Lafayette, Ind., formerly of Waban, served as best man. The ushers were Lawrence D. Dietz of Methuen and Mark Solomon of Atlanta.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Certner chose a gown of layered yellow chiffon. Mrs. Oshry's gown and coat were of yellow silk with full organza sleeves.

Following a trip to Puerto Rico, the couple will live in New York where Mrs. Oshry, a graduate of the University of Ohio, is affiliated with Station WRKO.

Mr. Oshry is a graduate of the University of Massachusetts and received his graduate degree from the University of Virginia. He is associated with Oxford Industries in New York.

Rye, N.H., new home for Blouins

Sacred Heart Church, Bradford, was the setting on June 15, for the 3 p.m. wedding of Maureen Kathryn O'Toole, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph F. O'Toole, Haverhill, and Roger Brian Blouin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. Blouin of Waban.

Msgr. Richard Boner officiated at the double ring ceremony and the bride's father gave her in marriage. The reception was held at the summer home of her parents in Rye Beach, N.H.

The new Mrs. Blouin was attired in an original import Masandrea white gown with seed pearl and Brussel lace applique. Her matching mantilla cathedral length train and silk illusion veil were appliqued with point Venise. She carried a traditional semi-cascade of white phalaenopsis and trailing polished English ivy entwined in stephanotis.

Jill Bottomley was the maid of honor and the bridesmaids were Ann Sullivan, Susan Burchell, Nancy O'Leary, Mary Ellen Blouin, Sheilagh Mulderig and Ann Aubuchon.

Donald Blouin, brother of the groom, was the best man. Performing ushering duties were Charles P. Blouin Jr., John Burchell, Gardner Rowbatham, Peter McCue, Alex McWilliams Jr. and Robert Evjen.

The bride is a graduate of Sacred Heart School, Newton, and Centennary Jr. College, N.J. She is presently attending the University of Mass. Her husband graduated from Newton South High School and he is currently a student at Bloomfield College in New Jersey.

The bride was attired in a Priscilla white organza gown with Venice lace striping, lace appliqued bodice and a circular train with lace edging on the hemline. Her illusion net veil was attached to a Venice lace cap. She carried a bouquet of white roses and carnations.

The new Mrs. Connelly attended Mt. Saint Joseph Academy, Alma College, Michigan and she spent her junior year at Alliance Francais, Paris, France. Her husband was a student at Boston College High School and the U.S. Naval Academy at Annapolis.

Six months in Europe will be their residence after a honeymoon in Ireland.

Mrs. Thomas J. Connelly Jr.

Beverly Sjostrom weds M. Moriarty

A reception at the Hearthside in Hanover followed the recent 1 p.m. wedding of Beverly Anne Sjostrom, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward E. Sjostrom, Hanover, and Michael John Moriarty, son of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Moriarty Jr., West Newton.

The marriage was solemnized on June 8, at the First Congregational Church in Hanover with Rev. W. Roscoe Riley officiating at the double ring ceremony. Mr. Sjostrom gave his daughter in marriage.

The bride was attired in white maracaine jersey with a high neckline and long fitted sleeves. Her headpiece of re-embroidered Alencon lace, trimmed with seed pearls and crystal beads, was caught by a finger tip veil of imported silk illusion. She carried a cascade of white roses, stephanotis and ivy.

Nancy Louise Sjostrom, sister of the bride, was the maid of honor. The bridesmaids were Jo-Anne Cattaneo, Charlene Cleary and Linda Georgeopoulous.

The groom had James Rantuccio as his best man. Performing ushering duties were William Adams, Robert Gannor and Lee Surrette.

The new Mrs. Moriarty, a graduate of Hanover High School, attended Massasoit Community College. Her husband graduated from Newton High School and Lowell Technicological Institute. He is presently employed by the Star Market Co., Cambridge.

Upon their arrival from a wedding trip to Bermuda, the couple will be at home in New Seabury.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard A. Rosen honeymoon in Hawaiian Islands

Amid the setting of white spider mums and yellow poms, Jo-Ann Gavrilles, daughter of Mr. Charles E. Gavrilles, Westwood, and the late Mrs. Gavrilles, became the bride of Richard Arthur Rosen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Saul E. Rosen, Needham, formerly of Newton.

Rev. Russel Hartley and Cantor Marvin Axelrod officiated at the double ring ceremony on June 9, at the Martha-Mary Chapel in Sudbury. The reception was held in the Levin Ballroom, Brandeis University.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore an ivory silk organza gown highlighted with Alencon lace. Her silk illusion, cathedral length veil was attached to a lace Juliet cap. She carried a bouquet of white daisies and baby's breath.

Mrs. Richard A. Rosen

Mrs. Betty Allen, Medford, cousin of the bride, was the matron of honor. She was attired in a pale green linen gown trimmed with white Venice lace and carried a bouquet of yellow daisies and baby's breath. The flower girl was Lisa Gavrilles, also a cousin of the bride, and she was dressed identical to Mrs. Allen. Her white basket contained yellow daisies and baby's breath.

William A. Morris III, Assonet, was the best man. Sharing ushering duties were Nicholas Stamatos and Edward Dornig. James Gavrilles, cousin of the bride, was the ringbearer.

The new Mrs. Rosen, granddaughter of Mrs. Elizabeth Marasides, Westwood, graduated from Westwood High School and the Children's Hospital School of Nursing. She is currently on the staff of the Children's Hospital Medical Center.

The groom is a graduate of Newton High School and Bentley College. He is a senior accountant at the Beth Israel Hospital.

After a honeymoon to Hawaii, Mr. and Mrs. Rosen will reside in Boston.

Enders-Churchill nuptial in Sudbury

At a 12 noon ceremony on May 29, Carolyn Sylvester Enders, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. R. Emerson Sylvester, Auburndale, was married to Douglas Eugene Churchill, son of Mr. and Mrs. James E. Churchill of Cazenovia, N.Y.

Rev. Arthur Osgood officiated at the double ring ceremony which took place at Martha-Mary Chapel in Sudbury. The bride was given in marriage by her father. Mrs. Susan Sylvester rendered a violin solo and Rowland Sylvester, brother of the bride, supplied a trumpet processional and recessional. Harrison Cook, in full Scottish attire played the bagpipes as he escorted the couple and guests to the reception at the nearby Wayside Inn.

The new Mrs. Churchill was attired in blue chiffon and lace and carried lilies of the valley and forget-me-nots. She is a graduate of Cazenovia College and the Careerco School for Para Professionals.

John Churchill performed the ushering duties for his brother. The groom attended Syracuse University and he is now a student at the University of New Hampshire.

The future residence of Mr. and Mrs. Churchill will be Dover, N.H.

Barrasso-Maregni marriage solemnized at nuptial mass

St. Anthony's Church, Allston, was the setting on May 11, when Lucille Marie Barrasso, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony G. Barrasso, Allston, became the bride of Peter J. Maregni Jr. son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter J. Maregni of Newton.

Rev. Jay Mullin officiated at the double ring Nuptial Mass ceremony. Mr. Barrasso gave his daughter in marriage and the reception was held at the Chateau de Ville in Framingham.

For her matron of honor, the bride had Mrs. Robert Cacicio. Mrs. Donald Baia and the groom's two sisters, Lisa and Linda were the bridesmaids. Little Sharon Barrasso was her sister's flower girls.

The new Mrs. Maregni was attired in a crystalene organza gown and attached chapel length train both with Alencon and Venice lace, pearl and crystal trim. Mary Scott sponsoring Lebanese child

Mary L. Scott, 106 Gardner Street, Newton, has an unusual interest: ten beehives half a world away!

The apiary belongs to the family of the Lebanese child Miss Scott sponsors through Save the Children Federation (SAVE), world-wide child help organization with headquarters in Norwalk, Connecticut.

Save the Children Federation was founded in 1932, originally to help the underprivileged children of Appalachia. Today it also operates programs on American Indian reservations, in the Inner Cities, among the Chicano and Southern Black populations, and in many countries overseas. Self-help has always been the keynote of SAVE programs. Perhaps the most significant aspect of Miss Scott's sponsorship of little Jeanne d'Arc Kairouz is that it has enabled her father to establish an apiary; the honey harvested last year from the 10 beehives brought an added income of $480, a very substantial sum to the family.

Jeanne d'Arc has been progressing well in school. She passed her second grade examination with flying colors, and is now doing well in third grade.

Now eight years old, Jeanne has been sponsored for three years. She is the oldest of four children born to needy Christian parents living in the underdeveloped village of Bechouat. Her living conditions are typical of a poor village child: she has a deficient diet, and medical care is not available in the village.

Her father has had an elementary education and can read and write a little Arabic, but he is unskilled and owns no land. He works as a day laborer whenever he can find employment, but he earns only enough to provide mere subsistence for his family. The parents and four children live rent-free in a little two-room house owned by a maternal uncle. It has no kitchen and no sanitary facilities, and is very poorly furnished.

At the same time that Miss Scott is helping Jeanne d'Arc and her family, she is also helping the entire village. Sponsorship funds, pooled with those of other sponsors for the area, have helped the community construct a pipe water supply. The villagers volunteered their labor for the much-needed project.

In addition to furnish urgently-needed material aid, the sponsorship is also a source of encouragement to the little girl and her family. It provides an incentive to know that they have a friend, even though far away and unseen, who is interested in their welfare.

The Federation is registered with the U.S. State Department Advisory Committee on Voluntary Foreign Aid, is a member of the International Union for Child Welfare, the American Council of Voluntary Agencies for Foreign Service, and the International Council of Voluntary Agencies. An individual, school or group interested in helping a child should write Save the Children Federation, Post Road, Dept. P, Norwalk, Connecticut 06852.

Two-day-old John William Bear, son of Dr. and Mrs. Robert Bear, has his diapers changed by his parents. Mrs. Bear chose to have her baby "room in" at Newton-Wellesley Hospital, meaning he stayed with her most of the day and was fed and cared for by her and her husband.

Girl Scout Council to operate day camps

Applications are now being accepted from girls in Newton to attend Camp Mary Day, one of five day camps operated by Bay Path Colonial Girl Scout Council.

Camps are open to all girls whether or not they are Girl Scout members. There will be three two-week sessions from July 1 to August 8. Camp meets four days a week and bus transportation is provided.

The Brownies (age 7-8 years) will enjoy songs, games, swimming, nature hunts, folk dances and hand crafts. Once per session they will cook their lunch under the supervision of unit leaders and experienced program aides.

Junior Scouts (age 9-12 years) have time at day camp to practice outdoor skills, improve their swimming and work on nature badges. Adequate shelter for crafts, dramatics and singing allows fun on rainy days. The Kaper Chart gives everyone a turn in different housekeeping chores necessary to keep the site neat, attractive and safe.

A "Day and Stay" program for Juniors is offered each session. During the first week, girls learn to erest tents and set up kitchen areas; in the second week they bring sleeping bags and stay overnight (Monday-Thursday) in their unit. Meals are cooked over open fires and there are special evening programs.

Cadette age firls (sevent, eighth and ninth graders) should apply for special Cadette units at Camps Nacochwa or Winnetaska. Mrs. Karen Goodwin, a staff member of Bay Path Colonial Girl Scout Council will be camp director. Mrs. Joan Esche of Framingham is assistant director, Mrs. Evelyn Moan of Newton is business manager and Mrs. Judy Kennedy of Sudbury is nurse. Miss Christine Demas will be waterfront director, assisted by Miss Rose Mandelbaum and Miss Sue Laning.

Unit leaders include: Mrs. Connie Sacca, Mrs. Barbara Starmer, Mrs. Ruthann Bergman, Mrs. Maryann Scali, Mrs. Donald McIntire, Mrs. Brenda Merrick, and Mrs. Patricia Murphy.

Anyone interested in applying for the remaining staff openings should contact the Council office (telephone 969-8800).

Every day is 'Father's Day'

Fathers can be present in the delivery room to share in the birth of their babies with their wives, and can also begin sharing immediately in all the usual fatherly duties associated with a baby's care.

A relatively new procedure called "rooming-in" allows mothers the opportunity to love and care for their babies all the time in their rooms or as much of the time as they want. Fathers can be on hand any time from 7 a.m. to 10 p.m. to hold, and feed their babies and change their diapers.

Immediately after delivery, fathers and mothers have a brief visiting period with their newborn child. They can each hold the baby, and mother can, if she wishes, attempt a feeding. As soon as the baby's temperature has stabilized, usually a four-to-12-hour period for the newborn to adjust to the outside world, and he or she has been examined by a pediatrician, the baby can begin sharing mother's room.

Rooming-in is entirely the choice of the parents. All the mother has to do is ask the nursery nurse to bring her baby to her, and she may choose to room-in one day and not the next, depending on how she feels.

When the baby is rooming-in, the mother is responsible for his or her general care, such as changing diapers, feeding and bathing.

Nursery nurses are available to answer questions and assist in the care of babies. Each rooming-in baby has his or her own bassinette containing necessary items for the child's care.

Fathers are encouraged to participate in the bath demonstrations given every few days. By the time baby goes home, Dad can already be an old-hand at sharing in his or her care.

Rooming-in seems to be a particularly good idea for mothers who are breastfeeding their babies, Judy Morris, the nursery's head nurse, says, because it gives them a chance to work out a successful demand schedule.

In addition, whether it's a mother's first baby or not, rooming-in can be a valuable experience in letting her get acquainted with her newborn child. Some babies hardly fuss before feeding, while others actively remind their mothers that they need attention. Some babies stir around between feedings, and others sleep right through them.

A new baby is an individual with his or her own reactions to things. Rooming-in gives a Mom and Dad a chance to get to know their baby and to share their family feelings from the very beginning of their new relationship.

To attend science program

Jane Berman, a resident of Waban, has been chosen to participate in a six-week National Science Foundation summer program at California State University at Humboldt.

Selected on the basis of science ability and interest, Ms. Berman will be one of a group of 60 high school juniors in the California program.

A tuition-free program which is aimed at providing a creative and stimulating environment for high-ability secondary school students, the California State program will provide instruction and research opportunities in the fields of mathematics, marine biology and oceanography.

Ms. Berman, a junior at the Winsor School, has been active in science-oriented activities. She is president of the school science club and has been involved as a volunteer in a community service program at Boston Environment, Inc. An article on alternative energy sources which she wrote was published in the Environmental Review.

In addition to her science-related activities, she is girls sports editor of the Winsor-Belmont Hill newspaper, a member of the varisty field hockey team and captain of the tennis team at Winsor.

First woman president

Florence Tankevich, executive director of the Newton-Wellesley Visiting Nurse Association was elected (the first woman and the first nurse) president of the New England Public Health Association during its 10th Annual Meeting at Wentworth-by-the-Sea on June 4.

Miss Tankevich has been with the Visiting Nurse Association since 1968. She is active and provides leadership within many of the statewide public health organizations, including the Council of Public Health Services of the Massachusetts League for Nursing and is currently Vice-President of the Massachusetts Health Council.

Meeting on adoption, foster care planned

There will be an informational social gathering on adoption and foster care on Wednesday, June 12, at 7:30 p.m. at Mount Ida Junior College, 777 Dedham St. in Newton.

The public is invited to attend.

The gathering will be sponsored by the Massachusetts Adoption Resource Exchange (M.A.R.E.), in cooperation with the Black Recruitment Committee for Adoption and Foster Care.

M.A.R.E. is a referral agency working with other child welfare agencies throughout New England, as well as other parts of the United States. The Exchange acts as a coordinating agent that puts agencies who have waiting parents in touch with agencies who have waiting children.

In addition, the Exchange acts as a referral agency for prospective families looking for receptive adoption agencies.

The Black Recruitment Committee is a group of social workers representing child-placement agencies and community organizations in efforts to recruit black families for black children in need of homes. Black citizens of Newton has been helpful in supporting this committee in its efforts.

The evening will include a dramatic presentation of "Only People Cry," (a story about a child's experiences in different home settings). There will also be a slide presentation of some of the children waiting for homes, and social workers from different agencies will be present to answer questions on adoption and foster care.

For further information about this meeting or for general information people may call 727-6180.

Major summer exhibition of Degas at Museum of Fine Arts

The major summer exhibition, Edgar Degas: The Reluctant Impressionist, opens June 21 at the Boston Museum of Fine Arts and continues through September 1. Works in every medium explored by this 19th century French master are assembled to provide a new look at his total artistic achievement.

Usually considered an "Impressionist" yet often called the last of the Old Masters, Degas was unique in his ability to fuse these contrasting stylistic tendencies. In an effort to look beyond the limits of labeling Degas' art, this comprehensive survey may provide insight into another facet of Impressionism.

The exhibition focuses of Degas as an individualist whose long life (1834-1917) spanned one of the most turbulent periods in art history. He was exposed to numerous artistic movements in the 19th century from Romanticism to Neo-Classicism, Realism, Impressionism, Symbolism and Cubism. It is obvious from the development of his style that Degas was affected by this whole range of traditional and contemporary influences.

One hundred and forty works, drawn largely from the Museum's extensive collection, are combined with important loans from private and public collections to survey Degas' career and demonstrate relationships of technique. Paintings, prints and drawings, sculpture, pastels, monotypes and some photographs illustrate the versatility and scope of his artistic vision.

Intimate scenes of bathers, ballet dancers in practice, portrait studies, theatre views and racetrack scenes are familiar subjects of Degas' art, well represented in the exhibition.

Degas combined a modernist sensibility with a traditional training in creating a unique style of studied spontaneity. His extraordinary production of works, which developed over many years, reveals the important pivotal role Degas played in the art of his century.

An illustrated catalogue, written by Barbara S. Shapiro, Department of Prints and Drawings, will be published in conjunction with the exhibition and available at a nominal fee at the Museum Shop.

A simultaneous exhibition, Contemporaries of Degas, which opened June 1 and continues through mid-August in the Print Galleries, includes the works of other artists working in Degas' time. Toulouse-Lautrec, Manet, Mary Cassatt and Tissot are among the artists represented.

Work can be hazardous to health

The Public Health Service says that 100,000 workers die from on-the-job exposure. Each year.

The deaths are caused from exposure to poisonous chemicals, dusts, noise, heat, cold, radiation, and other conditions at work. In addition, the PHS estimates that 390,000 more workers develop disabling occupational diseases that have not ever been specified by scientists yet.

Among the known dangers, exposure to coal dust, asbestos, cotton fibers, as well as metals like beryllium and dusts like silica cause severe lung disease. And when workers in coal mines and asbestos installation also smoke cigarettes, their rates of crippling lung disease skyrocket.

Although an occupational health law was passed in 1970, enforceable federal standards to protect workers exist for only 450 of the suspected 15,000 substances which may injure a worker's health. Each year industry introduces another 400 new chemicals, nearly all of which are untested for possible long-term effects on workers who handle and inhale them. There is almost no testing at all of combinations of substances that may be harmless by themselves but become deadly when combined.

In thousands of plants, workers do not even know what chemicals they work with; to protect trade secrets, companies keep records of the substances only by code numbers. And unless a federal safety standard exists for the chemical, the company is [illegible] required to monitor worker exposure to poisonous agents or to perform periodic medical examinations on those exposed.

To find out more about occupational diseases and what should be done to protect your lungs at work, contact your Norfolk County Newton Lung [illegible] at 326-4081. It's a matter of life and breath.

Movie, "Night of the Squid" at Aquarium

The annual mating frenzy of squid in California waters is investigated by Jacques Costeau and the crew of the Calypso in the movie "Night of the Squid" being shown at the New England Aquarium through June 16. Costeau, in his investigations of squid, helps us better understand the ecological balance necessary for the continuation of this valuable food resource.

The movie will be shown weekdays at 2:30 p.m. and weekends at 11:30 a.m. and 2:30 p.m., free of charge to Aquarium visitors.

The Aquarium is located on Central Wharf in Boston, and is easily accessible via public transportation.

South adds to Newton's collection of tennis titles

By TOM GRAVES

Newton South became Eastern Mass. boys' tennis champion last week, but that should come as no surprise.

Newton teams have won the EMass title five times in the eight years the tournament has had its present format. In that same period, they have also won five state tennis titles.

Three men have coached Newton teams to these triumphs. Bob Franke was varsity coach at Newton South from 1960-62 and from 1965-73. In both 1967 and 1968, his teams won the EMass and state championships. In 1971, South was runner-up in the EMass tournament, but won the state title.

Val Cyr became coach at Newton South this past year after serving three years as an assistant. His team finished first in the EMass tourney, and placed second in the state and New England.

George Jessup has been varsity coach at Newton High (North) since 1963. In both 1972 and 1973, Newton High won the EMass, state, and New England titles. In 1967, Jessup's team finished second in both the EMass and state tournaments. In 1968, 1969, and 1971, Newton High lost in the EMass tourney to the eventual state champion.

As anyone who has looked for a tennis court in Newton knows, tennis is an extremely popular sport here. When asked why there are so many good tennis players in Newton, Jessup replied that "parents push a lot of kids into tennis as a recreational activity." Jessup had a record turnout of 65 kids for the Newton North team this year.

Andy Cornblatt, a former South player and assistant coach this past season, said that tennis is "no longer a rich man's game." He noted, however, that summer camps and indoor clubs do allow kids to develop skills, "so money is still a factor, although not as much of a factor as it once was."

Cornblatt said that there is the "idea of a winning tradition at Newton South. We had good players, good teams, and we knew we were good; we enjoyed working together."

A phenomenon at Newton South has been the large number of brothers who have played for South teams. Andy and Bruce Cornblatt played on the same varsity squad, and younger brother Jim played on South's 1971 state champion team.

Other brother combinations have included Alan and Jack Starr, Paul and David Cohen, Chip and Bucky Admas, Gary and Stan Mescon, and Bill and Tom Karol.

Cornblatt said that the number of brothers who have played for Newton South is related to the idea of tradition. "When Bruce and I played, Jimmy would come and watch."

Additional evidence of the comradery between South players is the fact that alumni come back to watch matches.

Jessup and Franke have offered similar definitions of the role of tennis coach. Jessup described his job as "sifting the best players to where they belong." Franke said that "the job is getting a successful arrangement."

A varsity tennis line-up consists of three singles players and two doubles teams. A coach has some flexibility in deciding who should play in which position.

Both schools use a challenge match system to help determine their line-ups. Players may challenge a higher ranked teammate in practice to attempt to improve their position on the team.

Jessup said that he spends a lot of time working on strategy. He also works on the weaknesses which players have shown in previous matches.

Franke said that is is rare that a sophomore comes in and starts off in number one singles. Two players who have done this are Bill Karol and David Cohen. Franke noted that doubles players may work up to singles over a period of time.

Cyr said earlier this year that there might have been pressure on him as successor to the highly successful Franke "if I didn't have a full-returning team."

Cyr pointed out that Newton South has been "extremely lucky in the last three years in getting quality tennis players on sheer luck." Both Weldon Rogers, in 1971, and Humberto Fagundes, last year, moved to Newton and became top players on South's varsity.

Cyr called Newton, Weston and Lexington "power house tennis teams." He added that kids there have exposure to year-round tennis.

"Players are quality players when they get here,"

Few Newton tennis players have been three-sport athletes. Jessup said that tennis may be thought of as a "minor sport." He noted that people may be unaware of the benefits of tennis, one being that people can play it long after they have left school.

"Tennis requires as much skill as any other sport," Jessup said.

Frank stated that a sports combination he has noticed in athletes is soccer and tennis. He reported that there is hardly ever a football-tennis combination.

A three-sport tennis player at Newton High was Cal Moffie, who also played football and hockey.

Jessup said that his 1972 and 1973 teams were especially strong because of their depth. "Two years ago it was the doubles which carried us; last year it was the singles." Top players on the 1973 team included Carl Kravitz, Joe Mitchell and Rich Birmingham.

South girls' tennis team finishes with 15-1 record

By HOWIE APPELSTEIN

Which Newton South varsity sports team had the best record this season?

It was the Newton South girls' tennis team which won all 12 of its regular season matches plus three matches in the first state championship tennis tournament for girls. South's only defeat this year was a 3-2 loss to eventual state champion Scituate High in the semi-final round of the tournament.

Newton South Coach Ann Wright stated after the season was over, "I've never had a more enjoyable spring in my life. The girls were just fantastic.

"Having an undefeated season really takes a lot of dedication and hard work. I would like also to thank my assistant coach Sally Merrill who helped me tremendously this year."

South's first singles player was sophomore Debbie Cantor. She won nine of 12 regular season matches. Coach Wright said, "Debbie has great skill but she must convince herself that she really wants to win. Towards the end of the year she seemed to gain more confidence. There's no doubt that Debbie has great potential, and by her senior year she'll be awfully tought to beat."

Newton South's second singles player, junior Nancy Bornstein, had an excellent season, winning all 12 of her regular season matches Coach Wright said that Nancy "is the one player I really count on when the pressure is on. Nancy was definitely our most consistent player throughout the season. Her only problem is that she gets too angry at herself after she misses a shot."

South's third singles player, junior Emily Shulman, also had an undefeated season, winning eight matches. Shulman missed four matches in the middle of the season due to an ankle injury. Coach Wright commented, "Emily, in her own quiet way, continued to win. She keeps the ball in play and waits for her opponent to make the mistake. Emily's opponents had a tough time playing against her defensive style of always returning the ball."

South's first doubles team of seniors Marcia Cohen and Faith Cail had a fine year, winning all but two of their 12 matches. Coach Wright said, "The first doubles team played better and better as the season progressed. They came on exceptionally strong in tournament play to play by far their best tennis of the season."

Junior Carol Maltz, the team's captain, and senior Ellen Stein won all 12 of their regular season second doubles matches. Coach Wright said that "they were the toughest competitors on the team. When the chips were down and they had to win, you could always count on them for the victory."

On Monday, June 3, South won its first tournament match, 5-0, over Suxbury.

Cantor won in first singles, 6-1, 6-4. Bornstein and Shulman also won in straight sets, 6-3, 6-0 and 6-0, 6-0.

Cohen and Cail won in first doubles, 6-0, 6-2 while the second doubles team of Maltz and Stein was victorious 6-0, 6-4.

The next day, South defeated Framingham North, 5-0. Each match again lasted only two sets.

Cantor triumphed 6-2, 6-1, Bornstein won 6-3, 6-0, and Shulman was victorious 6-0, 6-2.

Cohen and Cail won 6-1, 6-2, and Maltz and Stein had a 6-2, 7-6 victory.

Newton South upset number one seeded Arlington, 3-2, in its next match. South had entered the tournament unseeded.

In first singles, Arlington's Janice Reardon, who is ranked third in Massachusetts, defeated Cantor, 6-4, 6-2. Debbie Sullivan came back from losing her first set 6-0 to beat Bornstein in her second and third sets, 7-5, 6-3. Shulman won in third singles, 6-0, 6-0.

Cohen and Cail triumphed in first doubles, 6-2, 7-5, and Maltz and Stein won in second doubles, 6-1, 6-4.

Last Thursday, South lost a controversial match to Scituate, 3-2.

The controversy centered around the second singles match between Bornstein and Edith Brith. Brith won in three sets, 6-3, 1-6, 6-3. There appeared to be questionable calls in the match.

Wright was upset after the match and remarked, "I think there should have been a linesman at every match, especially that one. But you have to request a linesman.

In a well-played first singles match, Cynthia Hayden beat Cantor, 6-3, 3-6, 6-2. Shulman won her singles match against Tracy McCarthy, 6-3, 6-0.

South's first doubles team of Cohen and Cail defeated Scituate's Colleen Sullivan and Dana Hayward, 6-4, 2-6, 6-4.

For the first time this year, South's second doubles team of Maltz and Stein lost, 6-3, 6-2.

Ann Wright, who has spent five years at Newton South as a gym teacher and one as a tennis coach, is leaving this summer to live in Colorado.

Waltham defeats South in baseball tournament

By HOWIE APPELSTEIN

On Tuesday afternoon, June 4, Newton South was eliminated from the Division One baseball playoffs by Waltham High, 5 to 0.

Junior Mark Claffey pitched nine brilliant innings for Waltham, allowing only three Newton South hits. Claffey was aided by his teammates, who turned in five doubleplays in the game.

Waltham socred its first run in the bottom of the third inning off South pitcher Ken Bianco.

Leadoff hitter Bob Kelly singled sharply to left field. Al Vaharia then hit a hard ground ball to second baseman Phil Small who made a great stop but was unable to get the runner at second base.

Leftfielder Ed Allia followed with a single to center field which scored Kelly. Vaharia was thrown out when shortstop Tony Lombardo fired a perfect throw to Hal Bennett. Vaharia was trying to score while Lombardo and first baseman Bill Tartar had Allia in a rundown between first and second base.

Waltham added another run in the fifth inning. Claffey led off with an infield hit to shortstop. He went to second base on a bunt by Kelly and scored on a single to center field by Vaharia.

Waltham made the score 4-0 in the sixth inning. After Dave Poirier singled to left field, George Cappadona hit a ground ball to Small.

Small tried to throw Poireir out at second base, but Lombardo dropped his throw, allowing Poirier to be safe. George Vincuilla then sacrificed the runners to second and third base with a bunt which Bianco threw to first base for an out.

Rick Guzzi delivered the big blow of the inning, a solid ground ball to right field which scored two runs.

Waltham scored its final run in the seventh inning on an error by Lombardo.

The Lions had no luck in this game. Everything time they started a rally, a double play would stop them.

An example of South's misfortune occurred in the first inning. After Mike Malkasian led off the inning with a gound out, Rob Shahon got a walk from Claffey. Steve Tresca then got an infield hit, putting runners on first and second base.

The next battter, Steve Rittenberg, hit a ball to center field which appeared like it might drop in. Centerfielder Guzzi caught it at the last moment and fired to second base to double up Shahon and end the rally.

Coach Neil McPhee said after the game, "Even though we lost the game, we have nothing to be ashamed of. We lost to a damned good team which happened to be hitting better on this particular day.

"I'm very proud that we beat two tough teams like Reading and Durfee in the tournament."

McPhee once played baseball for Waltham, and his coach Ray Yetten, is still coaching for Waltham.

Newton South's baseball future appears bright. Junior varsity baseball coach Steve McBride had a team this year which lost only three of 18 games. Some of the promising players are Don Ferreri, Lenny Kroicer, Carson Milgroom, Dave Minehart, Jeff Bennett, Mike Mosca, Dave Panella, and Matt Freidman.

Lee Ravech qualifies for Junior Olympics

Marcie Ravech and Lee Pistone of Newton competed in the A.A.U. Regional Gymnastic Championship of the Junior Olympic program at Farmingdale State College in New York recently.

When the competition was complete Ms. Ravech was the 1974 all-around gymnastic champion.

The competition was held on a Friday and Saturday with compulsory exercises performed on Friday and optionals on Saturday. There were 60 girls in the meet, all of whom had qualified for the competition through District elimination meets in late May.

The gymnasts came from all over the Northeast Region, representing Metropolitan New York, Upstate N.Y., New Jersey, all of New England and Connecticut. It was one of the highest level competition held in the East in the past five years.

Ravech was in fifth place after the compulsories with only six-tenths of a point between fifth and first position. Following the optionals the Bigelow Junior High ninth grader had moved into first place, winning the all-around title. Ravech also took first place on the uneven bars and a second place on the balance beam.

Pistone competed in the 10-12 age group and won a third place on balance beam and a fourth place in the all-around. For this group this represented the end of the Junior Olympic program.

For the 113-14-year old (Ravech's) group and the 15-18 year old youngsters, however, it was a chance to qualify to compete in the National Junior Olympics to be held in August at the University of Nebraska in Lincoln.

Only the top all-around girl from each of the older age groups is selected and Ravech's victory heralded her arrival on the national scene. The girls are under the direction of Dr. Joseph Massime of Newton.

Morrocco Golf Tournament slated for Wayland June 17

Nonantum Post 440 American Legion will sponsor the sixth annual M-Sgt. Domonic F. Marrocco Memorial Golf Tournament on Monday, June 17, at the Wayland Country Club.

This tournament, which was started in 1969 by Lt. Joseph A. Arnold, Mass. State Police, a former post commander, and Robert S. Burke, Post Service Officer, honors the memory of M-Sgt. Marrocco, a career serviceman who was killed in action in Korea. In World War II, Marrocco saw service at Pearl Harbor as well as at Normandy, France. It was during World War II that Marrocco, as part of a rescue team, went 90 miles behind the German lines to effect the rescue of American officers. During this rescue mission he was captured, held as a P.O.W. and then released at the wars end.

His two brothers, Jerry and Roger Marrocco, are both members of Nonantum Post 440. Roger is a past post commander.

Approximately 150 golfers will compete in the tournament with invited guests including Mayor Theodroe D. Mann, Joe Lazzaro of Waltham who is a six-time National Blind Golf champion, Captain Walter Drew of the Newton Palice Dept. and Charles Graceffa, clerk of the Waltham District Court..

On this same date the Legion Post will also conduct the Pat and Vito Capello Memmorial Bocce Tournament with the Capello Trophy presented in memory of Pat and Vito Capello. The Capellos were both active in business and civic circles and were sponsors of various Newton athletic youth league teams. This annual trophy is presented by their brothers, John, Albert, Francis and Joseph Capello.

The bocce tournament will be held between 4 and 7 p.m. Part of the days activities include a buffet lunch at the Post Headquarters, including free liquid refreshments, from 2 to 4:30 p.m.

At the conclusion of the golf and bocce tournaments an awards dinner will be held at the Post Headquarters, family style roast beef complete with antipasto, starting at 7:30 p.m. Frank Champion will be the master of ceremonies.

Committee members include Ed Hickey, Dick Cronin, Ed Boudreau and Bob Burke for the Golf Committee, Pasquale Panaggio, Dom Bianchi and Anthony "Fats" Pellegrini for the bocci committee, and Jim Kiley, Kevin Rooney, Don McAdams and Tom Desmond on the buffet committee.

Chairman Dick Cronin of the Golf Committee has advised that a special guest at the tournament and at the banquet will be Rev. Msgr. John M. Quirk of St. Bernard Church, West Newton. Rev. Msgr. Quirk is a former department chaplain of the American Legion, Commonwealth of Mass.

Don't go near the water until you've filed float plan

By MARK BOURBEAU
Coast Guard Journalist

Sammy Seaworthy set out on a bright Saturday morning to do a little fishing. A highly successful businessman, he had been making these weekend boat trips for years. He knew everything there was to know about boating, and his dandy, new outboard had all the required safety equipment, and then some. In fact, Sammy was a safety buff.

As he prepared to set off, he checked all his equipment thoroughly. Everything was in tip-top condition, and he was on his way. He remembered a tip from a salesman he's lunched with. "Try Landlubber Ledge," the man had said, winking. "The fish are twice as big there, and the best part is, nobody knows about it so you can have the fish to yourself. Sammy located the place on his chart. Well, the water was pretty shallow there, and the chart did show a few rocks, but with his experience... he made his decision, and off he went to Landlubber Ledge.

He hadn't been five minutes over the ledge before he found himself in trouble. His engine sputtered and abruptly died, and resisted his best attempts to restart it. He realized that the current was sweeping him toward the rocks. He put on his Lifejacket. The next thing he knew his boat had been thrust firmly up on the rocks. There was no major damage, but the boat was stuck. So Sammy, making the most of his bad luck, got out his fishing gear and settled down to await his rescue.

The trouble was, he hadn't told anyone where he was going. His wife knew he was going fishing, but she didn't know where, because he never made any concrete plans. Actually, she didn't even know what kind of a boat he had. So when she placed a worried call to the Coast Guard late that evening, about the only useful information she could give was that Sammy was five feet eight inches tall and had a tatoo of an anchor on his left forearm.

To make this tale short, the Coast Guard found Sammy three days later, some sixty miles down the coast from where his wife thought he "might have been going," thanks to a tip from that same friend of Sammy's, who had heard of the search on the radio. Sammy was still alive, although somewhat the worse for wear. He'd learned his lesson, he swore to the helicopter pilot who's rescued him. He'd never take a tip from that guy again. . .

The Green Thumb

By GEORGE ABRAHAM

CUT WORM DAMAGE: Many gardeners have written to tell us that their tomato, pepper and other plants have been clipped off at the base. This is the work of a cutworm, a C-shaped grub that hides under stones and in sod during the day, then comes out at night. Cutworms are common in grassy or weedy areas but are also present in "clean" gardens. They cut the stem off directly at the base. CONTROL: Wrap a piece of wax paper around each transplant to act as a barrier. Many gardeners use a card board milk carton (top and bottom cut off) and sink it in about 1 inch in the soil, enxlosing the transplant.

If the utem of your tomato plant is cut off at a slant, this is not the work of cutworms, but is rabbit injury. Rabbits always leave the stem stub sticking about an inch or so above the soil, and the stem is always cut at a sharp slant. Not so with cutworms. They make their cut at the soil surface. Controlling rabbits is not easy. A snow fence stretched around the garden is the simplest way to keep them out.

Some people say that buckwheat flour sprinkled on plants and around them will repel rabbits. Others use a highly scented (and inexpensive) talcum powder to repel rabbits. The powder is dusted around plants. Hot pepper will also keep them away.

Hanging baskets: Why not grow herbs and tomatoes in your hanging baskets? Hang them on your patio or in the kitchen. Best soil for a hanging basket is equal parts of soil, sand (perlite or vermiculite) and peatmoss, with some compost added. For an 8 to 10 inch diameter pot, use two plants or so, in the center, and 3 or 4 trailing plants on the outside. Good drainage is important.

Water the basket thoroughly immediately after planting. There are scads of flowering plants you can grow in hanging baskets. For shade, try Artillery plant. Asparagus fern, boston fern, browallia, caladium, Christman cactus, English ivy, Grape ivy, impatiens, coleus, pothos, petunias, tradescantia, tuberous begonia and Zebrina.

Green Thumb Clinic: "Snails have started working on our plants. I heard that salt sprinkled on them is sure death for snails. Is that true?

Ans: Yes, many gardeners take a salt shaker and flashlight in the garden at night. A pinch of salt sprinkled on a snail quickly finishes it off.

Backyard Frontier

By POLLY BRADLEY

Now that the weather's getting pleasant and the children getting restless, it's time to think of projects to keep them happily occupied, preferably usefully and preferably outside.

Some of the ideas Betty Miles suggests in Save the Earth, An Ecology Handbook for Kids (Knopf), fill the bill nicely, either as projects for individuals or as class projects for the teacher who has had it on a nice spring day but still wants to do some genuine teaching.

Being pollution detectives might appeal to youngsters. The air pollution detectives find a factory which is polluting the air, then take photos to prove it.

"Every day for a week, at the same time of day, stand in exactly the same place and take a photograph of the factory. Write down the day, the time, and the place in your notebook. When your pictures are developed, you will have proof of pollution.

"Now, find out what agency in your town or city is in charge of controlling air pollution and take your evidence of pollution to that agency."

Water pollution detectives could have even more fun. A walk along a river, a marsh, or a lake to look for signs of pollution would reveal plenty of evidence in most places.

The detectives write down all the pollution they can see - trash, garbage, sewage, oil, chemical waste - and where it was found. (Mrs. Miles points out that, of course, not all pollution can be seen. "Germs and many chemicals are invisible.")

When the curious detectives arrive back at school or at home, it's time to make a map of the scene of the crime. Then the detectives can track down the sources of pollution. It's perhaps a dump or a sewage pipe or a place without trash cans where people throw away picnic plates... and report the source to the proper agency.

Note that the emphasis isn't just on finding out, but also on working towards a solution. Save the Earth has an interesting section on how to write letters or organize groups to clean up pollution. There is enough background material to show kids why it's important to save the earth.

And the ecology poems are a joyful touch.

"People everywhere share the same land the same seas
the same air."

Information from VA

Q — I bought a house in 1954 with a maximum loan guaranty of $7,500 from the Veterans Administration. Do I have more entitlement coming, since the current loan guaranty maximum is $12,500?

A — Yes. You still have entitlement equal to the difference between $12,500 and $7,500; or $5,000 in loan guaranty.

Q — My mother receives dependency and indemnity compensation (DIC) from the Veterans Administration based on the service-connected death of my father during World War II. Is she eligible for aid and attendance benefits, since she is ill and requires almost constant attention?

A — Probably yes. A $55 monthly aid and attendance allowance, in addition to regular benefits, is available to widows who draw DIC, if they are: patients in nursing homes, helpless or blind, or so nearly helpless or blind as to require regular aid and attendance of other persons.

Q — I received an honorable discharge from the Army two years ago, and plan to live abroad starting next year. A friend of mine told me I should check with the Veterans Administration before departure. Why?

A — To be apprised of how residence abroad affects your veterans' benefits. For one thing, you should get a statement of your service-connected disabilities (if you have any) from the VA office which maintains your medical records. The statement and an application for medical benefits should be presented to the American Embassy or consular office in the country of travel or residence, should the need arise.

Health for all

Our normal life span should be 100 years instead of 72, says one Russian scientist. But too many things, like retirement and inactivity, shorten the span. Not to mention cigarettes and cholesterol.

Dr. Dimitrii Cebotarev, a Soviet physician who is president of the International Association of Gerontologists, reports that his country has more than 21,000 inhabitants — 16,000 of them women — who have reached the age of 100. The United States, in fact, has just as many.

One part of the explanation may be genetic, says Dr. Cebotarev. But another, he believes, is uninterrupted physical activity. Farming regions like the Ukraine have high percentages of older people. One man who recently died at the age of 165 continued working on the land until his last days.

"We can't reverse the process of aging," he says, "but we can slow down premature aging." Among possible aids, he cited multivitamins to increase the metabolism and facilitate certain chemical processes. Adding antioxidants to milk and butter might help; studies show these substances prolong the life of mice from 10 to 15 percent longer.

Inactivity may hasten aging, as the doctor believes. So does poverty, lack of attention to diet, poor housing, feeling isolated from people, and inadequate medical care. And there is no question that cigarette smoking shortens the lives of 300,000 Americans every year.

THE FLAG CODE

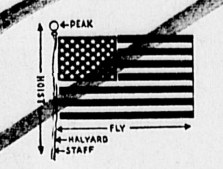
As Adopted by the National Flag Conference, Washington, D.C., June 14-15, 1923, and Revised and Endorsed by the Second National Flag Conference, Washington, May 15, 1924. Revised, March 1943, to Comply with P. L. 623, 77th Congress, Second Session, and as Amended by H. J. Res. 359, Dec. 1942, and by P. L. 396, 83rd Congress, June 14, 1954.

NATIONAL AMERICANISM COMMISSION — THE AMERICAN LEGION — INDIANAPOLIS, IND., U. S. A.

How to Display the Flag of the United States of America

DESCRIPTION OF THE FLAG

The Flag of the United States of America has 13 horizontal stripes—7 red and 6 white—the red and white stripes alternating, and a union which consists of white stars of five points on a blue field placed in the upper quarter next to the staff and extending to the lower edge of the fourth red stripe from the top. The number of stars is the same as the number of States in the Union.



Effective July 4, 1960*, the canton or union contains 50 stars arranged as indicated in the above reproduction. On the admission of a State into the Union a star will be added to the union of the Flag, and such addition will take effect on the 4th day of July next succeeding such admission. The proportions of the Flag as prescribed by Executive Order of President Taft, October 29, 1912*, are as follows:

Hoist (width) of Flag..	1.
Fly (length) of Flag..	1.9
Hoist (width) of union	7/13
Fly (length) of union	0.76
Width of each stripe...	1/13
Diameter of each star	.0616

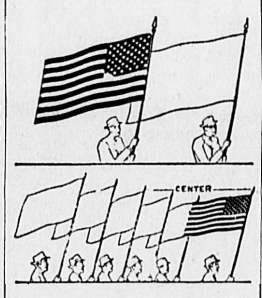
PROPER MANNER OF DISPLAYING THE FLAG

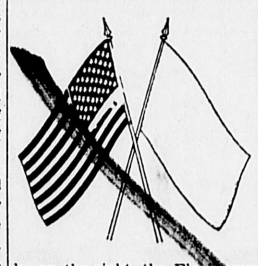
There are certain fundamental rules of heraldry, which if understood generally, would indicate the proper method of displaying the Flag of the United States of America. The matter becomes a very simple one if it is kept in mind that the Flag represents the living country and is itself considered as a living thing. The union of the Flag is the honor point; the right arm is the sword arm and therefore the point of danger and hence the place of honor.

1. The Flag should be displayed only from sunrise to sunset, or between such hours as may be designated by proper authority. However, the Flag may be displayed at night upon special occasions when it is desired to produce a patriotic effect. It should be hoisted briskly, but should be lowered slowly and ceremoniously. The Flag should be displayed on all National and State holidays and on historic and special occasions. (However, being the emblem of our country, it ought to fly from every flagpole every day throughout the year, weather permitting.) Special care should be taken to see that the Flag is displayed on the following days: New Year's Day, January 1; Inauguration Day, January 20; Lincoln's Birthday, February 12; Washington's Birthday, February 22; Easter Sunday (variable); Mother's Day, second Sunday in May; Armed Forces Day, third Saturday in May; Memorial Day (half staff until noon), May 30; Flag Day, June 14; Independence Day, July 4; Labor Day, first Monday in September; Citizenship Day, September 17; Columbus Day, October 12; Veterans Day, November 11; Thanksgiving Day, fourth Thursday of November; Christmas Day, December 25; such other days as may be proclaimed by the President of the United States; the birthdays of States (dates of admission); and on State holidays. The Flag should be displayed daily, weather permitting, on or near the main administration building of every public institution. The Flag should be displayed in or near every polling place on election days and, during school days, in or near every schoolhouse.

2. When carried in a procession with another flag or flags, the Flag of the United States of America should be either on the marching right, i.e., the Flag's own right, or when there is a line of other flags, the Flag of the United States of America may be in front of the center of that line.

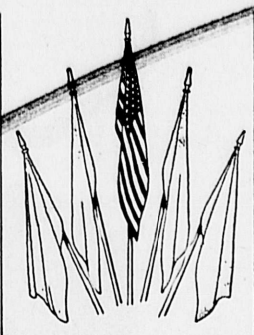


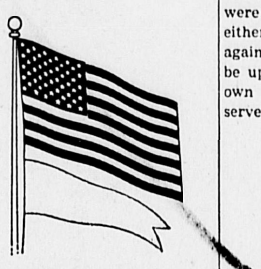
3. When displayed with another flag against a wall from crossed staffs, the Flag of the United States of America should be on the right, the Flag's own right, and its staff should be in front of the staff of the other flag.



4. When a number of flags of States or cities or pennants of societies are grouped and displayed from staffs with the Flag of the United States of America, the latter should be at the center or at the highest point of the group.

5. When flags of States or cities or pennants of societies are flown on the same halyard with the Flag of the United States of America, the latter should always be at the peak. When flown from adjacent staffs the Flag of the United States of America should be hoisted first and lowered last. No such flag or pennant flown in the former position should be placed above, or in the latter position to the right of the Flag of the United States of America, i.e., to the observer's left, except during church services conducted by naval chaplains at sea, when the church pennant may be flown above the Flag during church services for the personnel of the Navy.

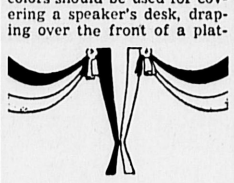




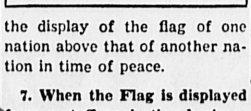
6. When flags of two or more nations are displayed they should be flown from separate staffs of the same height and the flags should be of approximately equal size. International usage forbids the display of the flag of one nation above that of another nation in time of peace.

PROPER USE OF BUNTING

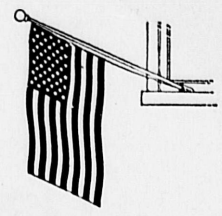
Bunting of the National colors should be used for covering a speaker's desk, draping over the front of a platform and for decoration in general. Bunting should be arranged with the blue above, the white in the middle, and the red below.

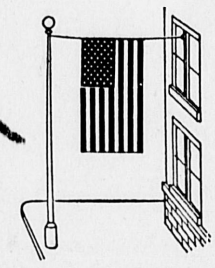


7. When the Flag is displayed from a staff projecting horizontally or at an angle from the window sill, balcony or front of building, the union of the Flag should go clear to the peak of the staff unless the Flag is at half-staff. (When the Flag is suspended over a sidewalk from a rope, extending from a house to a pole at the edge of the sidewalk, the Flag should be hoisted out from the building towards the pole, union first.)



8. When the Flag is displayed otherwise than by being flown from a staff, it should be displayed flat, whether indoors or out, or so suspended that its folds fall as free as though the Flag were staffed. When displayed either horizontally or vertically against a wall, the union should be uppermost and to the Flag's own right; that is, to the observer's left. When displayed in a window, the Flag should be displayed in the same way; that is, with the union, or blue field, to the left of the observer in the street.



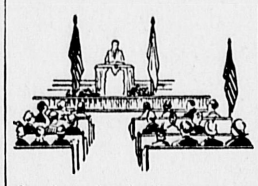


9. When displayed over the middle of the street, the Flag should be suspended vertically with the union to the north in an east and west street or to the east in a north and south street.

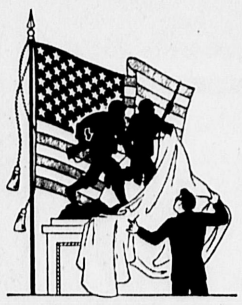
10. When used on a speaker's platform, the Flag, if displayed flat, should be displayed above and behind the speaker.

When displayed from a staff in a church or public auditorium, if it is displayed in the chancel or on the platform it should be placed in the position of honor at the right of the congregation or audience as they face the chancel or platform. Any other flag so displayed should be placed on the left of the congregation or audience as they face the chancel or platform.

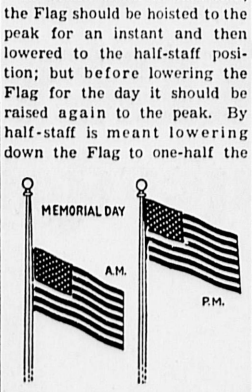
of a church, or on the speaker's platform in a public auditorium, the flag should occupy the position of honor and be placed at the clergyman's or speaker's right as he faces the congregation or audience. Any other flag so displayed in the chancel or on the platform should be placed at the clergyman's or speaker's left as he faces the congregation or audience. But when the flag is displayed from a staff in a church or public auditorium elsewhere than in the chancel or on the platform it should be placed in the position of honor at the right of the congregation or audience as they face the chancel or platform. Any other flag so displayed should be placed on the left of the congregation or audience as they face the chancel or platform.



11. When used in connection with the unveiling of a statue or monument, the Flag should form a distinctive feature during the ceremony, but the Flag itself should never be used as the covering for the statue.



12. When flown at half-staff, the Flag should be hoisted to the peak for an instant and then lowered to the half-staff position; but before lowering the Flag for the day it should be raised again to the peak. By half-staff is meant lowering down the Flag to one-half the distance between the top and the bottom of the staff. On Memorial Day, May 30th, the Flag is displayed at half-staff from sunrise until noon and at full staff from noon until sunset; for the Nation lives and the Flag is the symbol of the living Nation. Crepe is used on the flagstaff only by order of the President.



13. When used to cover a casket, the Flag should be placed so that the union is at the head and over the left shoulder. The Flag should not be lowered into the grave nor allowed to touch the ground. The casket should be carried foot first.

14. When the Flag is in such a condition that it is no longer a fitting emblem for display, it should not be cast aside or used in any way that might be viewed as disrespectful to the National colors, but should be destroyed as a whole privately, preferably by burning or by some other method in harmony with the reverence and respect we owe to the emblem representing our Country.

15. Any rule or custom pertaining to the display of the Flag of the United States of America, set forth herein, may be altered, modified, or repealed, or additional rules with respect thereto may be prescribed by the Commander-in-Chief of the Army and Navy of the United States whenever he deems it to be appropriate or desirable; and any such alteration or additional rule shall be set forth in a proclamation.

CAUTIONS

1. Do not permit disrespect to be shown to the Flag of the United States of America.
2. Do not dip the Flag of the United States of America to any person or any thing. The regimental color, State flag, organization or institutional flag will render this honor.
3. Do not display the Flag with the union down except as a signal of distress.
4. Do not place any other flag or pennant above or, if on the same level, to the right of the Flag of the United States of America.
5. Do not let the Flag touch the ground or the floor, or trail in the water.
6. Do not place any object or emblem of any kind on or above the Flag of the United States of America.
7. The Flag should never be used as drapery of any sort whatsoever, never festooned, drawn back, nor up, in folds, but always allowed to fall free. Bunting of blue, white and red, always arranged with the blue above, the white in the middle, and the red below, should be used for covering a speaker's desk, draping the front of a platform, and for decoration in general.
8. Do not fasten the Flag in such manner as will permit it to be easily torn.
9. Do not drape the Flag over the hood, top, sides or back of a vehicle, or of a railway train or boat. When the Flag is displayed on a motor car, the staff should be affixed firmly to the chassis, or clamped to the radiator cap.
10. Do not display the Flag on a float in a parade except from a staff.
11. Do not use the Flag as a covering for a ceiling.
12. Do not carry the Flag flat or horizontally, but always aloft and free.
13. Do not use the Flag as a portion of a costume or of an athletic uniform. Do not embroider it upon cushions or handkerchiefs nor print it on paper napkins or boxes.
14. Do not put lettering of any kind upon the Flag.
15. Do not use the Flag in any form of advertising nor fasten an advertising sign to a pole from which the Flag is flown.
16. Do not display, use or store the Flag in such a manner as will permit it to be easily soiled or damaged.
17. The Flag should never be used as a receptacle for receiving, holding, carrying, or delivering anything.

Cautions and Suggestions: Additional Points to Bear in Mind in Paying Homage to the Flag

SALUTE TO THE FLAG

During the ceremony of hoisting or lowering the Flag, or when the Flag is passing in a parade or in a review, all persons present should face the Flag, stand at attention, and salute. Those present in uniform should render the military salute. When not in uniform, men should remove the headdress with the right hand, holding it at the left shoulder, the hand being over the heart. Men without hats should salute in the same manner. Aliens should stand at attention. Women should salute by placing the right hand over the heart. The salute to the Flag in the moving column should be rendered at the moment the Flag passes.

SALUTE TO NATIONAL ANTHEM

When the National Anthem is played and the Flag is not displayed, all present should stand and face toward the music. Those in uniform should salute at the first note of the Anthem, retaining this position until the last note. All others should stand at attention, men removing the headdress. When the Flag is displayed, all present should face the Flag and salute.

The "Star-Spangled Banner" is now the National Anthem of the United States of America. It was made such by Act of Congress, March 3, 1931.

PLEDGE TO THE FLAG

In pledging allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, the approved practice in schools, which is suitable also for civilian adults, is as follows:

"I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America and to the Republic for which it stands, one Nation under God, indivisible, with Liberty and Justice for all," is rendered by standing with the right hand over the heart. However, civilians will always show full respect to the Flag when the pledge is given by merely standing at attention, men removing the headdress. Persons in uniform should render the military salute.

THE SHIELD

The shield of the United States of America has 13 vertical stripes, 7 white and 6 red, with a blue chief without stars.

"I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America and to the Republic for which it stands, one Nation under God, indivisible, with Liberty and Justice for all."

Warren D. Russell new director of Baptist Home

Rev. Warren D. Russell of Kingston, associate administrator of the Baptist Home of Massachusetts in

Rev. Warren Russell

Newton, and the Baptist Retirement Residence Center at Kingston, has been apointed executive director of both facilites, effective July 1.

Announcement was made by J. Irving Rawding of Winchester, president of the Baptist Homes.

Russell will succeed Rev. Leland Maxfield, who is retiring after 15 years service.

A long-time resident of Chelmsford, Russell has held pastorates in Lowell, Worcester, Tewksbury, Amesbury, all in Massachusetts; and also Conshohocken, Penn., and Jobstown, N.J.

Widely known in Baptist circles as a former field representative of the American Baptist Home Mission Society, with headquaryers at Valley Forge, Pa., Russell began his duties as an associate of the Baptist Home in Newton in September, 1972. The Newton facility, now marking it's 83rd year, has a family of more than 130 members.

Born in Somerville, he was active at the Grace Baptist Church in that city, serving in many capacities as president of the youth group, and youth minister for special activities, and in 1954 was ordained to the Christian ministry while still a member.

He is a graduate of Somerville Vocational High School, and LaSalle University College, class of 1947. He received his B.A. degree from Crozer Theological Seminary, Pa., in 1954. He has completed post graduate work at Boston University School of Theology and Andover Newton Theological School, Newton Center.

Russell enlisted in the U.S. Army in 1943 and served nearly three years in an anti-craft unit. Later, he became an assistant to the chaplain in the same outfit.

While a student in Virginia, he served several small churches and conducted special evangelistic servoces

He served the American Baptist Home Mission Society from 1964-1965.

Always active in community endeavors, he served as treasurer and board member of the Montgomery County Council of the Pennsylvania Association for Retarded Children, a member of the advisory board of the Greater Lowell Council of Boy Scouts and chaplain of the Protestant Lay Committee, a member of the Lowell Mental Health Council, and secretary of the Conshohocken Kiwanis Club. He is also chaplain of the Wamesit Masonic Lodge of Tewksbury, and a member of the Speaker's Bureau of the Grand Lodge of Masons of Massachusetts.

He is married to the former Shirley Alice Harrison of Somerville. The couple has one son, Robert Russell of Lowell.

Chairman

James Lampert was the dinner-dance committee chairman for the party held by B'nai B'rith Market Lodge June 1, at Chestnut Hill Country Club.

Open house at Temple Shalom

An informal open house will be held at Temple Shalom of Newton on Sunday, June 23, 10 a.m. to noon, for new and prospective members.

Officers, rabbis, and representatives of the Membership Committee will welcome guests to acquaint them with the Temple's facilities and to explain its program of Reform Judaism. All interested families from the western suburban area are invited.

Temple Shalom now has a congregation of 600 families. Temple Shalom is located at 175 Temple St., West Newton.

New students

New students planning to attend Newton North High School in September should contact the guidance department to make an appointment from June 26 to July 24.

The phone number to call for information and appointments is 969-9810.

June 16 party to benefit Israel Bonds

Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Slotnick will host a Father's Day poolside party at their Waban home on behalf of State of Israel Bonds on Sunday afternoon, June 16.

Announcement of the event was made by Mrs. Stewart Bloom, chairman of the parlor meeting program of the Greater Boston Women's Division of Israel Bonds, who also disclosed that the guest artist at the event would be the baritone and reconteur Mort Freeman.

Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Slotnick have both been active for many years in a host of communal endeavors. They served as co-chairmen of the Heart Fund Ball in 1969 and served jointly as president of the Couples Club of Congregation Kehillath Israel many years ago. They are currently members of Temple Emanuel of Newton.

Mr. Slotnick has long been involved in B'nai B'rith and Combined Jewish Philanthropies and presently serves as a member of the board of directors of the Home Builders Association.

Louise Slotnick is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hyman E. Cline. Her father was a co-founder of the Maimonides in which Mrs. Slotnick is still active as a life member.

She was also active in the American Jewish Congress and served as life membership chairman of the Kidney Foundation of Massachusetts. She is a life member of the Hebrew Rehabilitation Center for Aged, the Boston Association for Retarded Children, Beth Israel Hospital and Brookline Hospital.

Emersons celebrating

Emersons, Ltd., is celebrating its fifth anniversary by featuring choice prime rib dinner at a special anniversary price.

The dinner will include unlimited salad, warm bread and pitchers of draught beer.

Jehovah Witnesses to convene July 4

The Watchtower Bible and Tract Society has revealed plans for 85 district conventions of Jehovah's Witnesses in the United States and Canada in 1974.

J. Montopoli, presiding minister of the Newton congregation of JehovahS Witnesses, said there will be 74 assemblies for English-speaking delegates and 11 meetings in Spanish, French and Italian.

Montopoli said approximately 100 delegates will represent the Newton congregation at the convention scheduled for Pawtucket, R.I., July 4 through the 7.

He added that 14,000 delegates are expected to attend the Pawtucket convention set for the Narragansett Park Race Track.

"The combined attendance is expected to reach nearly one-million persons this year. Young and old, family groups and even the infirm will be there," he said.

The highlight of the convention program will be the public discourse on the subject "Human Plans Failing as God's Purpose Succeeds."

A Baptism service will also be held.

Jewish Men's Clubs to hold Laymen's Institute

The New England Region of the National Rederation of Jewish Men's Clubs will hold its 28th annual Laymen's Institute from Thursday, June 20, to Sunday, June 23, at Camp Tel Noar, Hampstead , New Hampshire.

This experience features a weekend of comradeship and participation in Jewish living in an atmosphere of learning. There are facilities for swimming, tennis, and other sports.

This year's faculty will be led by Avraham Holtz, professor of modern hebrew literature at the Teachers' Institute and the Gradute Rabbinical School of the Jeish Theological Seminary of America.

Rabbi Holtz is also a staff assistant to Gerson Cohen, chancellor of the Seminary. In this his third year at the Institute, Holtz will continue his seminars on the works of S. Y. Agnon and other Hebrew authors and poets. He will also discuss his insightes into portions of the Siddur.

Leo Karas of Neton Centre is general chairman of the Institute. Joseph H. Rosenshine and M. Arthuur Gordon both of Newton are facuoty co-chairmen. Other committee members include: Leo Shufrin, Brookline; Joseph Don Gusenoff, Chestnut Hill; Melvin Saftler, Brockton; Joseph Cohen and Ronald Silver, Worcester, Acton; Harold Parritz and Parritz and Erwin Greenberg, Newton; Joseph Cohen and Ronald Silver, Worcester; Dr. Milton Insuik and Richard Berman, Marblehead, Swampscott; Samuel Primack, Cranston, R.I. ; and Harry Weisberg and Rubin Laskoff, Portland Me. Jacob Sieve of Waban is president of the Region.

The real difference between the Bruins and Celtics

sports Spice

Commentary by Bruce Cornblatt

What made it sweeter was that both games were on television at the same time.

It enabled everyone to see for themselves the real difference between the Celtics and the Bruins. Both teams had just lost heartbreaking games in the last seconds of play; the Celtics by one point in overtime, the Bruins in sudden death. When the afternoon ended, the Celtics were the new N.B.A. champions, while the Bruins went down another game in their losing series with the Flyers. It was there, as it has always been there. The difference between the Celtics and the Bruins is really a fundamental one—it is called character.

Let it be said here that I am not a Bruin hater. As a longtime Boston sports fan, I root for the Bruins and I think Bobby Orr and Phil Esposito are extraordinary hockey players. I am not here to debate the quality of the Bruins or the Celtics. I merely wish to make some observations about the real fiber of the two teams.

Let's look at this thing—character. What is it? It, like love or beauty or class, is a hard thing to define. Perhaps it was best described by a prominent United States Senator trying to define an impeachable offense. "I don't know what it is. I'll just know it when I see it." Why does one see it in the Celtics and not in the Bruins?

First, look at the managements of the two teams. In the last fifteen years, the Celtics have had three coaches—Red Auerbach, Bill Russell and Tommy Heinsohn. The Bruins have had that many coaches in the last five years. As for general managers, the Celtics have had one real boss, Mr. Auerbach. The Bruins front office stability is best typified by Harry Sinden coaching, quitting, talking to Sports Illustrated, and returning as major domo of the team. As for Milt Schmidt fiasco, the less said the better. Character—you know it when you see it.

Let's move to the players.

Where the Bruins have stories about Mike Walton walking through glass doors and Derek Sanderson popping off every other week, the Celtics just go about their business. The W.H.A. has lured people like Teddy Green, John Mackenzie and Gerry Cheevers with little difficulty.

There has never been even a rumor of a Celtic going to the A.B.A. As for cooperation with the press, the difference is even more startling. Where John Havlicek and Dave Cowens are always available and willing to the press, Bobby Orr and Phil Esposito dress in the training room and are virtually inaccessible for post-game interviews.

As for their performance on the ice, has anyone every seen a Bruin get called for a penalty without a verbal attack for the referee and a poignant slam of the penalty box door? In the same vein, has anyone ever seen a Havlicek or Cowens rant and rave over every infraction? Let's put it another way, who would you want your child to emulate—Wayne Cashman or John Havlicek? Character—you know it when you see it.

The question now remains—why are the Boston fans so devoted to the Bruins? Why is ten thousand fans considered a "good" crowd for the Celtics, when twenty short of capacity is a disaster for the Bruins. Part of the reason has to be the nature of the game.

In violent, fast-moving times, hockey is a much more violent fast moving game. Part of it, I suspect, is a racial factor. That discussion, however, is for another column. Much of it is rooted in the media.

The hockey columnists in this town fall just short of hero worshipping when describing the Bruins. While the Celtic writers are certainly not impartial, they do not write with the same reverence and partiality toward their home team's players. With virtually every Bruin game on the tube, we all know Shep, Espie, and Hodgie and remember with fondness Pie, Shaky, and Cheesie. Is it any wonder that when one does get an interview with a Bruin Star, it feels like an audience with the Queen.

Talking to Dave Cowens is like talking to an old friend. Character.

One final note on the Boston media. Some nights we were blitzed by television commentators, exclaiming what a great team the Celtics are and how much classier they are than the Bruins. They then tell us what a disgrace it is that the Bruins get all the publicity and recognition in this town. Who do these T.V. stars think give all the publicity to the Bruins? These are the same people who tell us what a disgrace hockey fighting is to sports—saving their verbal lecture until after the third replay of an O'Reilly-Shultz fight.

So now the Celtics are champions and the Bruins are in serious trouble. The bandwagon jumping is in full swing. If you play it smart, you stick with the players and teams with character. As for all you longtime Celtics lovers, don't let these late, fair weather fans bother you. Hypocrisy is something else you know when you see it.

Letter explains tennis controversy

Editor's notes:

In the May 23, 1974, edition of "The Newton Graphic," Bob Low wrote an article about the Newton North boys' tennis team.

In describing a match between Newton North and Newton South, Low wrote, "Using a vastly shifted line-up, South came up with a narrow 3-2 victory . . . After the match, it was pointed out that Newton South had shifted six of their seven players from the day before when they had played Acton-Boxboro. It was also indicated that the rules state that a team's best two players must play first and second singles.

Ill-feeling appears to have arisen from the suggestion that Newton South may have used an illegal line-up. George Jessup, coach of Newton North, has asked to clarify circumstances surrounding this match and Low's article. A statement from Jessup follows:

"As coach of the Newton North tennis team, I did not want to break a fine tradition of an annual meeting between the two schools.

"Prior to the match, Mr. Val Cyr indicated one of his players was slightly injured. I in turn stated, 'Play any line-up, I just want to get the match in,' since it was the only available date left.

"Newton North's tennis team is very much aware of the state rules concerning tennis which are briefly: the number one player must be the best player, the number two player must be the second best player. The first doubles must be the best doubles, and the second doubles must be the second best doubles.

"Newton North lost to Newton South, 2-3, in a very exciting match. Both teams played very well and the match could have been won by either team. I feel that my teamed played beyond expectations and I should in no way want to protest the match or South's line-up. Especially since there was a gentleman's agreement beforehand.

"However, it was great to see my number two doubles team defeat South's first doubles team (which was playing in the second doubles spot). North's first doubles team lost in a tiebreaker (third set) against Bill and Tom Karol.

"I apologize for not telling Robert Low (who is also one of my teennis players) about the agreement that Mr. Cyr and I set up before playing the match concerning placement of players.

"Robert Low, the writer of the article, was correct in what he wrote with regard to the rules. I do feel that as coaches we must be able to take care of our own problems instead of resorting to the printed word which at times can be somewhat distorted to sell papers (.NOT THE "Graphic," though).

"This letter is an attempt to pacify Mr. Val Cyr since I do believe his feelings and prestige were hurt by the article written by Robert Low, a student reporter.

"I honestly feel (and I feel bad about thinking this) that the Newton North-Newton South tennis tradition should be terminated if such a hassle as this takes place again."

South duo wins state tennis title

By MARK SHUSTER

The duo of Tom Karol and Dan Braverman played two strong sets of tennis recently to defeat Jeff Hacker and Joe Campanella of Longmeadow, 6-3, 6-3.

The win climaxed a great season for the steadily improving sophomores and earned them the state doubles title.

The State and New England Team Tennis Tournaments concluded last week. Newton South was defeated in both competitions by champion Weston.

In the semi-final of the State Tournament, the Lions defeated Longmeadow, 3-2. Humberto Fagundes defaulted in first singles due to injury after South had clinched a victory. Bill Karol lost in second singles, 1-6, 6-1, 7-5.

Roger Gordon won in third singles, 8-6, 6-0. Braverman and Tom Karol were victorious, 4-6, 6-2, 6-2. Jeff Levin and Doug Fisher won in the other doubles match, 6-4, 7-5.

In the other semi-final match, Weston defeated Worcester Doherty, 5-0.

Weston won the state title with a 3-2 victory over South. The win avenged a loss to the Lions in the final of the EMass tournament.

Fagundes won in first singles, 3-6, 6-2, 7-5. Clayton Rogers defeated Bill Karol, 6-2, 6-2. Gordon lost in third singles, 6-2, 6-4.

Tom Karol and Braverman were winners in first doubles, 4-6, 6-3, 9-7, but Levin and Fisher lost in second doubles, 6-4, 3-6, 6-1.

The New England Tournament was the end of a long tennis season.

For the third time this season, Weston and Newton South met in a tournament final. Weston advanced to the final round with victories over Laconia, N.H. and South Portland, Me. Newton South defeated Barrington, R.I. and Kearsage, N.H.

The tournament was not as complete as it has been in the past as only four New Englnad states were represented. No teams from Connecticut or Vermont competed.

Weston, aided by two Newton South defaults, was victorious, 4-1.

In first singles, Weston's Ken Swain won by default. Fagundes complained of fatigue in the second set. Swain had won the first set 7-6.

In second singles, Bill Karol gave South its only point of the match. He defeated Rogers, 6-3, 6-2. In third singles, Scott Stettner defeated Doug Fisher by default when Fisher was unable to finish the match because of a sprained ankle.

Tom Karol and Braverman lost 6-4, 6-0, to Peter Savitz and Doug Reny. Levin and Gordon were beaten by Jim Breck and Chuck Keller, 6-0, 7-5.

Bill Karol, Gordon and Levin will be gone next year, but Fagundes, Fisher, Tom Karol and Braverman are expected back. Other prospects for next years varsity are junior standouts Mike Sklar and Geoff Small.

Coach Val Cyr and Andrew Cornblatt deserve credit for the success of this year's team.

Chess Chatter

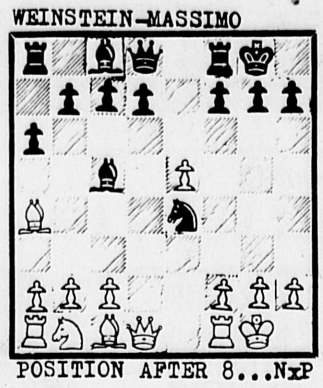
By ANDREW SCHMIDT

Near the Boylston St. MBTA station in downtown Boston stands the Young Men's Christian Union at 48 Boylston.

On the second floor, tucked away behind the billiards room, are the playing facilities of the Boylston Chess Club, the oldest and strongest club in New England. The club is sponsoring two events later this month that are of great importance to the metropolitan Boston area.

The first is the annual New England Junior Open, a four round, one-day tournament. For 'kids' under 21, this tournament is designed to produce a player to represent New England in the country's national tournament in Pennsylvania in August. This is the ideal tournament for younger players to break into United States Chess Federation (USCF) rated play, for all contestants are young. The entry fee is $5 if mailed by Jine 18, otherwise it doubles to $10. Round one is at 10 a.m. on Saturday, June 22, with entries at the door taken from 9 to 9:30 a.m. All players are urged to bring their own sets, boards, and chess clocks if they own them.

WEINSTEIN–MASSIMO



POSITION AFTER 8...NxP

The second event, open to anyone regardless of age, is a simultaneous exhibition by the country's ninth ranked player, Norman Weinstein. Weinstein is originally from New York, but now lives in Allston. Actually, his mailing address is in Allston . . . usually he is playing somewhere in the hemisphere winning chess tournaments!

He won last year the US Open in Chicago, the Chicago International, and the Atlantic Open among others. Weinstein's rating of 2504 puts him ahead of several grandmasters in this country and his simultaneous is an excellent way to do battle with a chess giant. The fee is $6, advanced registration is urged. The simul is at 2 p.m. on Sunday, June 23. Once again, players are requested to bring their own sets and boards. Registration to both events should be addressed to Steven Frymer, 1251 Commonwealth Avenue, Allston MA 02134. USCF membership of $5 a year is required only for the Junior Open.

Now, I have dug up this fantastic game by a Newton junior high school player from Waban against Weinstein at a simul in early 1974 at the Harvard Club.

I played against Weinstein last year and lost in 24 moves, so Jay Massimo has every right to be extremely proud of this game. Incredibly, Weinstein blunders with 9 N-Q2 (better was B-N3) since if 11 KxB Q-R5ch picks up the floating Bishop of White. Returning the material with 16 . . . RxN if forced, since if 16 . . . K-N1 17 N-N5ch wins. Note Black's fine 26th move, after which not even a master can win against Massimo. An excellent game.

Obituaries

George Gagan former Newton Graphic editor

Services for George Gagan, 71, of 84 Hally street, Lowell, former editor of the Newton Graphic, who died Friday, were held Monday morning with a funeral mass in the Sacred Heart Church, Lowell.

Born in Lowell, he began his newspaper career as sports editor of the old Lowell Sunday Telegram and was later promoted to managing editor. He was a former president of the Lowell Lions Club.

In the early 50's he became associated with the Transcript Newspapers and later was named editor of the Newton Graphic, a position he held until he retired in October, 1972.

Mr. Gagannformerly resided at 460 Belgrade avenue, West Roxbury.

Surviving are his wife, a son, George R. of Lowell, associated with the New England Telephone Co.; a daughter, Mrs. Arlene Hall, also of Lowell and four grandchildren.

Burial was in Tewksbury Cemetery.

It was his wish that, instead of flowers, memorial gifts be made to the American Cancer Society.

Margaret J. Maloney

A funeral mass was said in Our Lady's Church Saturday (June 8) for Mrs. Margaret J. (Drennan) Maloney.

Mrs. Maloney, 81, of 104 Farwell St., Newtonville, died Wednesday (June 5) in Newton-Wellesley Hospital after a long illness.

Wife of the late Francis X. Maloney, she is sruvived by two sons, Frances G. of Auburndale and Albert D. of Chelmsford; a daughter, Mrs. Rita I. Bong of Newtonville; three sisters, Mrs. Mary Bilodeau of Brockton, Mrs. Elizabeth Johnson of Florida and Mrs. Gertrude Hamilton of Wayland; seven grandchildren and 11 great-grandchildren.

Burial is in Calvary Cemetery, Waltham.

Leo F. Leary

Leo F. Leary, 44, of 206 Franklin St., Newton, died Sunday (June 9).

A retired Marine Corps reserve lieutenant colonel, Mr. Leary was a real estate investor and owner and operator of the Randolph Country Club.

He graduated from Boston College in 1952 and served with the Marine Corps during the Korean War. Active in the reserve, he was a former commander of Marine Air Support Squadron No. 6 and a life member of the VFW.

Mr. Leary is survived by his wife, Mrs. Ursula C. Leary; five children, Alison M., Andrew P., Anthony T., Nicholas F. and Jocelyn A.; five brothers, James E. of Newton, Paul F. of Weymouth, Joseph A. of Newton, Rt. Rev. Albert R. of Dickinson, N.D., and Robert V. of Newton; and three sisters, Mrs. Margaret A. Campbell of Newton, Mrs. Marie B. McCarthy of Westwood and Mrs. Phillip A. O'Connell of Medford.

Funeral services were to be held this morning (June 13) with a 10 a.m. mass in Our Lady's Church.

Burial is to be in Newton Cemetery.

Florence Sholkin

Memorial services were held in Levine Chapel Sunday (June 9) for Mrs. Florence (Levitan) Sholkin.

Mrs. Sholkin, 59, of 32 Country Club Rd., died Tuesday (June 4) in Mt. Auburn Hospital, Cambridge.

She was the president of the Newton Travel Agency Inc. at the time of her death.

Mrs. Sholkin was a graduate of Wellesley College and was active in Newton civic organizations.

She is survived by her husband, Joseph L. Sholkin; two daughters, Mrs. Louise Goldberg of Wellesley and Mrs. Susan Sweig of Lyndhurst, Ohio; two brothers, Benjamin and Harold Levitan; and her sister, Mrs. Rosilyn Moses, all of Tarrytown, N.Y.

Arthur McCarthy

The funeral of Arthur M. McCarthy took place Saturday (June 8) with a mass in Sacred Heart Church.

Mr. McCarthy, of 16 Manomet Rd., Newton Centre, died Wednesday (June 5) in Newton-Wellesley Hospital after a long illness. He was a retired vice president of American Mutual Liability Insurance Co., Wakefield.

Mr. McCarthy is survived by his wife, Mrs. Marie McCarthy; his daughter, Mrs. Barbara Mansfield of McLean, Va.; and three granddaughters.

Jay Gordon

Jay Gordon, 55, of 10 Voss Terrace, Newton Centre, died Thursday (June 6) in Massachusetts General Hospital.

A resident of Newton for the past 25 years, Mr. Gordon was born in East Boston, was a graduate of Boston Latin and attended Bentley Business School.

President of the Sunshield Window Corp. of Newton, manufacturers of storm windows, doors and related aluminum products, Gordon was a founder of the Newton East Little League, and over the years of his work with the youth of Newton, he served as an officer in the organization of that league and the Newton Babe Ruth League, of which he was also an originator and sponsor.

He was also an officer of the Newton Twilight League, having devoted a lifetime to the children of Newton and baseball. He was a long-time member of Kiddie Kamp of Sharon.

He was a former president of the New Finance Co., of Boston and the president of Replique Gems of Boston. For many years he taught Hebrew School at Temple Emanuel of Newton, and was a long-time member of Garden City Lodge, AF & AM of Newton.

He is survived by his wife, Sylvia (Meyers), by two sons, Alan M. of Brookline and Steven M. of Newton and by a brother, Edward of Brookline.

Services were held at the Stanetsky-Schlossberg-Solomon Memorial Chapel, Brookline, Sunday (June 9). Rabbi Gerald Zelermyer of Temple B'nai Moshe in Brighton officiated. Interment is in Beth El Cemetery, West Roxbury.

Mary Scipione

A funeral mass was said Monday (June 10) in Our Lady's Church for Mrs. Mary L. (Pucciarelli) Scipione.

Mrs. Scipione, 70, of 605 Walnut St., Newton ville, died Thursday (June 6) in Newton-Wellesley Hospital.

Born in Newton and a lifelong resident of the city, Mrs. Scipione was a well-known concert violinist and teacher. She received her degree from the Longy School of Music in Cambridge and studied with Elizabeth Fyffe, a founder of the All Newton Music School.

Mrs. Scipione was concert mistress of the Newton Symphony Orchestra, concert violinist in the Wellesley Orchestra and a violinist in the Cape Ann Symphony Orchestra in Gloucester. She had also performed at Tanglewood.

Mrs. Scipione was on the faculty of the All Newton Music School for 50 years and also taught privately.

She is survived by her husband, Atty. Arthur S. Scipione, former Newton alderman and former clerk of Newton District Court; her daughter, Mrs. Carol S. Fialkosky of West Newton; a sister, Mrs. Helen Mazzola of Daytona Beach, Fla.; three grandchildren and several nieces and nephews.

The celebrant of the mass Monday was Rev. George Pucciarelli of St. Joseph's Church in Needham, Mrs. Scipione's grandnephew.

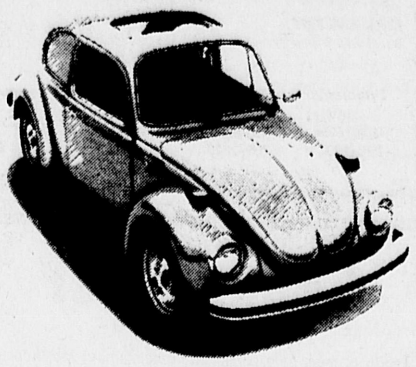
THE SUN BUG

Another bright idea from Volkswagen.



IMMEDIATE DELIVERY

There's a new car on the horizon: the Volkswagen Sun Bug.

It's a Volkswagen like you never dreamed possible — with a gold paint job, racing type wheels, a sunroof, and a radiant interior with lush carpeting, leatherette corduroy seats and a sports wheel.

Naturally a car this unusual isn't for everyone. So only a few Sun Bugs are being made. If you take a shine to it, don't wait too long to buy one. Unlike the sun, you can't count on the Sun Bug being there tomorrow.

And the Beetle Goes On

NORWOOD—The car that started the small car revolution in the United States 25 years ago is alive and well and will continue to be sold here indefinitely, according to Lester Lee, General Manager of Herb Anderson Volkswagen, authorized Volkswagen sales, service and parts facility at 1210 Providence Highway.

"There are no plans to stop production of the Beetle," the local VW official said, "and rumors that our new series of water-colled, front-wheel drive cars will replace it are without foundation." The Beetle, he noted, is presently the world's best-selling model and the most-produced car in history.

"You don't scrap a winner," he said.

Since 1957, Mr. Lee pointed out, there have been persistent reports that the Beetle was on its way out.

"That," he explained, "is due to the fact that it's more newsworthy to report the possible end of a love affair than the continuation of one.. And anything that's been selling year after year without any major changes in appearance - and still looks current - is not likely to make headlines by coming out again next year, but rather only by not coming out."

According to Mr. Lee, today's Beetle is the best built "bug" ever to roll off the VW factory's Wolfsburg, West Germany, assembly line. It's also, he admits, the most expensive Beetle to be produced in 25 years - but, he is quick to point out, everything costs more today than it used to "and everybody knows that."

Complexities of small car production changeover

By AUTOMOTIVE INFORMATION COUNCIL

The recent changeover from the production of standard to smaller-model cars is a prime example of the flexibility of the auto industry. While geared for mass production, the industry, at the same time, must be prepared to react to any rapid changes in consumer demand.

But preparation alone does not lessen the enormity of the task involved in a production changeover. From 12 to 15 months are needed to plan and schedule a plant conversion. Car manufacturers, therefore, must be keenly tuned in to early indications of consumer buying trends.

For the past six years the car manufacturers have forecast an increase in the demand for smaller-sized car and have steadily increased the percentage of production of compacts and subcompacts. Had it not been for advance planning, the car factories would not have been able to convert five major assembly plants from the production of standard-sized cars to smaller cars in less than six months after the outbreak of the war in the Mideast.

The cost of converting a plant is staggering. One auto manufacturer estimates that switching from production of standard-size cars to compacts at one plant cost about $75 million.

The retraining of people to new production procedures requires months of on-the-job training before the changeover. In one such case, several small cars were shipped to the plant so that workers could familiarize themselves with the models by disassembling and reassembling them.

A shutdown period was necessary for the installation, modification and rearrangement of machinery, during which time most of the laid-off employees were paid 95 percent of their normal income after taxes, under the industry's Supplemental Unemployment Benefit Plan

A model changeover also affects the companies that supply component parts. A typical assembly plant depends on about 5,000 suppliers of production-related parts, equipment and supplies for items such as tires, brakes, electrical equipment, etc. These suppliers, in turn, must modify their operations to meet the needs of the manufacturers.

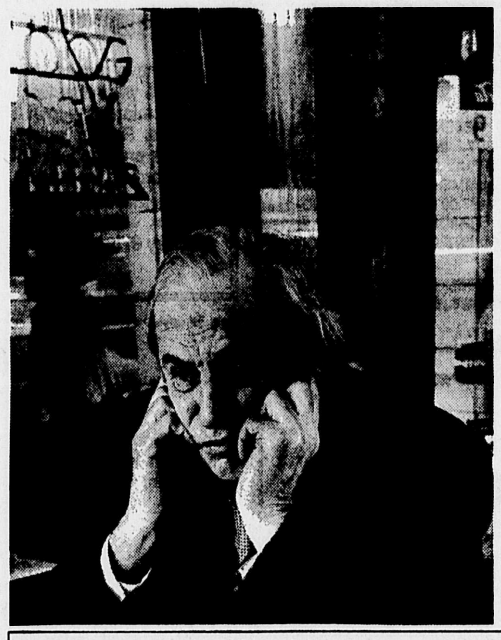
Why should you join the Payroll Savings Plan now? Maybe you'll find out later.



The future can be too late for saving. So if you want security, you'd better start today.

The Payroll Savings Plan makes it easy. Because an amount you choose is automatically set aside from each paycheck to buy U.S. Savings Bonds. That way, your savings build, year after year.

So start today. Because tomorrow, today will be yesterday.

Now E Bonds pay 6% interest when held to maturity of 5 years (4½% the first year). Bonds are replaced if lost, stolen or destroyed. When needed, they can be cashed at your bank. Interest is not subject to state or local income taxes, and federal tax may be deferred until redemption.

Take stock in America.

Join the Payroll Savings Plan.

No one else can give us what you can. (Join Us. Please.)

Nobody else in the world can give us what you can.
A pint of your blood.
And your gift has never been more important. Because blood from healthy donors, who freely donate their blood, is 10 times less likely to cause infectious hepatitis in the recipient than is blood from many commercial sources. Think about that.
The need is urgent, and continuous.
Help us. Join us. Today.

SHERIFF'S SALE
COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS
Middlesex, ss
April 24, A.D. 1974

Taken on execution and will be sold by public auction, on Wednesday, the seventeenth day of July A.D. 1974, at three o'clock p.m., at my office, 46 First Street in Cambridge, in said county of Middlesex, all the right, title and interest that Raymond J. Ciccolo of Lexington in said county of Middlesex, had (not exempt by law from attachment or levy on execution) on the twenty-fourth day of April A.D. 1974, at nine o'clock and no minutes, a.m., being the time when the same was taken on execution in and to the following described real estate, to wit:

Parcel I

That certain parcel of land, together with the buildings and improvements thereon, situate in that part of Newton called Newton Centre, Middlesex County, Massachusetts, bounded and described as follows:

NORTHERLY by Beacon Street, one hundred seventy-one and 62-100 (171.62) feet;

EASTERLY by Lot A, as shown on plan hereinafter referred to, one hundred seventy-two and 88-100 (172.88) feet;

SOUTHERLY by the location of Boston & Albany R.R. Co., two hundred three and 39-100 (203.39) feet;

WESTERLY by land now or formerly of Barry, sixty-one and 69-100 (61.69) feet;

NORTHERLY by the centre line of a passageway twenty (20) feet wide, thirty-one and 44-100 (31.44) feet; and WESTERLY by land now or formerly of Gulf Refining Company, one hundred five and 20-100 (105.20) feet.

Containing 31,221 square feet.

Parcel II

The land with buildings thereon situated in that part of said Newton called Newton Centre, bounded and described as follows:

Commencing in the southerly line of Beacon Street in said Newton Centre at the northwest corner of land now or formerly of Louise W. Stetson, thence southerly on the west line of said land now or formerly of Stetson, one hundred eighty-three and 30-100 (183.30) feet to the right of way of the Boston & Albany Railroad Company; thence, at an angle to the right along the northerly bound of said right of way, westerly ninety-nine and 5-10 (99.5) feet to land now or formerly of the estate of Horace Cousens; thence, at an angle to the right along the line of said land now or formerly of said Cousens Estate, northerly one hundred seventy-nine (179) feet to the south line of said Beacon Street; thence, at an angle to the right, along the south line of said Beacon Street, easterly ninety-nine and 75-100 (99.75) feet to the point of beginning.

The premises are conveyed subject to restrictions of record so far as the same are now in force and applicable.

AND PARCEL III

A certain parcel of land on Beacon Street in that part of the City of Newton known as Newton Centre, being Lot A as shown on Plan of Land in Newton Centre, belonging to Edith Foster, E.S. Smilie, Surveyor, March 7, 1930, recorded in Middlesex South Registry of Deeds, Record Book 5456, page 123, and more particularly bounded and described as follows:

NORTHERLY by Beacon Street, 20.00 feet;

EASTERLY by the land of Wright, 173.47 feet;

SOUTHERLY by land of Boston & Albany Railroad, 20.00 feet;

WESTERLY by Lot B, 172.88 feet.

Said parcel being Lot A, containing 3463 square feet of land, all as shown on said plan.

Concannon running for district attorney?

Ward 2 Alderman Thomas B. Concannon, Jr., is "considering running" for the position of Middlesex County District Attorney against incumbent John Droney, Concannon said this week.

"I feel the District Attorney's office should have full-time assistant district attorneys, who should be paid higher salaries," Concannon said.

Concannon also would try to speed up the judicial process in the courts. "The administration of justice is slow in Middlesex County. One way to improve the situation is to hold summer felony sessions."

Concannon said, "The severity of the penalty is not as important as the swiftness."

Concannon, 34, practices law, with offices at 93 Union Street, Newton Centre. He is married and the father of two daughters. He is in his third term as ward alderman.

Summer Sing begins June 25

The Masterworks Chorale has announced its sixth annual Summer Sing, a series of eight informal sight-reading programs designed for people who enjoy singing.

Weekly sessions, beginning June 25, and continuing through August 13, will be held Tuesdays at 8 p.m. at Temple Isaiah, 55 Lincoln St. (off Route 2A), Lexington.

Participating under the direction of Conductor Allen Lannom will be Christine Kodis, Jean Laurits and Severo Ornstein of Newton.

Residents of surrounding communities are invited to lend their voices to the performances.

On June 25, selections will include Faure's "Requiem," and Vivaldi's "Gloria."

An admission charge is payable at the door. Scores are available at the door, but people should bring their own if they have one.

Softball game to benefit Carroll Center programs

BSO musicians will trade drums and cymbals for ball and bat on June 16 at 1 p.m., when the symphony softball team meets the Carroll Center (formerly the Catholic Guild for All the Blind) for a benefit game at Boston College's Shea Field.

WBZ's Larry Glick will provide the play-by-play and celebrity umpires will referee the action in what may be the wackiest ballgame of the season.

Acarroll Center staff member, Mary Greene, purchased the BSO team at a WCRB auction and has led efforts to organize the benefit. Boston College permitted the use of Shea Field, the Newton Sports Center donated bat, ball and protective gear for the catcher, and Carroll Center staff and administrators agreed to abandon white canes and braille slates for the Father's Day afternoon (rain date June 22.)

Dr. Leo Riley medical director of the Carroll Center, will manage the CRC team. Riley is well-known in the Newton area for his Little League activities. Members of the CRC team are Jeff Babington (coordinator of rehabilitation services), Dick Connors (administrator of community rehabilitation services), Dick Connors (administrator of community rehabilitation services) and staff members Edgar Hadidian, Tom Jones, Bill Lydon, Paul McDade, Bob McGillivray, Vince O'Connell, Art O'Neill, Dick Riel, Rich Roper and Eric Sollee. Sollee is the fencing instructor in the Carroll Center's unusual taining programs for blinded adults.

Tickets for the game will be available at the gate or by callin the Carroll Center (969-6200) or writing 770 Centre St., Newton 02158, attention Miss Quinn. Prices are $2 for adults, and 50c for children under 12. Proceeds will benefit Carroll Center programs.

The Carroll Center specializes in the rehabilitation of blinded adults through adjustment counseling and a program of courses in communication, mobility and personal management. In addition to these residential and commuter programs, the agency provides community mobility services throughout Massachusetts and Rhode Island and supervises reader services to college students and other blind people.

The agency recently established a regional training center for Optacon, an electronic device which translates inkprint into a tactile impression. After Optacon training, a blind user will be able to read many materials heretofore unavailable to him — for instance, calculator displays, labels and telephone directories.

The Carroll Rehabilitation Center is located at 770 Centre St., Newton. It was renamed in memory of the Reverend Thomas J. Carroll, who died in April, 1971. Father Carroll headed the nonsectarian agency for 25 years and was an internationally known pioneer in the field of rehabilitation for blind people.

SARA CONLEY, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert G. Conley of 187 Moffat Rd., was given a trophy in recognition of her contribution to the Boston Children's Theatre during its 1973-74 season.

Film festival to begin on July 3

Newton will be having its own film festival this summer.

Each Wednesday evening from 8:45 - 10 p.m., beginning July 3 and continuing through August 21, the Newton Recreation Department will be showing a wide range of films at playgrounds throughout the city.

The program will open at the Newton Centre Playground on July 3, when sports night will be observed with the showing of "Brian's Song," the award winning film about Brian Piccolo and Gale Sayers.

The following Wednesday, July 10, will be adventure night and the program will be at the Albemarle Playground. There will be three films, "Solo," the story of a lone mountain climber; "Sea Sorcery," and "The Undersea World of Jacques Cousteau."

Charlie Chaplin fans will have their night at the Franklin School Playground on July 17. The program includes such films as "The Fireman," "His New Job," and "Tillie's Punctured Romance."

On July 24, at the Newton Upper Falls Playground, it will be old classics night. There will be two films, "The Railroader" with Buster Keaton, and "Orphans of the Storm," D. W. Griffith's classic of the French Revolution starring Lillian Gish.

July 31 will be music night at the Albemarle Playground. The films will include a performance of Ravel's "Bolero," by the Los Angeles Philharmonic; another about Roberta Flack, one of America's exciting and creative performers; and "Street Musique."

August 7 will be comedy night at the Newton Centre Playground. The film will be "The Golden Age of Comedy." It depicts the history of Hollywood comedy using excerpts from early films, such as those with Laurel and Hardy.

Animal night will be held at the Franklin School Playground August 14. Included in the program will be "Miss Goodall and her Chimpanzees," "Yazzo," and "Orphan Lions."

The series concludes August 21 with cartoon night at the Memorial School Playground.

In case of rain, the films will be shown in a nearby school building.

Greater Bostonians on television Friday

The Greater Bostonians of 1974, 81 singers and instrumentalists from 44 Greater Boston area high schools, will be in concert on WNAC-TV, Channel 7, on Friday evening, June 14, from 8-9 p.m.

The music for these artists, whose average age is 16, is arranged for them by Ed Madden of the Brookline School System. This year's concert combines favorite standards including "I Wish You Love," "This Could be the Start of Something Big," and "If," with recent hits "Tie A Yellow Ribbon 'Round the Old Oak Tree," "Gypsy Rose," and Stevie Wonder's "You Are the Sunshine of My Life."

The Greater Bostonians will also perform a medley of George Gershwin classics in honor of the 75th Anniversary of the composer's death. In their seventh season, the Greater Bostonians are under the batons of Jerry Boisen, music director of Boston Latin, and Richard Laman, of the Wakefield Schools.

In addition to appearing on WNAC-TV specials — and winning a Silver Medal for excellence from the Atlanta International Film Festival for the 1972 program — these talented volunteers have raised more than $50,000 for scholarship funds and youth organizations through their benefit concert tour.

The Greater Bostonians of 1974 is produced and directed for WNAC-TV by Ross Cibella.

Newton performers include Dian Smith, 21 Belmont St., soprano, and Amy Shuster, 6 Wamesit Rd., Waban, alto.

Books by students on display

"Stories for Children," books written and illustrated by seventh grade students at Warren Junior High School, are on view in the glass cases at the Newton Free Library, 414 Centre Street, now through June 21.

The nine-week project, undertaken by seventh graders in the children's literature unit at Warren, culminates with trips to local elementary and nursery schools where students read books aloud to children at the different grade levels.

The success of the children's literature unit, now in its fourth year of operation, is the result of close cooperation among students, teachers and volunteer parents who serve as tutors and group leaders.

The major production steps for "Stories for Children" include orientation, an over view discussion of the project; conceptionalization, students develop an understanding and appreciation of children's literature and interests by analyzing professional literature and studying TV shows and films designed for pre-schoolers and lower elementary school age children; production, where students write and illustrate their stories; and presentation, where books are read aloud to nursery and elementary school age children.

Hamilton fire guts art room

The Hamilton School in Newton Lower Falls was evacuated this week after a fire was discovered in the school's art room.

According to Newton Fire Chief Frederick Perkins, Jr., the fire was reported at 8:34 a.m. on Monday. Perkins said that there was "extensive fire damage to a basement classroom."

Four Newton engines, a Wellesley engine, and two Hamilton ladder trucks went too the school. Hamilton Principal Joan B. Warner said Tuesday that firefighters "poured a lot of water into the school."

Mrs. Warner commented that "its a miracle to me that the fire was contained to that one room." She said that there was only smoke damage to other rooms.

Mrs. Warner reported that the cause of the fire was unknown. She said that there was "nothing like oil paint or

10 file for legislature

By the 5 p.m. Tuesday deadline this week, 10 Newton residents had submitted nomination papers for state senator and state representative to the Newton Election Commission.

Sen. Irving Fishman will run for reelection next fall against Sen. Jack Backman of Brookline in a race for a new, single Newton-Brookline district, created by senate redistricting.

Effective Jan. 1, 1974, Newton will have four single-member districts for the state House of Representatives instead of the present two double districts.

In the new 17th and 18th Districts, Rep. Peter Harrington and Rep. David Mofenson, respectively, will have no opposition from either political party. They are both Democrats.

Four aspirants submitted papers for the 16th District seat, now occupied by Paul Guzzi, who is running for Secretary of State.

Ald. Richard McGrath, Joseph Denucci, 119 Warwick Rd., and Helen Doona, 152 Lexington St., will face each other in the Sept. 10, primary, while Republican William P. Matthews, 278 Grove St., the lone Republican, has no primary challenge.

In the 19th District, Rep. Lois Pines' seat will be contested by 21-year-old Paul Kelley of 37 Chesley Rd., in the Democratic primary. Letitia Angelonw, 314 Langley Rd., will enter the election as an independent.

Ald. Thomas Concannon will oppose incumbent John Droney for Middlesex County District Attorney, and Thomas E. McManus, 75 Woodlawn Dr., Chestnut Hill, will compete with Charles Clough of Concord for Middlesex County Commissioner.

After certification of signatures on the nomination papers, candidates must file the papers with the Secretary of State's office by 5 p.m., June 25.

Candidates for statewide office and candidates for U.S. Congress must submit nomination papers to local election officials by June 25 and file them with the Secretary of State by July 2.

Nomination papers have been issued to A. Jefferson Cornell, an insurance executive with offices in Newtonville, for congressman from the Fourth Congressional District. An independent, Cornell would run in the regular election against the winner of the Drinan-Rotenberg primary and the Republican candidates.

Parking ordinance denied

A proposed ordinance requiring provision of off-street parking for commercial establishments when their use changes was denied without prejudice by the Board of Aldermen Tuesday night.

The proposal has been under fire by the business community and the Newton-Needham Chamber of Commerce ever since its revival several months ago. IT was proposed last year by Rep. Peter Harrington and has been held in the Land Use Committee.

Denial without prejudice allows an item to be resubmitted at any time.

Land Use Committee Chairman Joseph McDonnell told the Board that Planning Director Charles Thomas is still working on revisions of the proposed ordinance that would entail "substantial changes" and that a new public hearing will be required.

Ald. Robert Tennant, president of the Chamber of Commerce, agreed that denial of the proposal in anticipation of submission of another was the proper action, and commented on the "unease in the city" due to the uncertain status of the parking requirement ordinance.

Another long-held item, a petition for permissive use to continue a truck-and-trailer rental business at McMullin's service station on Route 9 in Newton Highlands, was passed with conditions by a vote of 17 to 7, after a parliamentary argument by Ald. Mark White backfired and brought the item to a vote.

White argued that according to parliamentary procedure an item held "on the table" is dead unless "taken from the table" at the next meeting and acted upon. The McMullin measure had been laid on the table some time ago, when it appeared that it was in danger of defeat.

White was overruled in his argument, and Ald. Michael Antonellis called for the vote.

The board returned to the Land Use Committee a petition of Cramer Electronics for permission to extend its parking lot in Newton at 128 industrial park into the flood plain zone.

Ald David B. Cohen argued successfully that the plan could be further altered to give Cramer all the parking it requires without encroaching on the flood plain. "If I am wrong," he said, "all we've lost is about one month. If this proposal is wrong, we will irrevocably alter the flood storage capacity of this land."

Cohen also said that he feels that as part of any board order granted for the additional parking, there should be a prohibition against building on the parking lot. The permission for parking should Grass Roots: Is Ted Kennedy in charge of politics In Newton?

By ELIZABETH McKINNON
Of The Graphic Staff

The Black Citizens of Newton (BCON) has charged that the Newton delegation to the June 1 Democratic caucus in Framingham "ignored its responsibility" to elect a black representative from the Fourth Congressional District to attend the national Democratic Charter Convention.

BCON will seek the appointment of a black through the Democratic State Committee under its affirmative action program.

The caucus climaxed a series of meetings on ward and city levels all across the state to select delegates to the December convention and shaping policy of the Democratic Party.

In a resolution sent to Rep. David Mofenson, chairman of the Democratic City Committee, the executive board of BCON says that the State Committee's affirmative action program called for mailings and publicity to be directed to members of underrepresented groups and for contact to be made with organizations of minority and ethnic groups to encourage participation in the process of selection of delegates.

BCON which has a membership of 1,000, was never made aware of any such efforts, the resolution says, and on May 28 by resolution urged that the Newton delegation work to elect a black to the Fourth Congressional District delegation.

This was not done, BCON points out, and the result statewide is that not one black was elected in the whole state west of Roxbury.

The actions of the 54 Newton delegates elected at ward meetings May 4, that led up to the June 1 caucus have come under severe criticism by Eugene Hampton, BCON chairman, and have caused a deep rift among so-called liberal Democrats here.

Some of the delegates reportedly left a meeting chaired by William Carmen, three-time candidate for mayor of Newton, whom they described as trying to "steamroller" a Newton endorsement of Democratic State Committeewoman Betty Taymor of Newton.

Hampton and others charge that endorsements of the four Fourth District delegates to the December convention was prearranged before any of the caucuses, and that one influential member of the City Committee said about Ms. Taymor and the other three delegates from other parts of the Fourth District, "This is the slate acceptable to Ted Kennedy."

Hampton pointed out that the names of the four "elected" from the Fourth District, including Ms. Taymore, appeared in a Boston newspaper on the morning of June 1, the day on which the Framingham caucus took place.

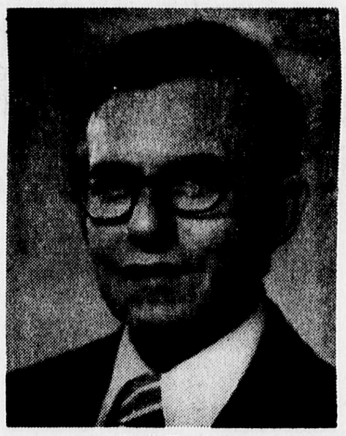
Reports of the various meetings before the caucus agree that would-be candidates from Newton were discouraged from pursuing their candidacy.

Eugene Hampton, however, presented himself as a candidate at the caucus, even after receiving no encouragement here. He did not get enough votes to be elected, although he did receive a surprising number of votes and might have been elected with greater support of the Newton delegation.

Massachusetts will have 62 delegates to the December policy-shaping convention to be held in Kansas City. Of the 62, 42 were elected at the caucus, 10 are the state's Congressmen and U.S. Senators, and 10 will be appointed by the Democratic State Committee.

Hampton is urging that at least one of these 10 be black.

An expansion of BCON to include all of Middlesex County (BCOM) "will be viable by the time the primary elections are held," Hampton said this week. The formal announcement of the expansion and the towns and cities included will be made this week, he said.



Jack Backman

Backman announces candidacy

State Senator Jack H. Backman (D—Brookline), chairman of the Joint Committee on Social Welfare, Thursday announced that he will seek reelection in the Newton–Brookline senatorial district.

Backman will host an open house at his Brookline headquarters at 229 Harvard St., from 3-5 p.m. June 30.

Backman served three terms in the House of Representatives before being elected to the State Senate in 1970 and reelected in 1972 by a 20,000 vote plurality.

Backman has been a leadrr in legislation such as minimum income for the elderly, children's rights, rent control, truth in-lending, handgun control, women's rights, environmental protection, consumer protection, prison reform, housing and transportation.

In 1970, Backman was the lone legislator, other than the sponsor, to publicly endorse and testify on behlaf of the "Shea-Wells bill," which tested the constitutionality of the Vietnam War and he authored the brief for the sponsor of the legislation before the United States Supreme Court.

He also was the only state legislator in the Commonwealth to run and be elected an at-large delegate to the Democratic National Convention in Miami, Fla., pledged to McGovern.

In 1973 Backman filed legislation to provide Massachusetts with a guranteed adequate income for the elderly, blind and disabled. Backman's bill was enacted into law, making Massachusetts first in the nation in economic security for the elderly.

This year he has extended the concept of a minimum adequate income to children and his bill which would grant annual cost-of-living increases to families with dependent children, as well as to veterans, has been given final approval in the State Senate.

Obermayer indicted

Research chemist Arthur S. Obermayer of 239 Chestnut St., West Newton, was scheduled to be arraigned at noon Wednesday in Middlesex Superiod Court.

Two weeks ago, the Middlesex County Grand Jury handed down indictments charging Obermayer with assault and battery with a dangerous weapon (a truck) and illegal use of a motor vehicle.

The charges stem from an incident in March in which Obermayer allegedly tried to stop a city forestry crew from cutting down a tree on city land in fron of his house.

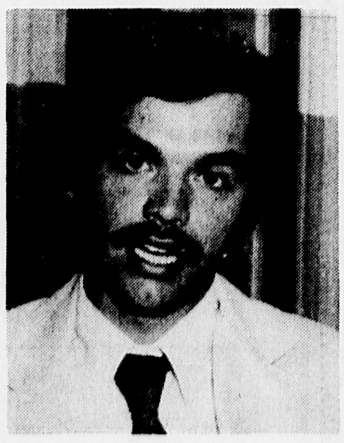
Obermayer allegedly reached into the cab of a skyworker truck while work was in progress up in the tree and put the truck into reverse and then back into neutral, allegedly injuring the man that was working up in the tree.

A probably cause hearing in the case was held in March in Newton District Court before Special Justice Monte G. Basbas.

Basbas ruled there was sufficient evidence on the charge to sent the matter to the Grand Jury.

Since jury trials are normally not held during the summer months, the Judge Wednesday was expected to set trial sometime in October or November.

The tree, considered diseased and a hazard by experts reporting to the city, was cut down by a forestry crew on May 1.



Larry Marino

Marino will replace Marr

Newton's new comptroller of accounts approved by the Board of Aldermen Tuesday night, Lawrence H. Marino, is one of the youngest comptrollers, if not the youngest, in the state.

Marino, who is 27, has been serving as assistant to outgoing comptroller Arthur Marr since last May, and was selected for the $17,000 job by a special committee of the Board of Aldermen from about 70 applicants.

Marr leaves the city June 28.

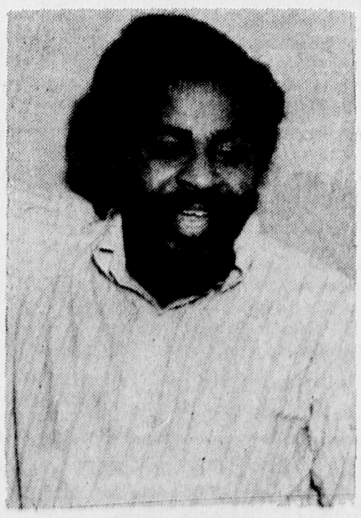
Game show contestant still in 'jeopardy'



Timo Philip

By TOM GRAVES
Of The Graphic Staff

Sometimes you get more than you were looking for when you track down a story.

Such was the case of Jeopardy contestant Timo Philip, a social studies teacher this past year at Newton North High School.

First, the happy Part; the part I expected.

Philip appeared on four Jeopardy shows in mid-May and won $2,020. He calls it "the only quiz show on TV worth watching.

Philip won money because he knew, for example, that Yogi Berra was the catcher of Don Larsen's World Series perfect game. He could have won more money if he had known that Vespucci built ships for Christopher Columbus' second and third voyages.

Philip admitted that he has "some bits of knowledge only good for winning money on Jeopardy," but attributed his overall success to being well-read. He said that he might have had an edge because he is a history teacher.

Philip says that he was not nevous when he went on the show. To qualify for his appearance, he had to take a general knowledge test in New York.

Philip can never appear on Jeopardy again. "I think I can only be on one more quiz show in my life," he noted. Philip signed a contract acknowledging that he had been on no other quiz show in the past year.

Philip had an opportunity to win far more money than he did. If he could have answered all five questions in one category, he could have won bonus money. Philip made an attempt at this when the bonus pool reached $1,500, but he was able to correctly answer only four of five history questions.

Winning five games could also have resulted in further rewards, but Philip was beaten in his fourth game. The man who beat him won five games.

Contestants on Jeopardy do not actually answer questions, they ask them. A contestant might hear from the movies category that "this man owned the Blue Parrot in Casablanca." The contestant might then answer, "Who was Sidney Greenstreet?"

Philip applied for Jeopardy because he "wanted money to keep me off welfare." This

Fishman bill opens credit reports

Massachusetts consumers will be the first in the nation to have direct access to information held in their credit files if a bill sponsored by Sen. Irving Fishman (D-Newton) becomes law. It has been passed in the Senate and is now before the House.

The bill (S-1628) is based in part on two earlier Fishman consumer credit bills and was shaped by the Committee on Banks and Banking, chaired by Sen. Fishman.

"The Fair Credit Reporting Act, landmark consumer legislation which successfully fought for in 1971 does not go far enough in protecting the rights of individuals," Fishman said. Sen. Fishman is also a member of the Special Legislative Commission on Privacy.

Currently consumers seeking information contained in their records are given only summary statements by credit reporting agencies. They do not have any direct access to records.

Under Sen. Fishman's bill any consumer will have the legal right to see "the nature contents and substance of all information, except medical information" held in his or her credit reporting acency file at the time of the request. Furthermore, consumers will have the opportunity to receive photocopies of all information contained in their reports. In place of the code identification used in transmitting finformation to and from credit reporting agencies, the names of the users of the credit information (e.g., department stores) which correspond to the code identifications must be disclosed to the consumer.

Under Sen. Fishman's bill, consumers would not be required to make a personal appearance at a credit reporting agency in order to find out what is in their files. They could request and receive "by certified mail, return receipt requested, deliver to addresses only," copies of their credit reports in understandable language. For this service consumers would only be required to pay for the postage.

Furthermore, Sen. Fishman's bill would require that as a prerequisite for doing business in Massachusetts every consumer reporting agency that issues investigative consumer reports must register with and file annual reports to the Commissioner of Banks.

The Commissioner of Banks would have the right to investigate and inspect the records and procedures used by each registrant, and make rules and regulations designed to protect consumers from industry abuses.

Under Fishman's bill violations of the Fair Credit Reporting Act by credit reporting agencies could result in their being barred from doing business within the state and subject to other legal action.

Sen. Fishman explained that "as good as the Fair Credit Act was in 1971, experience now indicates we need these amendments to further protect the consumer."

Fishman discussed the bill at a recent consumer credit conference in Boston. At the conference former Consumer Council Chairman Dermott Shea described Fishman as "the principal architect of truth-in-lending in Massachusetts and a leader in every major consumer battle in the legislature."

"Massachusetts leads the nation in consumer credit and consumer protection laws, largely becuase of the efforts of Sen. Fishman," Shea said.

New course

A new course has been added to the Newton Summer School program, entitled "Decisions and Outcomes."

This seminar will use materials published by the College Entrance Examination Board. By means of exercises, discussions, role-playing and simulations, students will be helped to learn decision making skills.

Open to junior and senior high school students, the course will meet from 8 to 10 a.m., Monday through Friday, July 1 through July 19. The tuition is $10.

For more information and to register people may call the Newton Summer School office at 969-9810 extension 349.

Republican City Committee adopts freedoms platform

The Newton Republican City Committee executive committee at its monthly meeting on June 10, voted to adopt the following portion of the Massachusetts Republican Party Platform as a partial declaration of its principles:

"We, the Republican Party of Newton, are committed to freedom at all levels of the social structure. At a time when both governmental and institutional forces are tending to diminish freedom, we pledge ourselves vigilantly to protect the basic freedoms of the people.

"Individual freedom is the fundamental principle of our society. Our Constitution contains several inviolable rights of citizens. These must be preserved even at the expense of some inefficiencies and at the possible loss of some security. But beyond these specific guarantees, we believe that the individual in our society has the right to be left alone to his own moral, social or economic pursuits so long as he does not interfere with the rights of other individuals. It is not the role of government to be thw watchdog of the private mores of citizens.

"Economic freedom, the free enterprise system, is a strength, not a weakness, of this Commonwealth and nation. We are committed to maintaining it as the basic economic structure of our society. We believe that governmental regulation of business and government economic controls tend to stifle initiative, perpetuate economic inefficiency and deny the consumer the benefit of maximum choice with minimum cost.

"Where free market forces result in inequities, governmental corrective measures should be geared where possible toward private-sector incentives instead of regulation. Where competitive forces are not producing sufficient benefits to the public, government policy should ebciyrage sekfpgeko renedues befire resorting tc bureaucratic solutions.

"Freedom of the people tc govern themselves lies at the very heart of democracy. The further government decision making is removed from public scrutiny, whether hidden in a bureau in Washington or in Boston, the more this essential principle is eroded. We believe that this right can only be restored by returning decision making to the local level by maximizing the use of local institutions of government where the voices of the people can be heard and where solutions to problems can properly be tailored to the needs of the people."

At each monthly meeting the Newton Republican City Committee intends to adopt at least one new resolution which will communicate to the entire city where the Republican Party of Newton stands on philosophy and on the issues of the day.

Mann heads Criminal Justice Training Council

Mayor Theodore D. Mann was sworn in Tuesday as chairman of the Massachusetts Criminal Justice Training Council by Governor Francis W. Sargent at ceremonies in Boston.

The Criminal Justice Training Council was established by law to meet the training needs of all those engaged in criminal justice.

Justice Franklin Flaschner, Chief Justice of the District Courts and presiding justice at the Newton District Court, is also a member.

In remarks at the ceremony Mayor Mann said, "As a mayor, I am highly aware of the ultimate goal of improved training to provide better services to our communities. We must provide more effective crime prevention, apprehension and rehabilitative programs. Now that rehabilitation programs are moving out of institutions, police court and correction personnel have the responsibility of considering the needs of the total community and the demands and rights of individual neighborhoods, minority groups and local businessmen."

Mann continued, "I am convinced that properly designed training programs can show us how to increase community cooperation."

Mann concluded his remarks by calling for cooperation from all segments and levels of the criminal justice field from patrolman to chief justice and stated that the council will encourage individuals as well as organizations to communicate their training needs for review and action.

"The Criminal Justice Training Council has a rare opportunity to make fundamental contributions to law enforcement and criminal justice, for the system can only be as good as the people who make it operate. We owe it to them and to ourselves as citizens to provide criminal justice personnel with the best possible preparation for their work."

Commission on judicial conduct would investigate complaints

Legislation co-sponsored by Rep. David J. Mofenson (D-Newton) to create a commission empowered to investigate cases of judicial misconduct has been given initial approval by the Massachusetts Senate.

"The commission would be empowered to investigate, upon any complaint, actions of any judge that "may bring his office into disrepute" or constitute a breach of the Supreme Judicial Court's canon of Judicial Ethics," said Rep. Mofenson.

Of the seven members on the comission, two would be appointed by the Chief Justice of the Supreme Judicial Court, three by the governor, and two by the board of Governors of the Massachusetts Bar Association.

The legislation attempts to eliminate any future problems concerning admissibility of evidence in judicial removal proceedings of the legislature similar to those occurring last year with the bill of address against former Dorchester District Court Judge Jerome Troy.

In that case, defenders of the jurist argued that the legislature had failed to exercise its judicial removal powers by the institution of the bill of address only after the Supreme Judicial Court had disbarred him and suspended him from sitting on the bench.

Members of the commission would serve without compensation, except for reimbursement of reasonable expenses, for four-year terms, although the initial appointments would be staggered and abbreviated. No judges would be eligible to serve, Mofenson said.

Rep. Mofenson, who filed similar legislation for the Massachusetts League of Women Voters and the Massachusetts Bar Association, said the bill reported out by the Judiciary Committee would make all actions of the commission confidential unless the commission reported any recommendations to the Supreme Judicial Court or the legislature. That report would be public as well as an annual report to the legislature.

The commission would have subpoena power and would be provided with unspecified but "adequate" offices, assistants.

Committee hears Highlands plan

By ELIZABETH McKINNON
Of the Graphic Staff

No opposition was voiced at a public hearing before half the members of the Legislation and Rules Committee last week, when proponents of a Newton Highlands "service area" explained why they feel the Highlands group should be recognized as a legal entity of government.

Of the 65 residents of the Highlands, 10 spoke in favor of establishment of the service area and council to the seven aldermen present, three of whom are not members of the Legislation and Rules Committee.

Under the city charter adopted in 1971, a group may petition for recognition if 20 per cent of the residents of the delineated geographic area have indicated by signature that they wish to form the service area.

Among the powers and functions of the service area are the communication of neighborhood attitudes on zoning, recreation, school buildings, housing and the like; the undertaking of self-help projects; and the ability to raise or accept funds from public or private sources, but not from the City of Newton government.

Newton Highlands lies partly in Ward 5 and partly in Ward 6. For this reason among others, the area to be represented by the service are encompasses the Hyde School District.

The service area will be represented by a nine-member council elected by and from the registered voters of the area.

Ald. Louis Egelson asked Robert Smith, 55 Chester St., how the area group would differ from an improvement society. Egelson siad that in his opinion the main difference would be that "action seems centered in the council. I would be concerned that a small body not serve as representative of the whole community."

Smith responded that the service area and council would be "broader spectrum and more permanent."

Laurance Walton, 61 Bowdoin St., added that the question had arisen during the petition drive. It appeared to him, he said, that an improvement society is oriented toward mercantile establishments, while the service area and council are designed to be a means of communication. "It doesn't replace an improvement society, but is that and more."

Newton Highlands has no improvement society and an inactive merchants' association.

Ald. Joan Saklad, alderman at large from Ward 6 who lives in the geographic limits of the area, concentrated on means of communication from residents of the area to the elected area council.

She was assured by one of the founders of the group, Barbara Kaplan, 1090 Walnut St., that the council will gather opinions from residents by telephone, mail, and personal contact, as well as by public meetings.

The service area includes 2,740 registered voters.

The proprietor of a dress shop on Lincoln Street, Edith Michaels, strongly supported the concept of a service area. She described the shopping area as a "dark, dank place," but feels the Highlands is a good neighborhood.

"I've been in business there three years, and I've only gotten two bad checks," she said, "and one of them was from Newton Centre."

Present for the hearing were Legislation and Rules Committee members Joan Saklad, Thomas Concannon, Louis Egelson and Eliot Cohen (Ald. Andrew Magni, Richard Bullwinkle, Sidney Small of Ward 5, and Jason Sacks were absent).

Other aldermen present were Ward 5 Alderman Susan Schur, Michael Antonellis, at large from Ward 5, and Edward Richmond. Ward 6 Aldermen Ernest Dietz and Michael Lipof of Ward 6 were absent.

Ald. Schur commented after the hearing that she is wholeheartedly behind the service area. "The Highlands needs to have an effective liaison between the residents and the city government. The area council will be in more regular contact with the residents than any one alderman can ever be."

Recreation Commission votes tennis rule change, lessons

The Newton Recreation Commission this week voted to change its rules regarding who can use tennis courts after 5 p.m. and granted permission to Harvey Harrison to give advanced tennis lessons.

It tabled a request to have the city's ban on non-resudent guests playing tennis.

Young people had been complaining about a rule that people under 16 could not use tennis courts after 5 p.m.

Discussing the matter, Recreation Commissioner Francis Rice said that the rule was originally intended to apply to the city's clay, permit courts and not to all the courts in the city.

Rice remarked that the rule would be unenforceable at non-attendant courts.

The rule was changed to apply only to Newton South, Newton Centre and Burr, the permit courts. People under 16 can play tennis after 5 p.m. at the other courts in the city.

Harvey Harrison, ranked 12th in New England, offered to give free advanced tennis lessons and the Recreation Commissioners voted Monday to accept.

The lessons, previously announced, were to have started Tuesday. They are being held from 6 to 8 p.m. on four courts at South High School every Tuesday and Thursday for three weeks. The second lesson will be tonight at 6 p.m.

The total class is being limited to 32 people.

Discussion on allowing non-resident guests to play tennis here with a resident permit holder was put off until July. The Recreation Commission decided to survey permit holders at the three permit courts for their opinions on charging the rule.

Harrison, aproponent of changing the rule, submitted a survey he had taken that indicated most people favor changing the rule.

Under Harrison's plan, a permit holder could play with a resident guest but would have to give up one of his three reserve hours allowed per week.

The possibility that the Recreation Department may be relocated in City Hall was raised at the meeting by the commission Chairman Burton Levine.

In response to a proposal from Commissioner Lynne Arthur to change the commission's meeting date and place, Levine indicated that the department might make this move.

Mayor Theodore D. Mann Tuesday confirmed that such a move is being considered.If it takes place he said, the department would move after the revaluation team leaves the basement offices they now have in City Hall.

He estimated that would be one year from now.

Ms. Arthur wanted to have the commission meetings changed to City Hall, but the other commissioners argued that since the department was moving, they might as well wait until all its resources were relocated.

Commissioners voted against moving the meetings to City Hall at this time. They voted in favor of changing their meeting night from the third Monday of the month to the second Monday of the month.

The next Recreation Commission meeting is scheduled to be held July 8. The change was made so commission meetings will not conflict with regular meetings of the Board of Aldermen.

Commissioners also hear a presentation from architect Terry D'Eugenio on proposals for two "innovational" playgrounds, one at Ward School and one at Oak Hill School. They were tentatively approved.

Penney's fate still unresolved

After several weeks of aldermanic Finance Committee discussion, including at least three "executive sessions" (closed to the press and public), and two unannounced meetings of the Recreation Commission, also closed the fate of outgoing Recreation Department head John Penney is still unresolved.

Penney is being replaced on July 1 by Russell Halloran, whose appointment by Mayor Theodore Mann was confirmed some weeks ago.

The administration hopes to keep Penney as Halloran's assistant by the creation of a new position—assistant Recreation Commissioner—at a salary of $17,035 per year.

When opposition to the new position developed in the Board of Aldermen, the mayor limited the tenure of the new job to about nine months, or until the next budgetary process begins.

By this week's Board of Aldermen meeting, tenure had been revised further to a half-year contract at $8,500.

Ald. Richard Bullwinkle challenged the legality of the item before the Board, and asked. "If this is a new job, what authorized it? We are attempting to take $8,500 to add a job we don't need."

Board President Eliot Cohen answered that the City Solicitor had decided that the appointment of Penney to the new position is not a financial item and not an ordinance and is therefore "a confirmatory vote." It need never have been before the Board, Cohen added.

The position that Board action would be "confirmatory" was apparently arrived at very shortly before Tuesday night's Board meeting as the way out of a situation now embarrassing not only to Penney but also to the administration.

Bullwinkle objected to the contract as "a different technique to arrive at a job," and pointed out that if the Board had known that the notice of appointment and salary of the new assistant recreation commissionerwas merely advisory to the Board, many weeks and much talk could have been saved.

"The Executive didn't realize it was advisory," Cohen replied.

After a proposal offered by Ald. Louis Egelson giving Penney a six-month term of office at $8,500 passed by a 13-11 vote, Bullwinkle "chartered" the item, and asked for clarification by the City Solicitor. He was joined by seven other aldermen in the charter objection.

A charter objection stops all further action on any measure, and when the alderman making the charter objection is joined by at least three other aldermen, no vote can be taken until the next regular meeting of the Board—in this case July 2. No action may be taken at a specially called meeting.

Police report

Newton men charged with assault and battery

A 911 call last week led to the arrests of two Newton men on charges of assault and battery by means of a dangerous weapon.

Paul A. Bianchi, 3 Shamrock Rd., Newton, age 20, and Stephen O'Neil, 101 Hawthorn St., Newton, age 22, were arraigned in Newton District Court Saturday on two assault charges apiece. The cases of both men were continued to July 18.

Police were informed that there was a fight in a municipal parking lot in West Newton Square early Saturday morning. According to police, officers found a married couple, residents of Newton, injured in a parking lot. The couple reportedly told police that they were struck with a club and gave police a description of their assailants and a car. The couple was taken to Newton-Wellesley Hospital.

As a result of investigation, Bianchi and O'Neil were arrested in the vicinity of their homes. According to police they were identified by a witness. The arresting officers were Lt. John I. Likely, Sgts. James P. Carter Jr. and Joseph R. Rousseau, Det. Robert A. Ober, and Officers Francis X. Fall, Tyrone D. Powell and David G. Hay.

An 18-year-old West Roxbury man was arrested Saturday night and charged with breaking and entering of a motor vehicle and assault and battery on a police officer.

Paul E. Manion, 119 Maple St., West Roxbury, was arrested after police were informed that men were trying to break into a car on Herrick Road, Newton Centre.

Sgt. Gerald A. Lawrence Jr. was reportedly injured in a scuffle, and was treated at Newton-Wellesley Hospital for a leg injury.

A breaking and entering at 1032 Chestnut St., Newton Upper Falls was reported on Sunday. Entrance was reportedly gained by forcing a cellar door and a kitchen door. There were allegedly acts of vandalism committed in the house and the entire home was reportedly ransacked.

Reported missing were two 12-piece sets of silver.

Fire Department holds Memorial Exercises

On Sunday morning, June 9, the Newton Fire Department held its annual Communion Breakfast and Memorial Exercises, honoring departed members of the fire fighting profession.

The second Sunday in June is designated, nationally, for this observance. It dates back to the great Chicago holocaust which became a legend in fire fighting history.

Fire Chief Frederick A. Perkins, Jr., presided over the ceremonies, which began with mass held in the Chapel of the Newton College. Breakfast followed in the dining hall. The guest speaker was Mayor Theodore D. Mann. The department, their families and friends then proceeded to fire headquarters for the concluding Memorial Service.

James M. Salter, administrative assistant to the mayor of Newton, delivered the memorial address. Salter paid tribute to those departed, and praised the Department's outstanding record of efficiency and progress.

Chief Perkins then read the roll call of those departed this past year. The fire fighters, in full uniform, stood at attention, for this tribute.

Others participating were: Rev. Msgr. John J. McMannon of Our Lady's Church, Newton, who delivered the benediction; the department chaplin, Rev. John M. Balcom, of St. Paul's Church, Newton Highlands, who delivered the invocation; Luigi Vena, long time friend of the department sang inspirational hymns; Mrs. Joseph G. Valente accompanied Vena; David Harris, another close friend, played taps.

Julian Katzeff reappointed

Julian H. Katzeff, 10 Chapin Rd., Newton Centre has been reappointed as a notary public, State Secretary John F.X. Davoren has announced.

Confirmation of the appointee was made at a meeting of the Executive Council following submission of the renomination by Governor Francis Sargent.

School Phenomenon

Newton is facing a phenomenon it has not seen since the years following World War I.

School enrollment has been declining steadily since 1968, and it is anticipated that it will continue to drop in the next five years.

From 1948-67, enrollment in Newton increased by more than 7,000 students. This was a situation which was relatively easy to respond to. All the city had to do was build more classrooms.

The dilemma of declining enrollment is not so simple. The prospect of a school closing frightens and angers people in the communities which may be affected.

It is too early to say whether closing a school is the best answer to declining enrollment her now. Problems such as having to bus elementary school children and disrupting community identities are possible consequences.

What has been obscured in all the furor over a possible school closing is that declining enrollment is not bad. Declining enrollment is an indication that people are concerned about overpopulation.

It is unfortunate that Newton's most severely underenrolled schools are all in the same half of the city. Otherwide, students at schools which are in need of additions could be conveniently transferred to schools with empty classrooms.

Newton citizens must realize that the era of repeated school building has come to an end. An obvious advantage to be gained from this is that fewer bonds will be required to finance construction.

Someday, as a result of lower enrollment, the school budget may actually go down.

Declining enrollment might not be so bad after all.

"Why isn't my story in the paper?"

By CYNTHIA BLACK

I doubt if there is any phone call more frequently heard here than the one that goes: "why didn't my story fet into this week's paper?"

Our answer, of course, is an explanation that there is only so much space in each paper and some things, because of space, are left out.

Sometimes this is not a satisfacotry answer and people go away mad. Most people, particularly those who have been doing publicity for a long time, take as a matter of course the fact that submitting a press release to a newspaper is a gamble.

Some people think they are the victims of a gigantic plot; victims of the evil minds of editors who automatically keep out of the paper anything they submit. Since these people are wrong, I'm glad they are a small minority.

The real friends of a newspaper are the INNOCENT victims; those people who do always have their stories omitted and remain understanding. For some inexplicable reason, these instances occasionally arise.

A press release is submitted. It doesn't get in the paper. Another is turned in. It doesn't get in the paper. The editor starts writing "must" on the stories because she's aware they're not getting in the paper. Even this tactic doesn't work.

They disappear, they get lost, they get pulled out at the last minute, they get crumpled into a little ball and wind up on the floor. They don't get in the paper.

There doesn't live a more understanding lady than Irene Gaffin who does publicity for Mayflower Chapter B'nai B'rith.

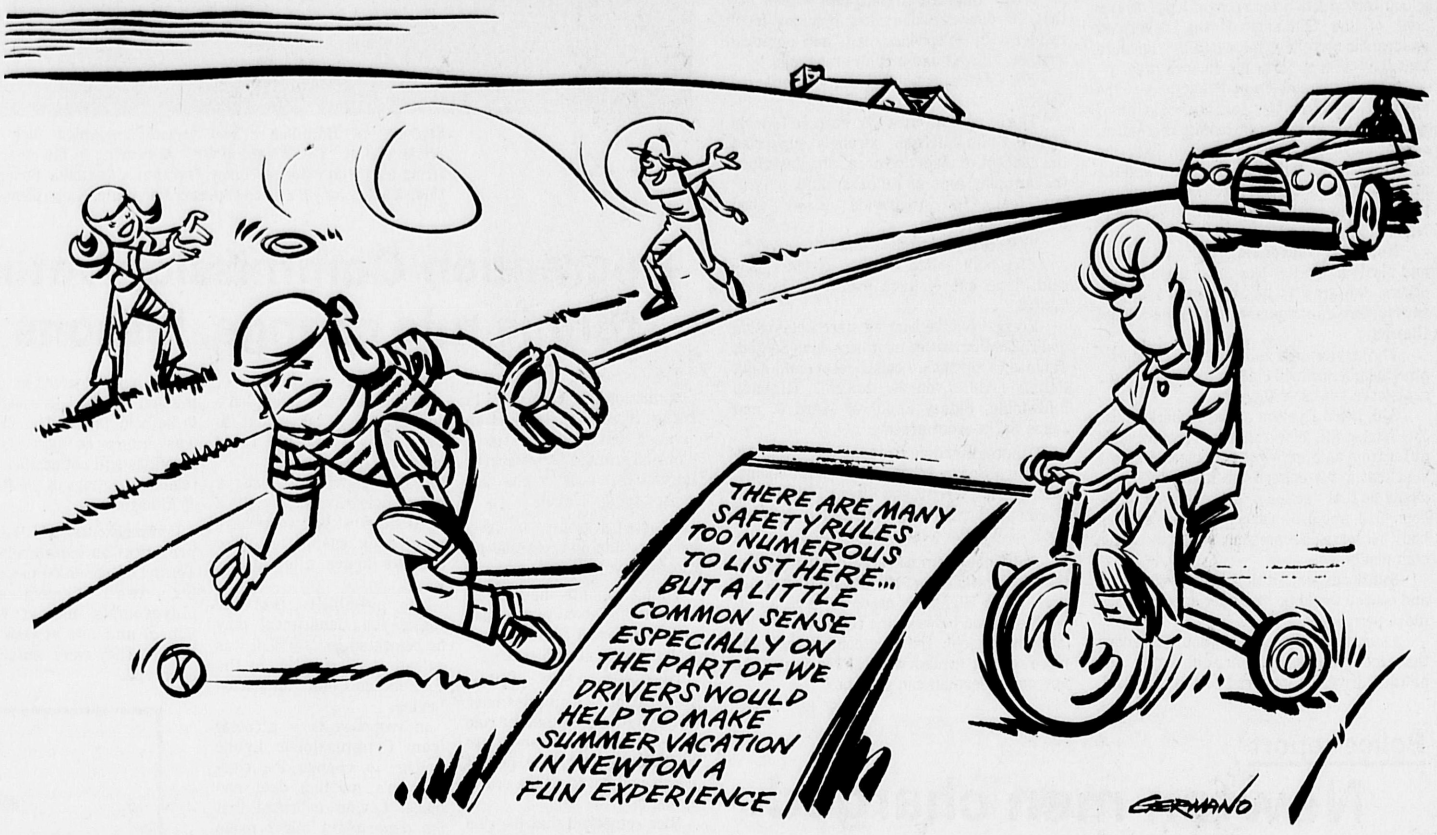
She is the Graphic's most recent victim of this uncontrollable phenomenon.

She never yelled at me and I kept apologizing. Somehow she seemed to understand that the situation had gone beyond all control. I'm impressed that she never got angry, always stayed cool, and just kept on submitting the stories and hoping for the best.

The Boys' Club of Newton is showing signs of developing this very same condition. Its publicity people, too, have been patient through the ordeal.

The only saving grace of this phenomenon is that the condition does not go on forever.

A WORD TO THE WISE



Political Highlights

By JAMES G. COLBERT

GOP conservatives ignore political facts

On the basis of the 1972 Presidential election returns, Massachusetts is the most Democratic and most liberal of the nation's 50 states.

Political analysts in other parts of the United States, after studying the vote in the last Presidential election, and pondering the fact that Massachusetts was the only state George McGovern was able to carry, find it difficult to believe that we have a Republican Governor and one Republican U.S. Senator.

They are incredulous on being told that Republican Governors have headed the state government in Massachusetts for 12 of the past 14 years even though the Bay State has become increasingly Democratic.

John A. Volpe won the gubernatorial elections in 1960, 1964 and 1966. Francis W. Sargent was the Republican winner in 1970. The only Democrat to achieve election to the Governorship during that period was Endicott Peabody in 1962, when Governors were elected to two-year terms.

Yet, Richard M. Nixon was unable to carry Massachusetts at the peak of his popularity against an extremely weak Democratic opponent.

John Volpe was elected three times to the Governorship because many thousands of Democrats of Italian descent championed his cause and voted for him.

Francis Sargent was elected in 1970 because he also succeeded in drawing support of a substantial number of Democrats.

Sargent, Volpe and Christian A. Herter were all liberal Republicans. A conservative Republican of the stamp of Barry Goldwater could not win a state-wide election in Massachusetts if he were given a head start of 250,000 votes before the race began.

Massachusetts now is very close to being a one-party state. It would become one almost overnight if Francis Sargent and Donald Dwight adopted the political philosophy of the conservative Republicans who seemed to dominate the recent unofficial GOP State Convention.

Politically, some of the sonvention delegates, with whom this reporter talked, live in a world of political unreality. They talk as if the time were 1900 and Massachusetts were a safely and solidly Republican state. 'the opinions some delegates expressed sounded as if they had not yet actually entered the 20th Century.

They boohed Governor Sargent and Senator Edward W. Brooke, the Republican party's two most successful present-day politicians in Massachusetts.

Privately, they criticized Sargent for doing the things he must do to survive politically in a Democratic state, and they blasted both Brooke and Sargent for not being more loyal to President Nixon when he has been under fire from all sides.

It does not seem to occur to these conservative. Republicans that they themselves will be just about out of political business, with little to quarrel about, if Sargent and Dwight should go down to defeat next Nov. 5, which is by no means impossible.

This observer has never ceased to marvel that some delegates to Republican State Conventions, both official and unofficial, clamor and fight for the right to attend these conclaves and then don't remain at them long enough to vote in major contests.

That cost Elliot Richardson the nomination for Attorney General at the 1962 convention in Worcester when some of his supporters left the convention hall and went home. Brooke stood on the platform and pleaded with his backers to remain in the hall. Most of them did, and he won on the second ballot. Republican leaders should insist that their party's delegates take a pledge to remain at the conventions until all the business has been completed.

Cong. Drinan explains his stand on abortion

Congressman Robert F. Drinan of Newton is a Jesuit Priest and as such is opposed to abortions on moral and spiritual grounds.

But he also opposes a proposed amendment to the U.S. Constitution which would overturn the Supreme Court decision on abortions.

He explains his position on the abortion issue in the following interview:

Q. Would you favor or oppose any proposed Constitutional Amendment which would overturn the Supreme Court decision on abortions?

A. "I am not in favor of the amendment."

Q. Why?

A. "Although I am opposed for moral and spiritual reasons to abortion, I feel that the proposed Amendment is unwise.

"The defenders of abortion laws in the lawsuit decided by the U.S. Supreme Court on January 22, 1973, conceded that 'no case could be cited that holds that a fetus is a person within the meaning of the Fourteenth Amendment.'

"This is precisely the principle which some persons now desire to add to the United States Constitution. The burden of proof on these proponents is very heavy. In addition to the absense of any decisional law to support their position, those who desire to amend the Constitution have the burden of setting aside the Supreme Court's recognition of 'the right of the individual, married or single, to be free from unwarranted governmental intrusion into matters so fundamentally affecting a person as the decision whether to bear or beget a child.'

"The Supreme Court has stated 'that the unborn have never been recognized in the law as persons in the whole sense.' Yhose who desire the protection of the law for fetal life should, in my judgement, seek to develop a case in decisional law. To attempt to enact a Constitutional Amendment without such support seems very ill-advised, indeed virtually impossible.

"In addition, those who desire to protect fetal life by amending the Constitution should remember the admonition of Justice Holmes that the Constitution 'is made for people of fundamentally different views.'

"It is seldom appropriate for one group within a society to seek to insert their moral beliefs, however profoundly held, into a document designed for people of 'fundamentally different views.' "

Q. Does this represent a change from any previously stated position by you?

A. (by Father Drinan)—"No."

(Ed note: In answering these questions, Congressman Drinan requested only that his statements be printed in full so that everyone would understand specifically what his position is. His statements are published in their entirety.)

Primary picture cloudy until early in July

Not until almost the Fourth of July will we know exactly who will be running against whom in the Democratic and Republican primaries on Sept. 10.

Indications are that one or two candidates expected to run will fade quietly off the political stage at the deadline for filing nomination papers and that there may be one or two surprise entries at the 11th hour.

It appears ther will be primary fights for every place on the Democratic State Ticket except the nomination for State Auditor.

Barring only a totally unexpected development, State Auditor Thaddeus Buczko, who is completing 10 years on the job, will have a free ride in the primary and is virtually certain of reelection to another term next Nov. 5.

Even such sturdy and strongly entrenched Democratic office-holders as State Treasurer Robert Q. Crane and Secretary of State John F. X. Davoren will be challenged in the primary.

Charles Mark Furcolo, son of former Governor Governor Foster Furcolo, will oppose Treasurer Crane, and Representative Paul Guzzi of Newton will stand against Secretary f State Davoren in September.

As the campaigns move into the warm weeks of summer, the greatest public interest, of course, will center on the fights for the Democratic and Republican nominations for Governor.

Adversaries for the right to run as the Democratic candidate for Governor are Attorney General Robert H. Quinn of Dorchester and former State Representative Michael Dukakis of Brookline.

Their fight is likely to prove a bruising one before the primary votes are counted on the night of Sept. 10.

Governor Sargent will easily beat back the challenge of former State Commerce Commissioner Carroll Sheehan in the Republican primary.

The political analysts will be watching that contest closely to make their judgement on whether Sheehan's vote is large enough to reflect any weakness on the part of Governor Sargent.

No matter how small Sheehan's vote is, some experts will interpret it as spelling disaster for Sarge in the November election.

Actually, however, the primary contest should improve Governor Sargent's chances of winning reelection in November—if Mr. Sheehan doesn't change his mind and fold up his campaign tents.

It will give Sarge an opportunity to review his administration as Governor and remind the voters of what he did and tried to do during his six years at the head of the state government. His big asset at the moment in Democratic Boston and the citq of Springfield is that ae at least tried to prevent forced busing of school children although he has not maintained a check rein on the State Board of Education to the extent that he should have.

How many of the contenders will remain in the free-for-all scramble for the Democratic nomination for Attorney General is a question which will not be answered until after the deadlines for filing nomination papers and for withdrawing from the race.

The probability is that the field will be narrowed down to some extent. If it remains as large as it is now, that should benefit former Lieutenant Governor Francis X. Bellotti and former State Representative George Sacco who appear to be the two best known candidates.

On the Republican side of the political fence an interesting three-way contest for the Republican nomination for Attorney General will be waged between former Deputy Governor William I. Cowan of Newton, former Republican State Committee Chairman Josiah A. Spaulding of Manchester and Charles Cabot of Dover, chairman of the State's Outdoor Advertising Board.

Cowin was the only one of the three who went before the Republican Convention, and, of course, he received its endorsement. That will help him to some extent, but not as much as if it were an official convention.

An element of uncertainty exists as to whether Ron Burton of Framingham, former running back for the New England Patriots, will oppose State Senator John M. Quinlan of Norwood for the Republican nomination for Secretary of State in the Sept. 10 primary.

Burton dropped out of the contest at the unofficial Republican State Convention when he saw that Quinlan had the votes locked up to obtain its endoresment. The guessing is he will not run in the primary.

A number of Republicans, who did not attend the GOP Convention, have written in requesting information about Erna Ballantine who was endorsed for State Treasurer and Charles Geer who was backed for State Auditor.

Ms. Ballantine is a black woman, a former chairman of the Massachusetts Commission Against Discrimination and a civil rights militant. Her home is in Roxbury. She is a lifelong Republican and is active in the bankicg field.

The sponsor of much progressive legislation, she is credited with getting the Commission Against Discrimination off the ground before she was succeeded by Mrs. Glendora Putnam of Needham after three years of service.

Before being named chairman of the MCAD, she was the department head for life insurance at the Boston Five

Republicans must unite

Dear editor:

This delegate must agree with James G. Colbert's admirable remarks of June 13 "that so many dyed-in-the-wool Republicans reared up against a sitting governor at an unofficial Republican Convention was incredible."

However, notwithstanding the error of underestimating dissident strength, the proven fact is that Governor Sargent won the convention's overwhelming endorsement as Mr. Colbert notes. This fact cannot be minimized.

But it is imperative that the GOP of Massachusetts pull itself together and work in unity to make the most of its weakened resources. As the weeks pass and common sense takes hold, we should strive for an in-gathering of support within the party as well as from the general community.

The impulse to do this springs from the very nature of our political structure. City and town committees of a party are not just for philosophical exercises. Their primary function is to organize for the purpose of winning elections for the party, and members elected to such committees usually respond to this basic purpose when the chips are down.

Perhaps we will help our cause more effectively if we learn how to cope with the Watergate hysteria and not overreact to it. Rather than take it out on others, within and without the party, who disagree with us, rather than become overly-defensive, we should adopt a calmer, more confident stance and place emphasis on positive accomplishments.

There is not need to become neurotic about what is happening and to assume a defensive, bitter mood, turning on friend and foe alike. The national administration has a massive record of almost miraculous achievement on which we can rest out national claims. This involves:

a. the difficult and what was thought to be an impossible withdrawal of U.S. Forces from Vietnam under honorable conditions;

b. the return of our prisoners of war;

c. the easing of our relationships with the Soviet Union and the Republic of China;

d. the progress in the negotiations for control of nuclear weapons;

e. the negotiations and peace-making among the nations of the Mideast.

There are other major achievements, not the least being the transition from a time of warfare to peacetime living. What the administration has accomplished will remain in the memory of man long after Watergate is forgotten.

The time has come for us to let go of these intricate national matters and turn to pressing responsibilities here in our home areas.

Editorials in various newspapers have urged Republicans in Massachusetts to address themselves to the urgent needs of their home state — to get down to the basic hard work of electing Republicans to the legislature, and by so doing to preserve the two-party system. Is it not time that we pay heed to such advice?

If we continue to vent our frustrations on office-holders who have proben their capacity to win elections, we will hasten the demise of the party. How much better to turn our energies to programs for the recapture of seats in the ligislature. Such efforts will give full play and ample testing to the wide range of philosophic differences that are part and parcel of our society.

Such constructive efforts will leave little time and opportunity for petty bickering and intra-party division.

Let us reread what President Eisenhower states in "Mandate for Change" and take counsel:

"I wanted to . . . strengthen our appeal to sensible Democrats and independents, to get away from constricting — and largely meaningless — labels like 'liberal' and 'conservative,' and to destroy the concept that the Republican Party belonged to a minority which, though the party might be a wreck, was determined to 'own the wreckage.' "

It seems that General Eisenhower's words have special meaning for many of us today.

Parking ordinance tramples rights

To the Editor:

In recent weeks the local press extensively reported controversy over the City of Newton's Licensing Board approval of a common victualer's license for a proposed McDonald's Town House Restaurant.

Incidentally, a dozen firms have left Newtonville alone within the past 18 months because of difficulties in trying to do business in Newton. Four more Walnut street area firms are also planning to leave.

Some aldermen have chosen this issue to exploit and upset Newtonville residents and businessmen alike with dire predictions of increased taffic, noise, congestion, youth problems, etc. This is the standard argument against any change in Newton, whether it is for low income housing, for a new business operation or even a public facility. Opposition was advanced with the help of a restaurant owner whose pending transfer of ownership was felt to be threatened.

They very same people who say that they want more off-street parking for McDonald's would again, as they have in the past, oppose any permissive use by the Board of Aldermen for business property owners to extend parking adjacent to business zones. Yet you can't have it both ways.

One cannot escape the fact that the legal notice for the Licensing Board's second formal vote was only placed in one newspaper on the very evening before their vote. This unusual advertising practice created a legal situation whereby no building permits will be issued in any area of Newton by the City "without peril to the owner" while the proposed parking ordinance languishes before the Land Use Committee.

All substantial property improvement in Newton business districts has effectively been halted. Thus the sweeping ordinance made and rejected in 1973 (having been held in committee since that ime) suddenly surfaces, is dusted off and trotted out by a few aldermen as a panacea to parking.

Stron citywide business and citizen opposition to such a vague and ambiguous ordinance has stressed the unrealistic approach with a cleaver to solve a delicate localized problem that could be solved by bringing together the concerned individuals and groups. As a result of all of this, McDonald's has abandoned its plans. Another tenant which had been engaged has also found it impossible to get a permit "without peril." Some aldermen have correctly characterized these events as intimidating and creating concern to even try to apply for a building permit.

At the very least, it is interesting to note the posture of the city in failing to work with the business community to develop a reasonable approach to parking problems.

Recently, several attempts have been made to reduce the issues of parking and zoning to "ad hominem" attacks against organizations and individuals. Such saracstic and inflammatory remarks from elected officials on the Board of Aldermen are an enlightening and altogether fascinating commentary in revealing bias and prejudice. Particularly, the gratuitous statement that the matter is "Land Use" business, not Chamber of Commerce business ispting as well as incorrect. Most people feel that any business facing the City of Newton in an official way is public business.

There are serious business problems in Newton, as there are elsewhere in Massachusetts. Those elected official who are off on Cloud 9 when it comes to an impartial approach to a legitimate business problem should be a vital concern of every citizen.

This anti-business, anti-community ordinance should be defeated, voters and business persons alike are reminded that the present 1963 zoning ordinances are the result of the Chamber of Commerce's efforts to effect a workable and reasonable approach to the parking problems.

The years later, it appears that the City of Newton wants a fresh look at the parking and zoning relationships. Fine. The Chamber of Commerce is very willing to work with the City of Newton in a serious and comprehensive study of parking needs and requirements. Likewise, those city official and department heads concerned should also be willing to sit down with the representatives of the Chamber of Commerce to develop something more satisfactory to all.

In the meanwhile, the personal rights and finances of many persons are being unjustly assailed. The long-range effects of this capricious and damaging ordinance now before Land Use Committee will seriously disturb and destroy elements of the whole community, not merely the business sector.

Traffic problems

(Editor's note: This letter was sent too the aldermanic street Traffic Committee with a copy to the Graphic.)

Dear Sir:

Iam very much disturbed by attitudes that seemed implicit not only in much that occured in the May 29 hearings before the Street Traffic Committee of the Board of Aldermen but also are infecting other parts of the state and nation.

It distresses me that citizens must repeatedly appear before members of their government to ask for what should be their well-guarded rights. Central to much of this seems to be the impersonal conviction of the near divinity of commerce whose interests must be served before those of humans.

Traffic must be kept moving through residential areas even at a rate that produces accidents and deaths among those whose community is used as a convenient route for non-local interests.

Chestnut Street residents are threatened with the loss of the right to leave their cars in front of their own homes. They report frequent traffic accidents. Those who live on or near Route 9 and must cross it for shopping or public transportation do so, as has been pointed out in various petitions and protests, at the risk often of their lives. These protests have been so unproductive that many of us are beginning to feel that they fall on courteous deaf ears and indifferent hearts.

It is almost a year since two petitions were sent to you from my own community. Apparently in response to them a study of pedestrian conditions was made on Route 9 between the hours of 3:30 and 6:30 p.m. of August 14, 1973.

Particular attention was paid to those using the crossing on Route 9 at Circuit and Meredith. There was no report of the number of vehicles on the roads at this time. Iam sure that the report would habe been radically different had it been made when schools were in session and fewer people on vacation.

During the academic year, I wait for a ride to Chestnut Hill on the corner of Hickory Cliff Road. Ihave repeatedly counted the number of cars that pass in one direction at a speed in excess of what is reasonable in a built-up, residential area. Between 8:45 and 9 a.m. they areraged a little more than 600 every five minutes.

An overpass at or near the foot of the hill is still under discussion. This is after almost a year during which no temporary safeguard have been established. Many still ask how many more of us must die before anything is done. Even with the overpass, those of us who live at the top of the hill will remain unprotected because the sidewalks along Route 9 on the Boston-bound side are quite unusable because they are blocked with snow and ice from the first snowfall until spring.

This has been called to your attention on various occasions.

Our suggestions have been dismissed as impracticable. The new speed limit which lowers the old by only five miles an hour is neither observed nor enforced. We have asked that the light near the DPW be used to give an occasional slow-down in the flow of traffic but are met with the objection that this would seriously slow down traffic. There are traffic lights before Wellesley Hills and after Elliot Street, yet traffic moves with reasonable efficiency.

Would it cripple the economy if speed were reduced even on highways that are infamous for their high incidence of accidents? Or is expediency so important that what once was though to be the inalienable rights even of pedestriand and neighborhoods must continue to be eroded?

Open letter on disabilities budget

(Editor's note: This letter was sent to Eleanor Rosenblum, chairwoman of the Newton School Committee, with copies to newspapers for "the benefit of your readers.")

Dear Mrs. Rosenblum:

Your statements at the June 10 School Committee meeting at Day Junior High School, to the effect that the proposed learning disabilities budget as prepared by Dr. Grimes, coordinator of the Learning Disabilities Program had been approved by the School Committee as submitted by Dr. Grimes, is not supported by the facts.

A public document is available to any citizen for inspection (The proposed Newton Public Schools Budget for 1974-1975, P-18, Learning Disabilities Program) which if you will examine it will show a difference of $50,486 between what Dr. Grimes requested for 1974-1975 and what the superintendent of schools recommended to the School Committee. Minutes of the School Committee concerned with budgets show that the School Committee voted to support the superintendent's recommendation and not Dr. Grimes' proposed budget for 1974-1975.

It also should be noted that at the time of the budget hearings, many parents of learning disabled Newton children beseeched the School Committee for greater support in the budget above and beyond that recommended by the superintendent of schools.

At this point in time, it may prove illuminating too the public to provide the nature of the specific requests Dr. Grimes proposed, that were cut, and the specific reasons the superintendent had for recommending denial of these requests.

Regarding my statement of the $2500 annual salary a learning disability teacher receives in Newton in exchange for her services, let me provide a clarification in this matter, for many persons seemed to have been shocked by this reality.

The $2500 salary a learning disability teacher earns is abysmal by any criteria, all the more so in an affluent suburb such as Newton. The harsh reality is that $2500 is approximately the amount the Newton School Committee pays for the first year, on the basis of a 14-hour starting teaching load per week, 35 weeks per year, at the rate of $5.27 per hour. The actual figure works out to be $2582.30 per year. This data is also a matter of record.

The important point which is not generally understood is that $2582.30 is the base starting salary for a learning disability teacher in the Newton Public Schools this year.

The primary focus of my remarks on June 10 however, was to address the inadequacies of the approved Learning Disabilities Program budget, in view of Newton children with learning disabilities who have been on waiting lists for L.D. services this year, and also in view of new responsibilities school committees will have under Chapter 766 and related regulations, to immediatley place children with special needs into programs which will meet their special educational needs.

Given inadequate budget support for the Learning Disabilities Program discussed above, perhaps an expedient solution would be to double up on the number of children an L.D. teacher works with, or reduce the already inadequate salaries of the Learning Disability teachers, or decrease the number of hours an L.D. child is worked with.

The Learning Disabilities Program under the professional direction of Dr. Jesse Grimes, is a program that has benn demonstrated effective — it works, children who are learning disabled learn how to read, and they retain their skills after being graduated from the program. Research conducted at the direction of the school committee has already demonstrated this.

Perhaps the school committee and the superintendent do not truly value the Learning Disabilities Program and will allow the effectiveness of the program to be eviscerated by such expediencies proposed, recommended, planned, or possibly being implemented already. If this be the case, then the School Committee and the superintendent should publicly announce the fact and accept the responsibilities for such a decision.

If the parents of Newton children value the Learning Disabilities Program, then it is most important that this matter be clarified publicly by you and the record set straight.

Otherwise, parents of these children must double their efforts in behalf of their children and demand from you and other members of the school committee, a level of budgetary support which will maintain not only present services, but also encourage growth in areas where the needs of learning disabled children are not being met.

Defeat S294

To the editor:

The Newton Chapter, American Red Cross urges the Newton Community to consider carefully the implications of Senate Bill 294 now pending in the State Legislature.

If you then agree that the all-volunteer donor program sponsored by the American Red Cross is a superior program to the one outlined in S. Bill 294, please let your opinion be known by contacting the Honorable Chester G. Atkins or your state representative. Senator Atkins is the sponsor of S. Bill 294. Following is a listing of pertinent information which the Red Cross feels will help you to make an informed decision.

Senate Bill 294 would authorize the Department of Public Health to pay up to $40 to any person who takes time off from a normal workday to donate white cells, platelets, or plasma to any cancer research treatment center or hospital treating cancer patients.

The Massachusetts Red Cross Blood Program (MRCB-P) presently makes 150 random platelets a day for hospitals in this state, plus phereses eight individuals daily which results in an additional single donor platelets. This program has proven its capability of meeting white cell, plasma and platelet needs in this state on a total volunteer basis. This is being done without placing an additional burden on the taxpayer as S. Bill 294 would do. Additional monies would have to come out of taxes to support S. Bill 294.

Senate Bill 294 would make it necessary for people to take time off from a normal workday, thus making it impossible for everyone, who may wish to do so, to donate blood.

The Red Cross, on the other hand, maintains a very flexible schedule for blood donations. More than eight bloodmobiles are scheduled daily across the state. There are seven fixed donor centers which are open for the public's convenience seven days and seven nights a week. It is obvious that this type of scheduling accommodates anyone unable to give blood during his or her working day.

In short, the Massachusetts Red Cross Blood Program is already meeting the demands of hospitals, treatments centers, and the like, and they are able to do this on a more flexible scheduling system than Senate Bill 294 would be able to do.

Add to this the fact that blood from volunteer donors has proven "safer" for the recipient and we feel sure that you, too, will agree the Massachusetts Red Cross Blood Program is the superior program. Please make your opinion known to your state representative. Now is the time to act before the legislation is passed!

Police are thoughtful

To the editor:

I am sending you this letter in regards to thanking two Newton police officers for helping me with my little girl.

She had fallen on her forehead and had to go to the hospital where she received nine stitches.

She was scared to go in the police car, so she asked the policemen not to put on the siren. They did not.

We are so thankful to Police Officers Tyrone Powell and Fred Aleman.

I aould appreciate a public thank you. They are a credit to their police force.

Feedback for the body

Biofeedback may be one way to teach our bodies new ways to cope. The technique is now being tried with asthma patients, according to the Norfolk County-Newton Lung Association.

At Denver's National Jewish Hospital and Research Center, researchers are working to help patients modify or gain control over bodily functions that were once considered automatic. Electrodes are connected to the forehead, where they detect electrical activity in the muscles just above the eyebrow. A companion instrument transforms the signals into loud clicks.

If the patient is relaxed, so are the forehead muscles; little electricity races through the muscles. The patient hears only a slow series of clicks. But when the patient is tense, the forehead muscles knot up, and the clicks sound like machine-gun bursts.

Pcitures of flowers, trees, fields of grass, dust — whatever triggers an allergic asthma attack in the patient — is flashed onto a screen. And when the patient hears his own wild clicks, he or she knows an asthma attack may be in the making. In some unexplained way, the patient learns after several sessions to keep the bursts coming at a slow rate by keeping tension down.

In time, patients learn to relax even without the benefit of the sounds. Dr. Robert A. Kinsman at the Hospital doesn't see biofeedback as "an end-all to the treatment of asthma, but rather it is another possible adjunct which might help the patient feel that he is back in the driver's seat."

Variations on biofeedback technique are being used to help patients lower blood pressure, cope with chronic pain, prevent strokes, and ward off migraines.

There are, of course, more conventional ways to treat asthma. To find out about a physical conditioning exercise class for asthmatic children that the Lung Association is planning call 326-4081 or write 745 High Street, Westwood, Mass. 02090.

Mrs. Powell joins Milton Hospital staff

John P. Dowling, executive director of Milton Hospital, recently introduced Mrs. Eleanor R. Powell to the hospital's department heads and chiefs of services at a coffee-hour in the hospital's meeting room.

Mrs. Powell has been appointed chief dietitian at the hospital, where she will be responsible for the therapeutic programs, meal service, menu-planning and administrative functions within the dietary department at the 143-bed hospital.

Mrs. Powell graduated cum laude from Rosary College, River Forest, Illinois, with a Bachelor of Arts degree in foods and nutrition, and completed her internship at Hines V.A. Hospital in Hines, Illinois before becoming a registered dietitian with membership in the American Dietetic Association.

After graduation from college, Mrs. Powell became research assistant in nutrition at the American Medical Association headquarters in Chicago, Illinois. She then became Therapeutic Dietitian at Winchester Hospital in Winchester, Mass.

Mrs. Powell's experience also includes employment as an assistant-manager with the Marriott Corporation in Washington, D.C. where she was assigned as chief of therapeuticc at Jefferson Memorial Hospital in Alexandria, Virginia.

Mrs. Powell returned to the Boston area as director of nutrition services for Middlesex County Hospital in Waltham, and comes to Milton Hospital from a consulting firm where she was a nutritional consultant for institutional food services.

Mrs. Powell and her husband now live in Newton, Massachusetts. They are the parents of two children, a married son, and a daughter who plans to begin studies at Pacific School of Theology in September.

Mrs. Powell's recreational activities include needlecrafts, cooking, swimming, and she is a member of the Newton Chapter of Zonta, a professional women's service organization.

In 1972 Senator Backman authored the legislation that created theiOffice for Children, also a first-in-the-nation agency that is the advocate and coordinator of all children's programs. Another piece of legislation eliminated corporal punishment in public schools.

In 1972, Backman was the first legislator to propose handgun control in Massachusetts,

He was joined by Newton Rep. Peter Harrington, Sheriff John Buckley and a host of citizens in demanding responsibile legislative action.

A long-time environmental advocate, Backman authored the annual state observance of Earth Day and co-sponsored legislation which allows citizens the right to sue in regard to pollution actions. He was also a member of the Air Pollution Commission, and it was his bill which sought to ban SST's from Logan Airport. This latter legislation became federal aviation policy.

Backmannseeks to have real estate taxes paid directly to cities and towns, rather than to banks in an effort to make more money available to the communities and reduce tax rates. He is fighting for legislation to have the state assume the full burden of special education costs of cities and towns and for increased state funding of all education costs of municipalities, both of which will reduce property taxes.

He also was the successful co-sponsor of legislation to have the state reimburse 50 per cent of MBTA costs to the cities and towns.

Sen. Backman is now a recognized leader for reform in the field of community and mental health. His legislation for sheltered employment for the handicapped and yearly evaluation of institutions for the retarded became law in 1973.

On the consumer protection front, Backman filed the Truth-in-Lending legislation which is now law. He is also the legislator who authored the creation of the "911" emergency telephone service, and was co-sponsor of the bill which established the Poison Information Center in the Department of Public Health.

This year, among his consumer protection bills, Backman has filed legislation to establish a patient's bill of rights so that all persons will be treated as first-class citizens at all health facilities.

Backman has fought to eliminate useless agencies and expenditures wherever possible and to bring sound business principles into government.

He was the author of "price tag" legislation that now requires a cost estimate to be placed on all bills calling for new programs before enactment and has called for new budget procedures which would open all budget practices to public hearings, comment and publication in understandable form.

As chairman of the State's Special Commission on Drug Abuse, Backman led the fight for reform of our outdated laws.

In his community Sen. Backman has been president of the Baker Parent-Teacher Organization; president of Putterham Civic Association; a director of Temple Emeth; member of the Regional Council of the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare; state director of Citizens for Participation in Political Action (CPPAX); member of Americans for Democratic Action; member of Common Cause; chairman of the Minority Affairs Committee of the Jewish Community 'council; campaign member of the Combined Jewish Philanthropies and Israel Bonds; and a director of Humanity House.

Commenting on his intention to seek reelection Backman said, "My goals in the legislature have been many, but I have been moving in a direction which will provide us with the type of society which allows children to develop to their full potential, regardless of physical, emotional or social disability . . . which allows senior citizens to live in peace and dignity . . . which allows us to walk the streets of our neighborhoods without fear . . . to provide adequate housing for all people . . . and to make Massachusetts a model for the rest of the nation to follow. I believe these goals are within our reach."

Police chief asks that people aid in suppression of fireworks

Chief William F. Quinn, in an appeal to parents and citizens, requests that people participate in the suppression of fireworks.

Chapter 142, Section 29, Massachusetts General Laws, states, "No person shall sell, or keep or offer for sale, or have in his possession, or under his control, or use, or explode, or cause to explode, any combustible or explosive composition or substance, or any combination of such compositions or substances, or any other article, which was prepared for the purpose of producing a visible or audible effect by combustion, explosion, deflagration or detonation.

"For the purpose of this section fireworks shall include compositions, substances or other articles to include the following: blank cartridge, roman candles, toy cannons (in which explosives are used), sparklers, toy baloons (in which explosives are used), fountains, firecrackers, mines, cherry bombs, rockets, silver salutes, wheels, M-80's, colored fires, torpedoes, serpents, and sky-rockets, or other fireworks of like construction or any fireworks containing any explosive or flamable compound, or any tablets or other device containing any explosive substance.

"Any officer may arrest, without a warrant, for the following violations: any person found selling, or keeping for sale, fireworks in violation of this section; any person who offers for sale such fireworks in violations of this section. The mere offering for sale is a violation - no sale is necessary.

"The term "fireworks" shall not include the following: toy pistols, toy canes, toy guns, or other devices in which paper or plastic caps containing twenty-five hundredths grains or less of explosive are used, provided that the hand cannot come in contact with the cap when it is in place for the explosion, or toy pistol paper or plastic caps which contain less than twenty-hundredths grains of explosive mixture, the sale and use of which shall be permitted at all times."

The Chief reminds parents, citizens and particularly the young citizens of Newton, that in the past there were many serious injuries and deaths attributable to fireworks.

"Each year at this time illegal fireworks have been smuggled into this area and their use would continue until we had a tragedy.

"This year it is our hope that all will cooperate by calling 244-1212 with information about illegal sales or even confidential letter to Chief William F. Quinn, Box 911, West Newton, Massachusetts, 02165."

Quinn continued, "with community cooperation we can avoid a serious injury that usually accompanies the firework season."

leads to the unexpected part of the story.

Philip has been a teacher in Newton for two years, but his contract has not been renewed for next year. Philip says that he is bitter about this and called it "insidius racism." Philip is black.

When asked to clarify his charge, Philip said that there has been "an unwillingness and inability of the administration here to recognize and understand the conflicts which may arise when they hire a black teacher to teach in an almost all-white school system."

Philip remarked that he was informed that his style did not "fit in." He said that this "makes not much sense to me."

Philip said that he did not know if the administration had an pre-conceived notions about what he would be like, but "they were uncomfortable with what they got."

Philip said, "I'm not into clarifying kids' values; I'm into seeing that they read and write well enough to do well enough to get into college."

He explained that no one in the administration actually said that he made them feel uncomfortable. He noted that the key thing in his evaluation was that he did not show enough written planning.

"I teach because I like it, not because I can't do anything else," Philip said. He added that he would like to write a book about black comedians.

Philip said that his plans included applying to Jeopardy for a job as a writer-researcher. He pointed out that the show has a need for better researching since one question may have two possible correct answers, depending on what source is used.

So Philip is at least temporarily away from those unreal Jeopardy categories like "Odds and Edns" or "First Letter S." He is in a category which he shares with a lot of other people: looking for a job.

not be construed as permission to do anything else with the land, he said.

In other action, the board accepted the report of the Street Traffic Committee to deny the Traffic Commission's recommendation on a ban of parking on Chestnut Street from Austin Street to Route 9. A public hearing had shown residents opposed to such a ban, which they felt would remove the only deterrent to speeding.

Ald. Susan Schur convinced the board to overturn the Street Traffic Committee recommendation to accept a plan for a footbridge over Route 9 east of the MBTA bridge and to vote instead for the plan (D-1) locating the footbridge west of the bridge.

Ms. Schur said she had spoken to residents of UMPPER Falls, who said despite their vote in favor of the easterly footbridge at a public hearing that they would not object to the other plan. Ms. Schur feels the westerly footbridge would be more likely to be used by Upper Falls residents crossing to the Eliot MBTA Station.

A two-year-old recommendation for an increase in incinerator rates to $12 per ton and a minimum of $3 for 500 pounds or less was approved. The incinerator will be shut down Jan. 1.

Marino will replace Marr

Marino hopes to replace his own former position with that of a budget analyst and to add someone to do internal audit. He also plans to improve the data-processing coordination.

Marino is a graduate of Boston College High School and Boston College with a B.S. degree. He has a master's degree in business administration from Boston University with concentration in finance and accounting and was awarded a research assistantship in the Finance-Economics department at Boston College.

A veteran who served two years with Army in Vietnam, Marino is married to the former Peggy Dolan. He and his wife live at 94 Charlesbank Way, Waltham.

Across the Kitchen Counter

Every year more families look forward to balmy days when they can move outdoors to combine fresh air with the unbeatable taste of meat or fish cooked over hot coals.

Backyard cooks are generally imaginative because barbecuing is variety cooking at its best. Just count the many ways to barbecue chicken, hamburgers or hot dogs! Don't settle for one favorite marinade — try different sauces each time for new flavor variety.

If you've never tried shish-kabobs before, you're in for a treat. Put meat alone on the skewer, or combine meat with vegetables, fruit or both. Make all pieces uniform in size, so they'll cook or heat through uniformly, and be sure that meat is tender through the marinade process so that you won't have undercooked meat and overcooked vegetables.

The Japanese-inspired hibachis lend themselves perfectly to kabobs and you'll find kabob skewer cookery quite easy if the following tips are kept in mind:

Flare-ups during grilling can be reduced by arranging the coals in parallel rows in the firebox. On the grill, stagger the skewers so that they rest directly over the rows without charcoal. Dripping fat will not land on the coals.

Kabobs are easier to turn during grilling if the skewers have a flat ring or ornament on one end. To make the cooked chunks of food easier to remove and washing simpler, treat the skewers with the new silicon spray that prevents foods from sticking, even barbecue sauce and grease.

When threading the skewers, try to pierce each chunk of food through its center of gravity. This will prevent the pieces from flopping when the skewer is turned. Tomatoes and other soft vegetables should be cut in sizable chunks. Thin pieces of green pepper and onion will stay put if firmly secured between cubes of meat.

Plan the food for each skewer so that each component will be done at the same time. If using Pork, parboil it first to reduce cooking time on the grill.

MUSHROOM AND MEATBALL KEBABS

2 pounds lean ground beef
¼ cup soy sauce
2 tablespoons cooking oil
2 tablespoons water
⅛ teaspoon ground ginger
⅛ teaspoon garlic powder
⅛ teaspoon ground black pepper
½ pound medium-sized fresh mushrooms or 1 (6-8 oz.) can whole mushrooms
2 large green peppers

Shape beef into 1½ inch balls (makes about 24); place in plastic bag or bowl with snug fitting lid. Combine soy sauce, oil, water, ginger, garlic powder and black pepper. Pour over meat. Cover or seal and marinate for 1 hour. Reserve marinade. Meanwhile, rinse fresh mushrooms; pat dry and trim, or drain canned mushrooms. Seed green peppers and cut them into 1-inch squares. Arrange mushrooms, peppers and meatballs alternately on skewers. Place over hot charcoal fire or in a preheated broiler oven if you're doing the cooking indoors. Cook for 15 minutes or until done, turning frequently and brushing with reserved marinade. Serves 4.

HEAVENLY HOT DOGS

½ cup tomato sauce
1 cup apricot preserves
½ cup vinegar
¼ cup sherry
2 tablespoons soy sauce
3 tablespoons honey
2 tablespoons salad oil
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon ground ginger
2 pounds frankfurters

Combine all ingredients except franks and bring to a boil. Remove from heat. Score the franks on the bias, dip into marinade sauce and then broil slowly, turning as they cook. Baste with additional sauce while they are cooking until done. Serve in a bun or on a bed of hot fluffy rice and top with remaining sauce. Serves 8.

SKEWERED SCALLOPS WITH ZIPPY SAUCE

6 tablespoons mayonnaise
2 tablespoons horseradish
½ teaspoon dry mustard
1 pound fresh or frozen scallops
4 tablespoons prepared mustard
4 tablespoons evaporated milk
Fine dry bread crumbs
Cherry tomatoes
Green pepper squares
Salt, pepper, paprika
Salad oil

Prepare a tangy sauce by combining mayonnaise, horseradish and dry mustard; refrigerate. If fresh scallops are used, wash in cold water and cut, if necessary, into three-quarter inch pieces. Combine mustard and evaporated milk; dip scallops in mustard mixture then in bread crumbs, coating completely. Alternate scallops, tomatoes and green peppers on skewers. Sprinkle with salt, pepper and paprika. Brush scallops and vegetables with salad oil and broil over medium fire for 10 to 15 minutes or until scallops are medium brown, turning skewers as food is cooking. Serve with cold tangy sauce.

BARBECUED CHUCK ROAST

3 to 3½ pound beef chuck pot roast, cut 2 to 3 inches thick
½ cup soy sauce
1 cup orange juice
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 teaspoon sugar
2 cloves garlic, minced
½ teaspoon ground ginger

Sprinkle meat well on both sides with salt and pepper and place in shallow baking dish. Combine remaining ingredients and pour over meat. Cover and refrigerate at least 12 hours. To barbecue, drain meat and place over hot coals. Grill about 20 minutes per side. To serve, cut in thin slices against the grain. Serves 6.

BARBECUED CHICKEN

3 broiler-fryer chickens, halved
Salt, pepper
¾ cup diced scallions or young onions
½ cup chopped celery
¼ cup butter, margarine or salad oil
2 cans (15 oz. ea.) tomato sauce or 4 cups chopped fresh tomatoes
¼ cup chopped parsley
5 tablespoons brown sugar
5 tablespoons vinegar
1½ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce

Rinse, pat dry and sprinkle chicken with salt and pepper. Place skin side up on grill, about 5 inches above moderate briquet fire. Broil slowly for 10 to 15 minutes, then turn and broil, skin side down, until brown. Turn several times more and begin to baste with Barbecue Sauce about 10 minutes before chicken is done. Sauce: Saute the onion and celery in the butter or salad oil. Add tomato sauce or fresh tomatoes and simmer until vegetables are tender. Add remaining ingredients. Keep warm while basting chicken. Yield: about 6 cups sauce. Chicken is done when drumstick can be twisted easily; spoon remaining barbecue sauce over chicken when serving. Serves 6.

Plan your tan

Build a tan safely

Is anybody listening? In spite of repeated warning from dermatologists over the past few years, all a person has to do is look around at the ever present sun worshipers to realize that all too many still haven't taken the message seriously.

Each year the warm sun comes almost like a joyful miracle after a long winter and men as well as women worship a sun that can be their worst enemy.

According to skin specialists, harmful utlraviolet sun rays can damage skin, causing it to become dry, prematurely aged and painfully sunburned. The drying effect can leave skin lined and patchy with sun-spots.

If you haven't already found this out by experience, those of Celtic origins, such as the English, Irish and Scots, are most susceptible to sunburn. They are fair, light complected individuals who will never tan, and always burn, no matter what. And, all of us should be aware that certain drugs can cause a photosensitivity that otherwise wouldn't be a problem. Check with your doctor or pharmacist for potential reactions to the sun. Identifying sun sensitivity is half the problem . . . the rest is good common sense.

Just because you're under a beach umbrella doesn't mean you're protected from the seaside sun rays — tests have shown that you can still develop a sunburn from the reflected rays while sitting under an umbrella or cabana because sand and concrete are excellent reflectors of utlraviolet light.

And wearing a light shirt or voile cover-up can't fool the sun either . . . anything you can see through allows penetration of the sun's rays. Very often a T-shirt won't protect children from further sunburn . . . particularly if they are wearing it while swimming. It becomes even more transparent when wet. It's wise to choose cover-up fabrics with this in mind.

Know how your skin reacts to the sun, how to keep it from burning, and how to help it stay soft and smooth while you achieve a light golden tan.

Are you dark or fair? Dark skin tans more easily than light skin. How thick-skinned are you? Thick skin is more tolerant of sun than thin skin. Is your skin dry or oily? Oily skin burns faster than dry skin.

The sun is strongest between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. Remember to count your swimming time as sunning time; remember that sand reflects sunlight to give you almost a double dose of ultra-violet radiation. Even on cloudy days and hazy days you can still add to your tan or receive a bad burn. And, did you know that the sun is stronger in the mountains because of the thinner atmosphere?

The golden rule is to limit the exposure time. Start with the maximum of 15 minutes and increase the time by five minutes daily. Be sure to use an effective sunscreening lotion to protect the skin — there are many sunscreen agents available.

How to choose the right product? If one tans easily, it's wise to use a tanning lotion with a moderate amount of sunfilter in it. If a person always burns, she probably will never tan and could have serious skin damage with repeated exposure to ultraviolet rays. A total sunscreen or sunblockers will provide extra protection.

After a day in the drying sun, be sure to use a moisturizer to help replace the skin's natural oils and moisture. There are many excellent brands on the market.

If you do manage to get a sunburn and you are uncomfortable, a cool bath is quite relaxing and soothing. If your burn is severe; accompanied by chills, headache or nausea, get medical attention as soon as possible. If your skin is reddened and painful, go into a dark, preferably cool room and spread the skin with a soothing cream such as Noxzema.

At bedtime if the sunburn is still uncomfortable, try sprinkling some powder (any kind will do) between the sheets . . . it makes them feel satiny and will make the night more restful.

There's an inexpensive liquid, available in every drug store, you should have in your medicine closet or on your vanity table. It's called "witch hazel." Botanically speaking, the liquid is obtained from the hard fruit of the Hamamelis Virginiana and was widely used in bygone days by the American Indians as a "miracle" drug. Currently, the plants are so coveted that they are shipped to France where the juice is triple-distilled, then incorporated into special creams and lotions. Following are some summertime suggestions using this inexpensive wonder-worker:

Astringent: Pat clean face briskly with a cotton wad wrung out in witch hazel which has been poured over an ice cube. If your skin is sensitive, use more ice cubes and less witch hazel or prepare an ever-ready astringent by combining 3 parts witch hazel with 1 part water. Store in refrigerator in a glass bottle CLEARLY LABELED.

Summertime special: When you feel uncomfortably warm, cool down by splashing wrists, temples, base of throat, back of neck and knees, inner elbows with chilled witch hazel. Try it and see.

This is the reader's column. If you have a question or a recipe to share with readers, please write to: Information Please, Transcript Newspapers, 420 Washington Street, Dedham, Mass. 02026.

Question: I'm looking for a good Clam Spread recipe — something that can be served with crackers . . . and also, please, a mold with vegetables in it — something that's not too sweet please. Many thanks. — Mrs. E. E., Dedham

Answer: Sounds as though a party's brewing, and that's great! Here are the recipes — enjoy!

CLAM SPREAD

2 pkgs. (3 oz. ea.) cream cheese
3 tablespoons mayonnaise
1½ teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
1½ teaspoons prepared mustard
2 tablespoons minced onion
2 tablespoons chopped pimiento
2 cans (7½ oz. ea.) minced clams
Salt, pepper
Assorted crackers

Mix softened cheese, mayonnaise, Worcestershire sauce and mustard until smooth. Stir in onion, pimiento and drained clams. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Chill several hours. Serve with crackers. Makes about 2 cups.

PINEAPPLE CHEESE RING

2 pkgs. (3 oz. ea.) lemon flavor gelatin
¼ teaspoon salt
2 cups boiling water
1 can (20 oz.) crushed pineapple, undrained
2 tablespoons cider vinegar
1½ cups small curd cottage cheese
One-third cup thinly sliced or chopped celery
¼ cup coarsely shredded pared carrot
¼ cup chopped green pepper
2 tablespoons chopped pimiento
Crisp lettuce
Mayonnaise

Dissolve gelatin and salt in boiling water; stir in pineapple and vinegar; cool. Measure out 1½ cups of the gelatin mixture and stir in cottage cheese; let stand at room temperature while preparing bottom layer. Cool remaining gelatin quickly, by placing pan in ice water, until slightly thickened. Fold in celery, carrot, green pepper and pimiento, and turn into oiled 6-cup ring mold. Set mold in ice water until almost firm. Spoon cottage cheese mixture over clear layer and chill several hours or overnight. When ready to serve, unmold and serve on crisp lettuce with mayonnaise. Serves 8.

Question: Many years ago, I had a recipe for Apricot Bran Muffins. The muffins were excellent and I think there were raisins in them too, but I can't locate the recipe in any of my cookbooks. Can you help me? — Mrs. N. B., Roslindale

Answer: Don't know if these are the muffins but they do contain the bran, apricots and raisins — so here's to the revival of an old favorite:

FRUIT 'N BRAN MUFFINS

Two-thirds cup unsifted all purpose flour
2½ teaspoons baking powder
2 tablespoons sugar
½ teaspoon salt
1 egg, beaten
¾ cup milk
3 tablespoons shortening, melted
1½ cups Bran Flakes or Raisin Bran
½ cup seedless raisins
½ cup chopped dried apricots

Mix flour, baking powder, sugar and salt. Combine egg and milk, add to flour mixture with shortening, and mix only enough to dampen flour. Fold in cereal and raisins. Fill greased muffin pans about two-thirds full. Bake at 425 degrees for 15 to 20 minutes. Makes 8 medium muffins.

Question: When we were very small, I recall my mother serving a delicious dish of zucchini with noodles. It's been many years since I've tasted the dish and I wonder if you or one of your readers has this recipe. — Mrs. M. Roslindale

Answer: The following recipe is not especially "old" but it seems to contain the zucchini and noodles and I do hope it's the recipe you're looking for . . . perhaps one of our readers will come up with another one.

ZUCCHINI WITH NOODLES

4 medium zucchini
¼ cup minced fresh parsley
2 cloves garlic, minced
½ teaspoon salt
Dash pepper
2 tablespoons olive oil
¼ cup water
Cooked medium noodles, drained
Parmesan cheese

Wash the zucchini carefully. Slice peeled vegetable directly into saucepan. Add minced parsley, garlic, salt and pepper. Add olive oil and water and stir carefully. Allow to simmer over medium heat for about 15 minutes until zucchini is tender. Pour freshly cooked (hot) noodles in a bowl; top with zucchini mixture and sprinkle with grated Parmesan cheese. This is a good dish to serve with meat or fish. Serves 5-6.

Question: I'm planning a small luncheon for four and I would like to serve something unusual and light with a salad and dessert of fresh fruit. What would you suggest? — Mrs. McD., Medfield

Answer: Here's a dish that is not only impressive looking, but also delicious tasting — Shrimp Souffle with Beer Cheese Sauce. Use either a souffle dish or any straight sided casserole and watch reaction when you carry this beauty to the table!

SHRIMP SOUFFLE WITH BEER CHEESE SAUCE

3 tablespoons butter or margarine
3 tablespoons flour
1 cup beer
½ teaspoon salt
Pinch of cayenne
1 cup cooked shrimp
½ teaspoon cornstarch
6 eggs, separated

Make a cream sauce: Melt 3 tablespoons butter, stir in 3 tablespoons flour and cook until bubbly. Slowly stir in 1 cup beer, ½ teaspoon salt, pinch cayenne. Toss 1 cup cooked shrimp with ½ teaspoon cornstarch and add to cream sauce. Beat 6 egg yolks until thick — stir in cooled sauce. Beat egg whites until stiff, fold in gently but thoroughly. Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Pour souffle mixture into buttered 1½ quart souffle dish or straight sided casserole. Bake 30-35 minutes. Serves 4. Serve with Beer Cheese Sauce:

BEER CHEESE SAUCE

¼ cup butter or margarine
¼ cup flour
½ cup beer
1½ cups milk
¼ pound grated Cheddar cheese
1 teaspoon chopped chives
½ teaspoon paprika
Salt and pepper to taste

Melt butter and stir in flour. Gradually stir in beer and milk. Cook while stirring over low heat until mixture bubbles and thickens. Gradually beat in cheese, chives and paprika. Add salt and pepper to taste.

Newton women attend DAR day in Marlboro

Five members of Lydia Partridge Whiting Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, attended "DAR Day" at Hillside School for Boys, Marlboro, recently.

Mrs. Rose E. Langill, Mrs. William A. Hurley, Mrs. Joseph P. Maloney, Mrs. John J. Gay, Jr., and Mrs. Joseph P. Toussaint joined DAR members from all over New England on the campus of the school, which is partially supported by their organization. A tour of the school farm buildings under the guidance of students, and a basket lunch preceded the program.

Demonstrations of athletic skills, musical selections by the school band, and a patriotic skit were presented. Mrs. George C. Houser, newly elected vice president general, NSDAR, was introduced and spoke briefly. Regents of the various states also spoke. Headmaster Richard Whittemore presided, and acknowledged with many thanks the support given the school by DAR members and Chapters.

Hillside School, founded in 1901, cares for boys from broken homes. It offers a home for those boys who otherwise would have none, giving them an education in the elementary grades.

Students inducted into honor society

On Thursday morning, May 23, in the presence of the assembled student body, faculty and parents, nine members of the senior clas of the Roxbury Latin School, West Roxbury, were inducted into the Cum Laude Society, a national secondary school honor society.

Roxbury Latin, one of the oldest independent schools in the country, now in its 329th year of continuous existence, has one of the 250 chapters of the Cum Laude Society which span the United States. According to the constitution of the Society, not more than one fifth of a senior class may become members of a chapter.

Newton residents of the class of 1974 whose academic achievements entitled them to this honor were as follows:

Robert J. Barger, a son of Dr. & Mrs. Harold M. Bargar, 5 Sharpe Road, Newton Center. Bargar was a member of the varsity soccer team and was also on the school's fencing team, an active debater, and associate editor of the 'Tripod," the school literary magazine, and of "Juba," the weekly student newspaper. He was president of the model rocketry club, an active participant in the computer program, co-ordinator of the student tutoring program, and participant in school dramatics and video productions. He will enter Harvard University in September.

David Homer Jernigan, a son of Prof. and Mrs. Homer L. Jernigan, 158 Auburn Street, Auburndale. Jernigan was co-editor of the "Tripod," the school literary magazine and of the weekly student newspaper, "Juba," a member of the drama club and of the glee club, as well as the outing club. In connection with the glee club, he has also been choral accompanist and a member of the madrigal group singing. Jernigan is going to Dartmouth College in September.

John Andrew Kaufman, a son of Dr. AND Mrs. Seymour Kaufman, 64 Bishopsgate Road, Newtoon Center. Kaufman was a member of the varsity soccer and tennis teams, associate editor of both the "Tripod," the school literary magazine, and of "Juba," the weekly student newspaper, a member of the drama society and the glee club, and of the student government; also manager of the debating team and student member of the screening committee which interviewed candidates for the position of headmaster this past year. Kaufman will attend Yale University next September.

Gelb, 1st vice president - Robert Shuman, 2nd vice president - William Shaevel, recording secretary - Barbara Segal, corresponding secretary - Harian Hochberg, treasurer - Leon Scheinin, and representatives at large - Cindy Creem and Sylvia Drapkin.

Newton Democrats

There will be a combined meeting of Newton Democrats, Wards two, three and four on Tuesday, June 25, at 7:45 p.m. at the Second Church, Youth Parlor, 60 Highland St., West Newton. The subject of the meeting will be, "The Race for Representative in the 16th Middlesex District."

Record turnout reported for recent lead screening program

Twice as many children turned up for the Tuesday, June 11, lead screening program at the Newton Day Care area of the Sacred Heart School as have ever reported for a screening before.

There were 250 in all, a record number for the program inaugurated last fall by Newton-Wellesley Hospital's Comprehensive Child Care Service and the RSVP (Retired Senior Volunteer Program) of the Newton Community Center.

Mrs. Irenen Lamb, the Child Care Service's pediatric nurse practitioner, expresses regret that there were delays in the Tuesday screening as a result of the unexpected turnout. On the other hand, she notes, that the latter could no doubt be attributed to intensive attention given the dangers of lead poisoning in the media recently, and says that the bigger the response, the better.

"I do want to say, though, to all those inconvenienced that I am very sorry we were not properly staffed for the influx of double our usual numbers." Mrs. Lamb added that anyone who wished to bring their child, aged one through five, to Newton-Wellesley Hospital's Child Care Service is most welcome to do so anytime this summer. They should make an appointment and can do so by calling 244-2800, extension 380.

The last lead screening programs of the season were Monday, June 17, at the Ward School, Newton, and Wednesday, June 19 for students at the Mason-Rice School, Newton Centre. There were 21 screenings in all througout the school year. Mrs. Lamb and technicians from Newton-Wellesley's pathology laboratories performed the simple pin prick test.

Convention

Fifty years ago, in 1924, 250 women met in Chicago for the twelfth national convention of Alpha Xi Delta.

The Boston Alumnae Chapter will be represented by Ms. Jean Kiza of 908 Chestnut St., Waban, president; and Mrs. John Cook, Old Colony Lane, Arlington, vice president.

Awards for Miss Thompson

Mary Louisa Thompson, a daughter of Dr. and Mrs. John E. Thompson Jr., of 9 Belmore Park, delivered the valedictory address at the commencement exercises, June 2, at Ursuline Academy, Dedham.

Miss Thompson received four awards, including the general excellence award given to the highest ranking senior. She was also awarded the English and Classics prizes and also a prize for service to the Academy.

New officers lead day care advisors

Day Care

The Newton Day Care Advisory Committee held its annual meeting last week and elected a new slate of members and officers.

The committee is the policy making body for the three Newtoon Day Care Centers sponsored by the Newton Community Service Centers, Inc. Two of the centers serve pre-school children ranging in age from 2 years and 9 months through 6 and are located at the United Presbyterian Church in Newton Corner and the Sacred Heart School in Newton Centre.

The After School Center is operated at Pomroy House in Newton Corner.

The Newton Centre site will remain open throughout the summer with its regular hours from 7:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. A few places for the summer months are still available.

The Newton Corner center will close for 8 weeks for refurbishing its quarters. The After School Center will be closed for school vacation.

All centers are accepting applications for placement in the fall. For information Call Edith Babkey at 969-5907 or call Pamela Putnam for information on the summer program at the Sacred Heart School site in Newton Centre.

The newly elected officers of the committee are: Mrs. Keith G. Willoughby, chairman; Maudyea Campbell, vice-chairman; Mrs. John Webber, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Vincent P. Stanton, recording secretary.

Other members of the committee are: Mrs. Gerald Sullivan, Mrs. Maxwell Schleifer, Mrs. David Mofenson, Mrs. Robert L. Tennant, Mrs. Alfred O. Weaver, Mrs. Victor D. Baer, Mrs. Edwin Olsson, Mrs. Albert Cohen, Mrs. Theodore Monacelli, Mrs. James McGarry, Mrs. Francis Drinan, Mrs. Carol Sands, Frank Neal, Phyllis Oram, Mr. and Mrs. Peter de Garmo, Linda Martinez.

Training program

Marcia Kohl and Frances Kushner of Newton have completed the spring semester course in environmental aides training at the Elbanobscot Foundation in Sudbury.

As environmental aides they will be assisting with or conducting programs in environmental education for schools, youth and community groups. Given twice yearly, each September and March, the training program prepares participants to serve as resource persons, curriculum consultants or classroom assistants for environmental programs using an outdoor classroom.

Beverly Blicher of Newton helped teach programs at Elbanobscot for visiting school children during the spring session.

For more information about Environmental Aides or the training program, people may call the Elbanobscot Foundation at 443-9931.

Ring, G.S.S., Superior, Stigmatine Father, Waltham Mass., who will speak on the "Sound of One Hand Clapping."

Any persons interested in church or synagogue libraries are welcome to attend the confference. For registration information people may write to Maurice Tuchman, 16 Duffield Rd., Auburndale, Mass. 02166.

Dr. William Berenberg to head hospital group

Dr. William Berenberg of 55 Beresford Road, Chestnut Hill, has been elected to a two-year term as president of The Medical Staff of The Children's Hospital Medical Center, a group of some 750 physicians, dentists, and scientists.

"The Staff is vitally concerned with every aspect of the Hospital," said Berenberg. "Our purposes are to assure the best possible care for all patients, as well as the highest standards of education and medical research with regard for the safety and dignity of all patients."

Berenberg has been associated with Children's for 33 years. After graduation from Harvard College and Boston University School of Medicine, he served an internship and residency at Children's. He is currently associate physician-in-chief and chief of the medical inpatient division.

He is also medical director of the Cerebral Palsy Clinic and has recently been named project director of the Harvard-M.I.T. Rehabilitation Engineering Center.

Berenberg has been professor of pediatrics at Harvard Medical School since 1971.

Philip Perlmutter elected

Philip Perlmutter of Waban, New England regional director of the American Jewish Committee, has been elected to serve a one-year term on the Executive Committee of the Association of Jewish Community Relations Workers.

Perlmutter is an instructor at the Boston University School of Social Work, and has written and lectured on related subjects.

McGrew elected lecturer

James M. McGrew, C.S., of Weston, Mass., has been elected to serve as a Christian Science lecturer, The Christian Science Board of Directors announced recently.

More than 4,000 public addresses are given on six continents each year by members of The Christian Science Board of Lectureship, which is composed of some 30 men and women from many parts of the world.

McGrew holds a master's degree in business administration from the University of Chicago.

He was officer and director of a large worldwide manufacturing corporation for a number of years. From 1966 to 1973, he served as controller of The Christian Science Publishing Society.

Since 1967 he has been in the public practice of Christian Science. He has served branch churches as first reader and chairman of the executive board.

Carnival held to raise funds

The children of the Temple Beth Avodah Religious School recently held a carnival to benefit Traveling Meals of Newton.

Mrs. Samuel Crasnick, vice-president of the organization, accepted a donation from Shoshanah Wasserman, Linda Kaplan and Debby Lipkind.

Mrs. Helen Brehm, president of the board of Traveling Meals, feels this donation of the children typifies the community spirit that has provided the funding for the hot meals program, which was started by the Newton Centre Clergy Association.

Levines to host party

Mr. and Mrs. Irving B. Levine will host a dinner party Saturday evening, June 22, at their Waban home in celebration of the 26th birthday of the State of Israel.

The event is being held on behalf of the Israel Bond program to mobilize investment funds for the domestic development of the Jewish State.

BETH—EL BROTHERHOOD of Newton honored Philip Snyder with the man of the year award at a dinner-dance held Wednesday, June 19, at 561 Ward St., Newton Centre.

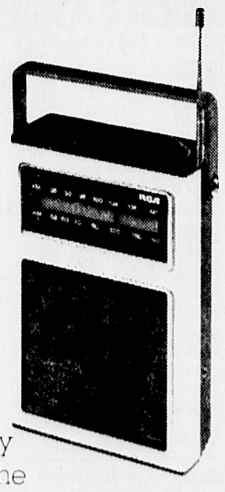
Union Market National Bank would like to offer you a bribe.

1/2% off on loans plus a free radio or cooler or outing set.



We want all your business.

So we're ready to make it worth your while.

The deal is this: If you open a single statement account with us, (that's one monthly statement called the Work Statement, that covers both your savings and free checking accounts), we'll give you a 1/2% discount on any loan of $2000 or more.

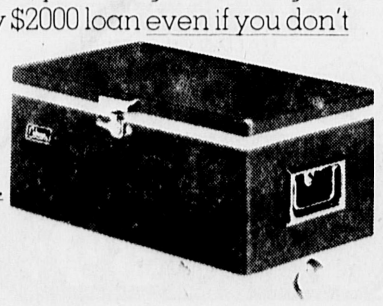
free portable AM-FM radio free outing set with picnic blanket and thermos

And when you take the loan we'll sweeten the deal with your choice of a free RCA Portable AM/FM Radio, a Coleman Snow-Lite Low Boy Cooler Chest or a Thermo Serv Outing Set with picnic blanket and thermos.

In fact, you can get the free goods with any $2000 loan even if you don't open a single statement account. (We figure some of your business is better than none at all.)



free cooler chest

But hurry, drop by our installment loan department now. This offer is good only while the supply lasts.

After all, how long can a bank offer a bribe like this.

We work as hard for your money as you do.

Annual meeting of Savings Bank Assn. of Massachusetts

Over 1,000 savings bank officers, trustees and their guests met at the Statler Hilton Hotel, Boston, Thursday, June 13 for the annual meeting of the Savings Banks Assn. of Massachusetts.

Charles A. Pearce, president, Quincy Savings Bank presided at the business meeting inthe afternoon and the evening program.

John McP. Collins, president, Springfield Institution for Savings was elected president; John E. Wilkinson, president, Charlestown Savings Bank, Boston, First vice president; and Bartow Kelly, president, Worcester County Institution for Savings, second vice president.

Collins presented Pearce with a plaque honoring his leadership and service as president of the 167 mutual savings banks.

Pearce reported on his year in office saying:

Dedication to serving community and consumer personal financial needs unify all savings bankers.

Quick, joint effort by savings banks, and an interested Legislature early this year protected holders of term deposits from an increase in the tax on interest received from 5 percent to 9 percent. This was a rare opportunity to demonstrate that savings banks are alert to the needs of depositors and consumers generally.

Last year, during a period in which savings banks lost a total of about $400 million deposits, alertness and flexibility of the investment portfolios of the banks enabled them to continue to support home mortgage needs even in the face of deposit loss. Mortgage investments increased by about $400 million while deposits were reduced by that same amount.

New accounts, offered by 104 of the 167 savings banks in the state have grown to about $150 million — or only about 1 percent of total deposits, but their value lies principally in the fact that the service allows the savings depositor to have flexibility in using his savings with the negotiable withdrawal order.

Just as a depositor can use the Now account for his convenience, so the branching laws and other limitations on savings bank services need to be overhauled with a view to meeting more consumer financial needs.

Commercial banks via one-bank holding companies, and savings and loan associationx as a result of a liberal policy by the Federal regulatory agency can cultivate banking markets independently of County lines — and the law restricting savings banks from crossing county lines needs modification.

Personal checking accounts — credit cards — electronic transfer of funds systems — and many sophisitcated refinements are essential if savings banks are to continue to attract the savings deposits needed to meet home mortgate needs.

Pearce moderated a panel discussion of "Savings Banking — the Progress and the Problems" in which the newly elected officers participated with Elliott G. Carr, excecutive vice president of the Association.

Following the banquet in the evening, Congresswoman Margaret M. Heckler reported to the savings banker audience on the "Washington Outlook".

CHARLES CABOT JR

Cabot, GOP candidate for Attorney General

Charles C. Cabot Jr., of Dover, a has announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination for Attorny General.

A graduate of Milton Academy. Harvard College and Harvard Law School, and a practicing lawyer for the past 17 years, he is a parnter in Sullivan & Worcester, a State street, Boston law firm.

He served with the Navy Submarine Service 1952-1954.

At present he is a member of the Dover Board of Selectmen and a past member of the Dover Planning Board and Conservation Commission. He is married and has three children.

In announcing his candidacy he said in part:

"The principal commitment of the Attorney General should be, not to politics, but to the law.

"The theme of my campaign will be to restore respect for the law. We are told that today many citizens no longer even report crimes; they have become alienated from the system.

A non-politican - a man with no political ties - can do a better job of keeping the government completely honest. A non-politician can do a better job of protecting consumer interests. A non-politician can do a better job of reforming the law and enforcing the law.

"I hope to be able to prove that a man can run for public office today without losing his dignity, without losing his self-respect, and without losing his sense of what is right.

"If elected, I will do my utmost to interpret and enforce the law forcefully, objectively and honestly."

Patriotism urged

RICHMOND, Va. (UPI) — The president and chief executive of a Virginia-based financial services company hopes to restore confidence in the American system by trying to show that hardship and controversy are part of the country's heritage.

Warren M. Pace of Richmond Corp., noting that the White House, Congress and big business are getting "poor marks" in public opinion polls, has committed a segment of his company's advertising budget to list 119 "great and not so great moments in American History

State's employment service offers help to job seekers

What do you know about finding a job? Can you write a good resume of your experience and qualifications? Do you know where to look for jobs and how to interest an employer once you've contacted him?

These can be [illegible] tough questions [illegible] for $20 thousand-a-year men, or over, but a unique workshop program in the Greater Boston area is training engineers, scientists and a variety of other professionals how to find employment ina shrinking job market.

The program is sponsored by NE-VEST, a non-profit organization whose initials stand for New England Volunteer Engineers, Scientists and Technologists. NE-VEST itself is a brain-child of the American Institute of Aeronautics and Astronautics, which in 1970 grew concerned over the rising unemployment that resulted from cutbacks in defense and aerospace contracts.

An employment workshop is offered every week. The first session helps the individual to assess his talents and experience in relation to the current job market.

The second session covers resumes, letters and all the other tools of job-seeking. The last session developes interviewing and salary negotiating skills.

The NE-VEST office is located at 400 Totten Pond rd. in Waltham where the Division of Employment Security has donated office space and access to their computerized job bank.

The Commonwealth's employment service also supplies telephones and franking privileges in exchange for the volunteer group's cadre of Job Developers who specialize in placing highly trained professionals.

NE-VEST members help themselves and each other by volunteering four hours each week to a project in job development, interviewing, resume forwarding or workshop activities. These dedicated and talented professionals are banded together to do what employment agencies cannot — immerse applicants in a full-time job search atmosphere with moral support from their peers and advice on proven techniques.

A major thrust of the program is to convince employers that potential employees are adaptable to new and different jobs — that their specialized training is not a handicap, but an asset.

The applicant may have been an electronics technologist who can fit nicely into the medical engineering field, or a computer designer who can adapt to a research and development corporation.

Just phone "VEST" — 890-7150.

Catalytic converter to make debut

By AUTOMOTIVE INFORMATION COUNCIL

To meet the 1975 federal exhaust emission standards, the car manufacturers individually decided that the most practical way was to use the much talked about catalytic converter. About 75 to 80 percent of the new models are expected to be equipped with the device.

Resembling a car's muffler in appearance, this new piece of hardware is connected to the exhaust system. It's purpose is to further reduce the amount of hydrocarbons and carbon monoxide in the car's exhaust.

Inside the converter is a catalyst—a substance that speeds up a chemical reaction without itself being affected. The catalyst used in this case is a combination of platinum and palladium metals which are coated on small beads or a honeycomb structure, dependingon the type used. When the exhaust gas passes over the beads or through the honeycomb, a chemical reaction occurs that causes the hydrocarbons and carbon monixide to combine with air or oxygen and form water and carbon dioxide.

The catalyst is coated on the beads or honeycomb to increase the surface area that is exposed to the exhaust gases. The surface area of pellets contained in a six and one-half inch square box is equal to more than 59 footaball fields.

Government regulations require that the catalyst be designed to function for 50,000 miles or five years before it "wears out." When it does need replacing, the catalyst material can be removed from the converted and new material inserted. It will not be necessary, under normal conditions, to replace the entire catalytic converter. The catalyst material can be replaced without removing the converter.

Crucial to the life of the catalyst is the use of unleaded fuel, since lead will destroy its effectiveness. Most 1975 model cars will be equipped with a smaller gas tank filler neck to accommodate smaller-sized service station fuel pump nozzles used to dispense the unleaded fuel. This will help insure use of the correct fuel and contribute toward cleaner air.

The Alex Brown Electric Co., founded in Walnut Grove, Calif., in the late 1800s, is considered one of the smallest utilities in the state, serving only 330 customers.

The temple orange was introduced into the United Statees in 1917.

Television notes

NEW YORK ZUPI) — Diana Gould, who wrote the script for ABC's "I Love You...Goodbye," a "Tuesday Movie of the Week" presentation this season, received a $10,000 cash award in the Second Annual Television Population Script Awards competition. The top prize was not awarded in the first year of the award.

Dropped by NBC on a daily network basis, Dinah Shore next season will work for CBS as host of a daily 90-minute program for the network's five owned stations. It is likely that her show will be syndicated to other stations around the country.

The Hughes Television Network will be deep in cpro football during the coming season. From NLF Films, a subsidiary of the National Football League, it has acquired rights to 28 programsm During the summer, it will be telecasting 13 half-hour films called "NFL in Action," depicting past activities as a warmup for the new season. There will follow 15 one-hour programs, "This Week in Pro Football," beginning the weekend of Sept. 21-22, that will review play of the previous week.

Three teachers retiring from North High

Elizabeth Jewett, Miriam Abrahams and John Harrer are retiring from Newton North High School this month.

Mrs. Abrahams first trained at Boston State and took her degree in secondary education at Worcester State. Her first time out for marriage and raising two daughters before going to Simmons for Masters in library science. A stint in the library at Beaver Country Day preceded her joining Newton North High library staff 14 years ago.

Mrs. Abrahams has served on many committees over the years, both house and school wide, and has been deeply concerned and involved in every phase of the school. Her concern has been vital and active and her contributions to making the library and its collection better have been countless.

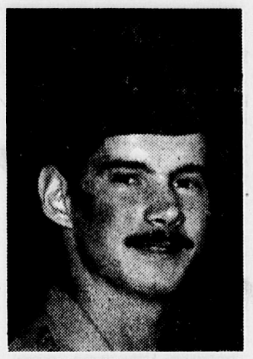
Harrer took his AB from Harverford College and his MA from Harvard University. He had been assistant to the reading director of the Scituate Public Schools before coming to Newton in 1955. Since then, he has been involved in just about everything that Newton High School and the Department of English have undertaken.

When Floyd Rinker initiated the Newton Plan, he invited Harrer to prepare library lectures for large -group instruction. Member of the Centennial Celebration Committee, the All-School Student Problems Committee, the Scholarship Committee, the Round Table for Articulation in English; Chairman of the Department of English final exams and of the department bookroom; reader for the CEEB English Composition Test; acting head of the department; participant in planning the transition from the old building to the new — he has been vitally concerned in the major activities of the English Department and of the school.

After 32 years of service to Newton students, Miss Jewett will retire from the Language Department of Newton North High School. Miss Jewett, a Latin teacher, was a director of school plays, advisor to the school newspaper and served on numerous committees over this period of time.

A graduate of Mt. Holyoke College with an M.A. from Boston University, Miss Jewett began her teaching career at Lasell Junior College before coming to Newton.

ARMY PRIVATE JOHN EL GEMMA, 20, of 6 Morgan Pl., Newton, was granted permission to return home for the June 5 commencement exercises at Newton North High School. Gemma, with enough credits to graduate in January, joined the Army. He completed basic training at Ft. Dix, N.J. He is now on leave and will depart for duty in Frankfurt, Germany.



ARMY PRIVATE ROBERT NOLAN, 19, of 97 Madison Ave., Newtonville, was not wearing the traditional cap and gown earlier this month when he was awarded his diploma at Newton North High School. He had accumulated enough credits to graduate as of January and decided to join the Army. This month, he was given permission to graduate in uniform with his classmates.

Silver to speak to Rotary Club

Frederick A. Silver, administrator of St. Paul's Rehabilitation Center, The Catholic Guild for All the Blind, will speak to the Newton Rotary Club on Monday, June 24 at noon at Valle's Steak House on Route 9, Chestnut Hill.

Silver earned a B.S. degree in 1950 at Virginia State, and a master's in education in 1965 from Boston College. He has had special studies at Boston University.

In 1945-46, Silver was in the U.S. Army Medical Corps at Avon Aold Farms Convalescent Center, Avon, Conn. - the Army's rehabilitation center for blinded servicemen.

From 1950-52, Silver taught science and math and was an athletic coach at Ralph Bunche High School, King George County, Va.

From 1952-54, he was a community mobility therapist at The Catholic Guild for All the Blind. In 1953, he served at mobility restoration workshop at the Gloucester Conference.

From 1954-60, Silver was a mobility instructor at St. Paul's Rehabilitation Center. From 1954-58, he was a lecturer on rehabilitation of the blind at the Boston University School of Nursing.

From 1960-68, Silver was a graduate lecturer in education (on peripathology) at Boston College.

Frederick A. Silver

He has received several awards relating to his work, and books on it were published in 1961 and 1965.

Somebody Else Shoplifting or Vandalising Costs You Money!

Nobody has any patience with shoplifting and vandalism anymore. It isn't a prank. It isn't a lark. It isn't a joke. It's a crime . . . a crime that's responsible for the loss of more than $3 billion worth of retail merchandise and damages every year. If you're caught shoplifting, stores will press charges. If you're convicted, it could mean a seven-year prison term, a $2,000 fine or both. Plus the end of a lot of dreams; an applicant with a police record is barred from most schools and many professions. One mistake can haunt you for the rest of your life. Isn't that a big price to pay for stealing from a store on a dare or vandalizing? Grow up . . . and grow responsible! Remember, shoplifting and vandalism hurts everyone. All of us pay a higher markup to cover loss and security costs.

Sailing begins Monday

The 34th annual unior sailing season on the Charles River opens at Community Boating on June 24.

All Greater Boston youngsters between the ages of 10 and 18 are eligible for membership, although 10-year olds must be accompanied by older brothers or sisters who are already members.

Juniors with parental consent and proof of swimming ability are invited to join Community Boating. Last year, more than 1,000 Greater Boston youngsters sailed with Community Boating.

Community Boatinguhas sponsored a four month junior program since 1940, and thousands of youngsters have learned to sail through instruction by a six-member junior staff. There is free sailing and instruction, with a $1.00 registration fee.

Daily hours for juniors are from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. weekdays, and from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Saturdays. Sunday sailing at Community Boating is restricted to seniors.

Community Boating is located near the Hatch Memorial Shell on the Esplanade. For information, people may call 523-1038.

Collegiate awards

Chuck Pendergast of 232 Linwood Avenue, Newtonville, was the recipient of many awards at the annual sports banquet held at Massachusetts Bay Community College, in Wellesley on May 28.

He received an award for baseball and basketball and also had the honor of receiving the President's Trophy which is given to the College's outstanding student athlete of the year who has good academic standing, athletic ability, loyalty to the team, and has contributed to the image of the athletic program and the College.

Pendergast will attend Framingham State College in the fall.

Paul Murphy, a native of Newton, received the Wrestling Most Valuable Player Award from Boston State College Wrestling Coach Gordon Webb recently.

Murphy, a three-sport standout at Boston State, was 11-0 in wrestling, was the lacrosse team's leading scorer with 54 points, and played soccer.

Paul's brother, Art, the Mendelson Award winner at Newton South this past year, will join him at Boston State next fall.

Clark Wiley Patteson, a sophomore at Trinity College, Hartford, Conn., and a member of the Trinity crew, was awarded the freshman numeral for the 1974 season.

A son of Mrs. Alvin H. Hartman of 96 Lenox St., Newton, Patteson is a 1973 graduate of the Browne & Nichols School, Cambridge.

Patteson rowed in the freshman boat which had a season record of 7-2.

Newton boys between sixth grade and 11th grade may sign up for the Newton Youth Soccer League next week at the Hut at Newton Centre Playground.

Signing up will take place on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday from 5-6:30 p.m.

Flower Bouquet wins Lassie League softball title

The Newton Recreation Department's age 12 to 15 Lassie League climaxed its softball season at Albemarle Playground last week.

The Flower Bouquet, coached by Dianne Reddy, edged out the Corpus Christie Cubs, 11-7, to capture the league title.

Sportsmanship honors went to the Corpus Christie Tigers, coached by Barbara Burns and Agnes Geegan.

Awards were presented after the final game at a "Sports Happening" given by league umpires Jean Cole, Judy Dore, and Joan Fox at the Corpus Christi Parish Hall.

Members of the league's eight teams filled the hall to feast on pizza and soft drinks, to draw for door prizes, and to await the announcement of the sportsmanship trophy winners.

The Corpus Christi Tigers earned their sportsmanship trophies based on a point rating of teams by umpires after each game combined with a rating of all teams by coaches at the end of the season.

Scoring for sportsmanship is based on fairness and courtesy of players.

The Flower Bouquet finished in the cellar last season, but made a determined comeback under new coaching this season and piled up an 8-1 record.

SEASONED VETERAN

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI) — George (Barney) Poole, member of College Football's Hall of Fame, played seven seasons of varsity football under eligibility rules voted during World War II. Poole played at Mississippi in 1942, 1947-1948; for North Carolina Pre-Flight in 1943, and Army 1944-46.

ELUSIVE AWARD

NEW YORK (UPI) — Bill Bradley of Princeton (1965) and Bill Walton of UCLA (1973) are the only winners of the Sullivan award who were named because of their basketball talents. There have been 44 winners of the award voted annually to the nation's outstanding amateur athlete.

It's match, not mix, your colors for fall clothing; look for combinations of burgundy, claret and grape; rust, cinnamon, burnt orange and terra cotta; or loden, olive, forest and moss greensn to name a few.

Head-hugging berets and knitted caps are edging out the floppy big hats for fall and winter wear. 1

Back to your cage Marvin Barnes

May the fleas from a thousand diseased yaks infiltrate the underwear of marvelous Marvin Barnes. Can you imagine him saying that "I'd rather work in a factory than play in the N.B.A. for less than a million..."?

Here is a youngster, recently shown leniency as well as infinite mercy by a compassionate judge, who handed him a suspended sentence rather than jail, after Barnes pleaded guilty to a felony, and the first thing he demands as an untried rookie is 5 times the amount of money it takes a factory worker a lifetime to sweat over. Back to your cage Marvin until you learn the meaning of the word respect.

Undoubtedly, when the Bruins raise their ticket prices this year, they will justify their position by ordering their media shills to respond thusly:

First, "We still do not have the top ticket prices in the National Hockey league".

Secondly, "With the salaries of players being driven upwards, our costs are spiraling."

To begin with, although the Rangers, Blackhawks and Maple Leafs have a few higher priced seats, what about the total gross revenue of each individual game? This would include radio receipts, Bruins owned food and souvenir concessions, and television rights. What about net profits before taxes? Will the Bruins publicly state that there is one single solitary team in hockey which makes a larger profit? As far as players salaries are concerned, sure they are going up, but keep in mind for every dollar tickets go up the annualized increment of income to the Bruins is $585,000, and believe me, that allows room for a $30,000 raise for each player, which on the average just does not materialize. Unfortunately, nobody has heeded my warning of a "bottom line" profit oriented publicly held company, owning a Boston sports team while simultaneously holding a monopoly position on our one major indoor winter facility. P.T. Barnum was right, for there is a sucker born every minute. Who else would pay outrageous ticket prices to see a game in that filthy disgusting pig pen, Boston Garden, which only smells decently when the circus is in town.

Is there any truth to the rumor that the World Football League has offered the Patriots defensive unit a 2 million dollar bonus to stay in the National Football League?

"Candlepins for Cash" is the best argument I've heard yet for birth control.

Do you really think that Pete Rozelle or the N.F.L. owners are mad at those football players they had to fine for using drugs? After all, most of them made anti 'drug commercials for the networks without charging a fee.

Wouldn't it be great if Jack Nicklaus, Chris Schenkel and all the so called sports attorneys would saddle up and disappear into the sunset, never to be heard from again?

Tell the truth now, would you want your sister to marry a third base coach who still chews tobacco?

Is there any chance Mark Mulvoy of Sports Illustrated will ever get homesick for Boston and return to write a daily hockey column? If not, I simply must find a way to stay awake when Perusing Tom Fitz's or D. Leo's etchings about that indoor game played on a frozen surface during the winter.

Here are a few deep questions for you to ponder while waiting for Tom Yawkey to arrive at the Copley Plaza for his annual disruption of the Red Sox.

— Do Zambonis use regular or high test gasoline?

— Does Lassie have inside information on Raynham Dog Racing?

— Can vegetarians feel safe eating a Fenway Park hamburger?

Pretty soon, all televised sporting events will have post pre-game shows and pre-post game shows, for in numerous instances, these nifty little packages generate more profits than the games themselves because of the high play-by-play "rights" fees involved.

Has anybody ever considered manufacturing artificial worms which could be sold to various stadiums across the country which employ artificial turf? It certainly would bring a touch of realism back to the game.

The first thing I do when travelling to another city is to find out when their telephone talk sports shows are on, then call and discuss their opinions of the Boston sports teams. It's really interesting to hear an outsider talk about our teams and really refreshing. In general, the Red Sox do have a country club image, the Celtics are beloved, the Patriots are a joke and more people are fascinated with Derek Sanderson than the many superior hockey players on the Bruins. If you ever get to Miami, WINZ has a nightly sports program from 7 to 8:30 which is excellent, particularly if you happen to be a pro-football addict.

Peter Gammons, Bob Ryan, Leigh Montville, Harvey Robins and Ron Hobson make me look bad when I spout off how bad the sportswriting is in this town, while except for Horgan and Claflin in the Herald American, I could rest my case.

If Upton Bell ever decides to join the World Football League by either becoming the Commissioner or taking over a key franchise, the N.F.L. will be sorry they have kept him out for so long. He is brash, clever, energetic, exciting, imaginative and capable. No wonder the Patriots dumped him.

I'll be happy anytime to peddle along on a bicycle built for two with Jim Plunkett, Julius Adams, Jo Jo White, Bill Lee or Ken Hodge, but I'd rather crawl on my knees if it meant being with Harry Sinden, Howard Cosell, Bruno Sanmartino or Dick O'Connell.

Now if you'll pardon me, I must get back to my latest Bruins album about the 73-74 season, "Road to Stanley Cup Elimination".

Marriott Corp. to manage Cairo hotel

Marriott Corporation has been selected to manage and operate a 700 room hotel in Cairo, Egypt, to be constructed and owned by a subsidiary of the Egyptian General Organization for Tourism and Hotels.

The hoter will be located on the 12.5 acre site of the present Omar Khayam Hotel and Palace. It is in the center of Cairo on Ghezira Island in the Nile River and offers an unobstructed view of the city and the Nile. Ground breaking for the hotel will be this summer, and the opening is expected early in 1977, according to J.W. Marriott, Jr., president of Marriott Corporation.

Marriott has six other foreign hotel projects in design or construction stages. They are in Amsterdam, Holland; Cancun, Mexico; Toronto, Canada; Athens Greece; Acapulco Ritz, Mexico; and Corful, Greece. Amsterdam will open next spring.

The hotel will feature an indoor-outdoor swimming pool, tennis courts, roof top cocktail lounge, night club and other specialty restaurants and lounges, including outdoor dining facilities.

Marriott and Egyptian architects have started joint development of plans. In addition to management and operations, Marriott will provide technical assistance for the development and construction of the hotel.

The Omar Khayam palace was built in 1869 to accommodate Empress Eugeni of France, consort of Louis Napoleon Bonaparte, on the occasion of the inauguration of the Suez Canal. Marriott said the hotel development will incorporate the palace and heavily landscaped grounds to create "a true oasis reflecting Egyptian decor and heritage.

A native of Oberlin, Ohio, he is a graduate of Oberlin College and Yale Law School and a member of the Massachusetts and Ohio bars.

Hassan reelected

The 38th annual meeting of the Massachusetts Hospital Association was held last week.

William E. Hassan Jr. of Newton, of Peter Bent Brigham Hospital in Boston, was re-elected secretary of the Association for one additional year.

Stephen D. Weiner of Newton, chairman of the Massachusetts Rate Setting Commission, discussed changes on July 1, when a re-organized Commission will begin to function with Weiner as chairman.

Maher named president of social service agency

Frank B. Maher, 68, former president and chief operations officer of the John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Co., has been named president of the Boston-based Family Counseling and Guidance Centers, Inc., effective immediately.

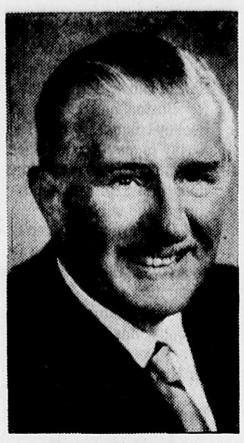
A native of New York Ciyt and a West Newton resident, Maher was recently named chairman of the board of directors of Hancock, a company with which he has served since 1923.

His new presidency places Maher in charge of a 16-year-old, non-profit, social service agency established in 1958 to provide professional help for a wide range of personal and family problems.

Family Counseling and Guidance Centers, Inc. (FCGC) has its headquarters in the Catholic Center, 49 Franklin St., Boston, with branches located in Braintree (40 Independence Ave.), Framingham (350 Worcester Rd.), Danvers (2 Orchard Lane,) andPembroke (243 Church St.).

In 1973, FCGC provided direct service to approximately 5,000 families, with close to 13,000 children, for a total of nearly 40,000 therapeutic hours. The agency's directors include leading business, social service, and professional persons dedicated to enabling families and individuals to achieve happier and more productive lives.

Elected with Mr. Maher were William E. Tillburg of Jordan Marsh, as vice president; Howard K. Holladay, an insurance executive, as vice president; Thomas G. Dignan, Jr., an attorney, as treasurer; J. Linzee Coolidge, insurance executive, as assistant treasurer; Rev. Msgr. Joseph T. Alves, execitive director,



Frank B. Maher

FCGC, as assistant treasurer; and David H. Morse, an attorney, as secretary.

Humberto Cardinal Medeiros, Archbishop of Boston, was among those renominated for another three - year term on the agency's board of directors. Alos renominated were Thmoas J. Brown, Polaroid; Daniel I. Cronin, St. Vincent de Paul Society; Joseph P. Crosby of Wellesley, Thomas J. Galligan, Jr., Boston Edison; Joseph Gannon, investment management; and A. H. Maher and his wife are the parents of three daughters and two sons, as well as grandparents of 13 children.

Charles Brown to lead June 20 discussion

"Regional Perspectives for Public Education" will be the topic of a discussion led by Charles E. Brown of the Education Development Center, Thursday, June 20, 4:30 - 6:00 p.m., at the Norumbega Association, Inc., 61 Chestnut Street, West Newton, Mass. The discussion will be open to the public.

Out of concern for regional perspectives in most matters involving public functions, Norumbega Association will sponsor this public meeting, considering both local and metropolitan viewpoints on public education, from elementary through college level, and on to continuing education.

How much coordination is there among the parts? Is there realization of a responsibility for a share of the needs of the total population of the region.? Can some towns with underutilized capabilities help, and be helped by others with inadequate classrooms, staff or programs?

Brown will discuss these questions and others from his background as former program director for the Ford Foundation, and superintendent of schools for Newton. He presently directs the leadership and learing cooperative of the Education Development Center in Newton.

Vice chairmen included: Walter F. Greeley, vice president and general counsel, Cabot Corp.;;;; Dr. Paul F. Gryska, chief of surgery, Newton-Wellesley Hospital; Robert G. Hennemuth, vice president, industrial relations, Raytheon Co.; Roderick MacDoughall, president, New England Merchants National Bank; Edward C. Michaud, Jr., D.D.S.

Also, Thomas D. Neal, group manager, E.ASTERN Massachusetts, Sears Roebuck & Co.; Albert Perry, treasurer, Perry Pontiac-Cadillac; Howard J. Peterson, partner in charge, Touche Ross & Co.; Paul D. Slater, president, Albert M. Slater & Son.

Those meeting to honor Dr. Washburn and lend their support to the Norumbega Council of Scouting represented forty major businesses, industries and professional groups in the greater Goston area.

The Council has gained national recognition for its growth and program accomplishments in the past three years and has been the subject of feature stories in "Scouting" and "Exploring" magazines, as well as in greater Boston media.

John T. Neises of Wellesley, president of the Norumbega Scout Council and general partner in the Charles River Partnership of Cambridge, was to speak briefly on the place of Scouting in today's world and Beth Caruso of Wellesley, national first vice president of the 500,000 member Explorer Division of Scouting, was to describe the significant growth of that program locally and nationally.

New members elected to Pine Manor board

Five new members have been elected to the board of trustees at Pine Manor Junior College in Chestnut Hill,

They are: Truman S. Casner of Belmont; Helen Dane George of Wellesley Hills; Jacob F. Brown, II of Chestnut Hill; Elizabeth Irwin Kellogg of Elizabeth, New Jersey; and Slocumb Hollis Perry of Brookline.

The new members were announced at a recent meeting of the Board of Trustees by Frederick C. Ferry, Jr. who retires this June after 18 years as President of Pine Manor.

Casner, Brown, and Mrs. Kellogg were elected to five-year terms as regular trustees. Mrs. George and Mrs. Perry were elected to three-and two-year terms, respectively, as alumnae trustees.

A graduate of Milton Academy and Harvard University, Brown is vice president of the North American Management Corporation in Boston. He is the director of several companies, is trustee and treasurer of the New England Aquarium Corporation, and is on the standing committee of the First Church in Chestnut Hill.

Mrs. Brown (the former Barbara P. Crane) attended the MADEIRA School and received her B.A. from Wheaton College. Their three children attend the Shady Hill School.

Otto Lerbinger named to board

Otto Lerbinger of 28 Lakewood Road, Newton Highlands, has been named to the board of directors of the New England Chapter, Public Relations Society of America.

He is a professor and chairman of the division of public relations, Boston University School of Public Communication.

Lerbinger is past-president of the New England Chapter of PRSA and is one of two delegates to the national association. He received a Ph.D. in industrial economics and social science from Massachusetts Institute of Technology in 1954.

A trustee of Family Service Association of Greater Boston, Lerbinger is a member of Association of Educators in Journalism, American Economics Association, American Sociological Association, and American Association for Public Opinion Research.

He and his wife, Beth, have two children.

Obituaries

Dr. Douglas E. Wax

Dr. Douglas E. Wax, former resident of Waban, assistant professor of psychology at the University of Michigan Medical School, Ann Arbor, died of leukemia Thursday, June 13, at the age of 33 in University Hospital, Ann Arbor, Michigan.

He joined the Department of Psychiatry in 1972 as a clinical instructor and a staff member of Children's Psychiatric Hospital, and was promoted to assistant professor in 1973.

"Dr. Wax's career, though painfully brief, was brilliant," said Dr. Albert J. Silverman, chairman of the department. "He loved his work and even after becoming very ill, he conducted seminars and other meaningful teaching exercises.

"Recently he wrote with wonderful insight about doctors as patients, and I believe this work may well become a classic. We shall sorely miss him as an exciting colleague and as a warm and sensitive friend."

Dr. Wax graduated from the Brown & Nichols Prepartory School, did his undergraduate work at Colby College in Maine, and received his master's Degree from Boston University in 1964. After a year at Harvard, he earned his PhD in Psychology from Boston College in 1969. Following postgraduate training on a fellowship at the Reiss-Davis Child Study Center in Los Angeles, Dr. Wax came to the University of Michigan.

He is survived by his wife, Ann, their son, Jonathan, and his parents, Beatrice and Anthony Wax of Waban.

The family requested contributions be made to the Simpson Special Fund and sent to the Simpson Memorial Institute, University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, Michigan, 48104.

A memorial service was held at 11 a.m., Monday, June 17, at the University of Michigan Chapel, Children's Psychiatric Hospital, Ann Arbor.

Anna Wolfson

Services will be held at 1 p.m. today (June 20) in the Stanetsky-Schlossberg-Solomon Memorial Chapel, 1668 Beacon St., Brookline, for Mrs. Anna Wolfson.

Mrs. Wolfson, a resident of Malden and Melrose for many years, died Tuesday (June 18) in Malden Hospital.

Active throughout her life in many charities, Mrs. Wolfson was identified with Women's Mizrachi, Hadassah, Temple Tifereth Israel of Malden and the Jewish Home for Orphan Girls in Israel.

Mrs. Wolfson is survived by four sons, Richard of Malden, Raymond of Waban, Crafton of Newton and Bertram of Melrose; a daughter, Mrs. Rita Rotman of Malden; 13 grandchildren, and four great-grandchildren.

Memorial week is being held at her late residence, 225 Upham St., Melrose, through Sunday (June 23) evening.

Florence Durocher

Mrs. Florence A. (MacLean) Durocher, a former Waban resident, died Sunday (June 16) in South Yarmouth at the age of 95.

A funeral mass was said Wednesday (June 19) in St. Philip Neri Church.

Wife of the late Joseph P. Durocher, she had lived in Waban for many years before moving to South Yarmouth with her daughter.

She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Florence Grimm of South Yarmouth and Mrs. Mildred Finnerty of Waban; two sons, Joseph of Waban and Lawrence of Belmont; five grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren.

Louis Antonellis

Funeral services were to be held at 9 a.m. this morning (June 20) in Our Lady's Church for Louis R. Antonellis.

Mrs. Antonellis, 63, of 11 Jenison St., Newtonville, died Monday (June 17) in Newton-Wellesley Hospital.

A native of Newton, he was a retired lieutenant of the Newton Fire Department.

Husband of the late Loretta Antonellis, Mr. Antonellis is survived by his daughter, Mrs. Judith Mobilia of Waltham; three sons, Richard L., Robert K. and James L., all of Newtonville; five sisters, Mrs. Ann Powers of Watertown, Mrs. Margaret Trudell, Miss Mary Antonellis and Mrs. Eleanor Shorten, all of Newton, and Mrs. Ruth Lanzarotto of Somerville; a brother, Domenis of Watertown, and six grandchildren.

Burial is in St. Joseph's Cemetery, Falmouth.

Bernard F. Ellis

Funeral services were held Tuesday (June 18) with a mass in Our Lady's Church for Bernard F. Ellis.

Mr. Ellis of 12 Chesley Ave., Newtonville, died Friday (June 14).

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Rita Ellis; three daughters, Theresa, Barbara, Catherine; and a son, Bernard E., all at home; two brothers, James of Newton and Timothy of Westfield, N.J.; three sisters, Mrs. Mary Bardsley, Mrs. Reta Goulding and Anna Ellis, all of Newton.

John W. Stevenson

A funeral mass was to be said at 9 a.m. this morning (June 20) in Mary Immaculate of Lourdes Church for John W. Stevenson.

Mr. Stevenson of 17 Saco St., Newton Upper Falls, died Monday (June 17).

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Rose A. Stevenson; and two brothers, James J. of Erie, Pa., and Thomas F. of Wellesley.

Burial is in St. Mary's Cemetery, Needham.

Elizabeth J. Babbin

A funeral mass was said Wednesday (June 12) in St. Jean's Church for Mrs. Elizabeth J. (Burbank) Babbin.

Mrs. Babbin, 66, of 124 Vernon St., Newton, died Saturday (June 8) in Newton-Wellesley Hospital.

Mrs. Babbin worked in the Bigelow Junior High School Cafeteria, beginning in 1953. In 1966, she was made manager.

She is survived by her husband, Charles A. Babbin; a daughter, Mrs. Mary E. Wessell of Tweksbury; three sisters, Mrs. Emma Conti of Watertown, Mrs. Lillian McGee of Brighton and Mrs. Eva Graham of Concord, N.H.; four grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Burial is in Newton Cemetery.

Jack W. Burman

Jack W. Burman, 67, of 11 Wessex road, Newton Centre, died Sunday (June 9) in Newton after a long illness. Born in Toronto, Canada, Mr. Burman was a resident of Newton for 30 years.

"Cactus Jack" as he was affectionately known, because his trademark was a five gallon Stetson which he always wore, Mr. Burman was a sales representative for over 38 years for Green and Green, national dealers in extract flavoring products. He was a long time member of United Lodge AF & AM of Boston and of Temple Emaneul of Newton. He was also a founder of the Langley Breakfast Club of Newton.

Mr. Burman is survived by his wife, Nellie Rae Burman, by three daughters, Judith Ring of Needham, Vicki Newman of Commack, New York and Barbara McIntosh of Marshfield; by two brothers, William and David and by a sister, Ronnie Wayne, all of Canada and by 6 grandchildren.

Services were held Tuesday (June 11). Rabbi Samuel Chiel an Cantor Gabriel Hochberg of Temple Emanuel of Newton officiated. Interment is in Temple Emanuel Cemetery, Randolph.

Piano recital

Maria Pia Antonelli, a Newton piano teacher, will present a recital of her private piano students at the International Institute, 287 Commonwealth Ave., Boston, on Saturday, June 22 at 8 p.m.

Included will be Bettina, Carla, and Anthony Chiaravelotti, children of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Chiaravelotti of Newton.

The recital will be open to the public.

Four residents cited for volunteer efforts

Four Newton residents were cited by the Greater Boston Red Cross, a United Way partner, for outstanding service to the community through their active volunteer efforts in the Chapter's health and safety programs, during special award ceremonies held recently at the Greater Boston Red Cross Service Center, 99 Brookline Avenue, Boston.

Mary Buntin of 102 Ripley St., was cited for her contribution of over 500 volunteer hours within five consecutive years of serving the Chapter and its programs.

A certified Red Cross water safety, first air, and small craft instructor, Miss Buntin has been active in teaching swimming and lifesaving courses to local individuals and community groups, as well as serving on the staff of the Red Cross Small Craft Clinic in Sharon, Mass. Miss Buntin was presented with a 5-year certificate and a 5-year 500-hour service medal award by Greater Boston Chapter Chairman R. Forbes Perkins.

300-hour certificates were presented to Red Cross water safety instructor Ms. Gail Norris of 47 Cotton St., and first aid instructor Kerkor Kassabian of 22 Kensington Avenue, who have both been teaching swimming, lifesaving and first aid classes throughout the community.

Kassabian is also volunteer first aid chairman for the Greater Boston Red Cross, and served as master of ceremonies at the awards presentation.

A special award was presented to Mrs. Marcia Tennant of 33 Brewster Rd., for her outstanding efforts in organizing and implementing the Chapter's first health and safety awards ceremony.

In addition to her volunteer efforts in safety programs, Mrs. Tennant is a trained volunteer Red Cross disaster caseworker, and serves as assistant to the volunteer disaster co-ordinator of the New England Division, American National Red Cross.

Students' art at Waban Library

"Art Works" created by students at the Beethoven Elementary School in Newton are on view at the Waban Branch of the Newton Free Library through June 24.

Nancy Campbell, with the assistance of Demi Theopholous, teaches after-school art classes sponsored by the PTA and arranged by Barbara Tretstad and Eleanor Lewis.

Children use paints, pastels and clay to express their creativity and to develop their technical know-how during the sessions. They also become acquainted with famous artists and their works.

Clay works, done after a study of African masters, are exhibited along with the students' pictures.

elementary school students exhibiting their works include: Debbie Slotnik, Erika Goldberg, Julie Chasin, Anne Piessen, Miriam Kaufman, Martha Robbins, David Echberg, Julie Hillel, Neeraj Malkotra, Adam Murphy, Joanne Saravies, Jonathan Davis, Seth Steeves, Elizabeth Adelstein, Liddy Leitman, Nicole Cuthbert, Sarah Murphy, Ellen Titlebaum, Sally Eichberg, Tracy Hayes, Derek Trelstad, Colin Selig, Peter Becker, Gerald Garan, Diana Selig, and Elizabeth Lazo.

Waban Branch Library hours are Monday - Friday 1 p.m. to 6 p.m., with additional hours Tuesday from 7 - 9 p.m. and Thursday from 9 a.m. to noon.

Mrs. Wellington to head alumnae group

Ruth Jeffers Wellington, '45, of Pike, New Hampshire, has been elected president of the Smith College Alunae Association.

In this position, she will preside over all meetings of the Board of Directors and the Executive Committee and carry through the policies of the association. She is a member of the Board of Trustees of the college during her term of office.

Mrs. Wellington served on the Newton (Mass.) Smith Club Board from 1949-62 in various elective positions: as a member of the Board of Directors of the Alumnae Association; and she has been a member of the Development Council since 1972. She is currently on a committee planning a Five College Summer Alumni College in July.

Mrs. Wellington, a 1941 graduate of the Northampton School for Girls, is a trustee of the Williston-Northampton School from where she received the Whitaker-Bement Award this past May.

Hyde Park Rotary Club Charter Night June 26

The newly organized Rotary Club of Hyde Park will hold its Charter Night, Wednesday evening, June 26 at Amaru's, Bridge street, Dedham.

The new club admitted to membership in Rotary International on April 30, 1974 is now a member of the world-wide Rotary service organization.

M. Michael Cantor, Governor of District 793 will attend charter presentation ceremonies. A delegation of Rotarians & Rotary Anns from each of the 41 clubs in the District, of which Hyde Park Rotary is now a part, will be on hand for the affair.

Governor Cantor will present the charter to Joseph S. Burke, president of the Rotary Club, and welcome Hyde Park Rotarians into Rotary's global fellowship of more than 744,500 business and professional men who belong to 15,868 Rotary Clubs in 150 countries.

Upon becoming a member of Rotary International, the Rotary Club of Hyde Park adopted the same objectives of other clubs around the world.

Officers of the new Rotary Club, in addition to Joseph s. burke, president, are Carlos Di[illegible]sio, vice president; Phillip . Whittemore, Jr. treasurer; and James L. O'Neil, secretary.

Backyard Frontier

By POLLY BRADLEY

Summer time, and the living is easy. . . we hope, as we cheerfully set off for vacation, only to discover our destination is no longer the peaceful retreat it was a few years ago.

Sometimes we take for granted that the vacation sp[illegible] must gradually fill [illegible]th hamburger joints an[illegible]ourist traps, but that isn't [illegible]evitable.

People do i[illegible] people can change it.

Hw? T[illegible]t's one of the things land[illegible] planning is all about.

We simply are going to have to make better use of our limited land resources. Our ever-growing population and mushrooming expansion of buildings and facilities are squeezing the limits of our geography," said John A. S. McGlennon, New England Regional Administrator of the United States Environmental Protection Agency, at a recent conference on the visual environment sponsored by the Massachusetts Roadside Council and the Massachusetts Conservation Council held at the Museum of Science in Boston.

"One thing we must do is to become more oriented towards a planned high density area, rather than allow the haphazard urban sprawl we find in many areas today," McGlennon said. He also emphasized the need for land use policy to preserve visual and recreational va[illegible] and to provide recreati[illegible]l opportunities for all citi[illegible]s. This is particularly crucial in New England, where tour[illegible]m is a billion dollar business.

"In the relentless pursuit of individual desire we have ruvned many of natur[illegible] treasurers. We have ove[illegible] developed our coasts and lak[illegible] fronts. We have destroyed most of our wildlife habitat. We have scarred our wilderness areas."

McGlennon said, "This country cannot continue indefinitely on its current patterns of ncontrolled economic development, unrestarained exploitation of natural resources, and undirected patterns of growth. We are heading on a course that undermines the quality of life for the vast majority of human beings who will live in this country for decades ahead.

"Sooner or later patterns must change. The difference is that if they change later rather than now, the cost, the hardship, nd anguish will be far more severe and many of the environmental elements will be irretrievably lost."

as we go on vacation this year, it is a good time to look around and see what unrestricted development has done to many of our most beautiful scenic areas. It is also a good time to notice how and why some areas have remained beautiful. We don't have to sit passively while these beauty spots are destroyed, too. We can develop comprehensive land use planning programs which will reverse the trend.

ANOTHER GAME

KINGSTON, R.I. (UPI) — A sixth home game, against the University of Bridgeport, has been added to the University of Rhode Island football schedule for next fall. The Purple Knights will play URI here Nov. 9, filling a previously open date on the Rams' 10-game schedule.

Registration for National Teachers exam

Less than two weeks remain for prospective teachers who plan to take the National Teachers Examinations at Boston State College on July 20, 1974 to submit their registrations for these tests to Educational Testing Service, Princeton, New Jersey Dr. Edward FitzPatrick, Testing Administrator announced today. Registration for the examinations must be forwarded so as to reach the Princeton office not later than June 27.

Bulletins of Information describing registration procedures and containing Registration Forms may be obtained from Room 110A at Boston State College or directly from the National Teacher Examinations, Educational Testing Service, Box 911, Princeton, New Jersey 08540.

At the one-day test session a candidate may take the Common Examinations, which include tests in Professional Education and General Education, and one of the tweny-four Area Examinations which are designed to evaluate his understanding of the subject matter and methods applicable to the area he may be assigned to teach.

Each candidate will receive an Admission Ticket advising him of the exact location of the center to which he should report. Candidates for the C[illegible]on Examinations will report at 8:30 a.m. on July 20, and should finish at approximately 12:30 p.m. Candidates for the Area Examinations will report at 1:30 p.m. and should finish at approximately 4:15 p.m. according to time schedule for these examinations which has been set by Educational Testing Service.

RECORD CROW[illegible]

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — A record crowd of [illegible]3 was logged last Saturday when the Rhode Island Oceaneers [illegible]t out defending champion New York Apollos of the American Soccer League 3-0. The O's are preparing for road games with the Indiana Tigers and Delaware Wings.

Consumer Advocate

Editor's Note — The Federal Consumer Advocate is published monthly by the Boston Federal Executive Board. Direct all inquiries to the Board at John F. Kennedy Federal Building, Room 2200, Boston, Mass. 02203.

Q. I am a high school dropout and have been reading over the literature of several vocational training schools. How can I be sure I will get a job if I attend one of these schools?

A. You cannot be sure. Some schools are high on promises, low on job referrals. The Federal Trade Commission suggests all prospective vocational school students to check the State Employment Office, prospective employers and qualified guidance counselors to find out 1) who hires graduates of the school 2) whether the schools training helps in getting a job 3) what are the starting salaries of its graduates.

Q. I own my own home and a car. Will these items bar me from supplemental security income from the Federal Government?

A. Not so. The Social Security Administration says you may own your own home, household furnishings, personal effects and a car and as lo g as they are of reasonable value they will not be counted as a resource to bar you from benefits. They suggest you file at your nearest Social Security Office if you are 65 or older, blind or disabled.

Q. I am disabled and will not be able to work again. Someone told me I would have to be destitute to qualify for Social Security's supplemental security income.

A. That's not a fact: A person who is single (or married but not living with his spouse) can have assets - things he owns - worth up to $1,500 and still get Federal payments. The amount for a couple is $2,250. Not everything owned counts as an asset. Social Security suggests you file at their nearest office to find out for sure.

Q. I live in a part of Boston that has suffered a high incidence of vandalism. It has been necessary for me to collect insurance for losses suffered to my property. Will the Government refuse to sell me Federal crime insurance because I have had losses or will it refuse to renew my policy if I have too many losses?

A. Federal crime insurance is intended for those who need crime insurance. Those who have had losses obviously have the greatest need for this important protection. The Federal Insurance Administratin has guaranteed to renw all crime insurance policies.

Q. A few weeks ago I purchased some underdeveloped land. Because of articles I have read in newspapers and periodicals, I was aware of the Federal Property Report and asked the salesman to see one. He advised me it was illegal to give me the Property Report before I signed a contract. This seems in conflict with what I have read. Is it?

A. Absolutely. As a matter of fact, the law requires that you be given a Property Report before or at the time of signing the contract. If you did not receive a Property Report before signing the contract, you may void the contract at any time.

Q. My lifelong ambition has been to buy and live in a real lighthouse. How do I go about finding one?

A. Lighthouses themselvs rarely come on the market for disposal. The Coast Guard is automating them as funds are available and occasionally releasing some of the adjoining land area with improvements such as the lightkeeper's house and outlying buildings. Under the disposal laws the public bodies such as the State, county and community have first refusal on these offerings so the man-in-the-street is able to buy one via the sealed bid procedure only infrequently.

Q. I have a 16 ft. sailboat for which I have bought a small outboard motor (a kicker) to get me home when I get becalmed. My neighbor claims I must number my boat. Is he right?

A. He certainly is. According to the Boating Safety Division of the First Coast Guard District you'll have to register and number that sailboat. The law says all sailboats equipped with auxiliary or outboard motors used only in emergencies or docking must be numbered.

Q. I am a disabled veteran and plan to travel throughout Europe this summer. I won't have a mailing address. What do you suggest I do about my monthly compensation check from the VA?

A. Make arrangements with your bank (usually by simply giving them power of attorney) to deposit your checks to your account. Then tell the VA office that has your records to have your monthly check mailed to your bank.

Laws relating to motor vehicles

David J. Lucey, registrar of Motor Vehicle, calls to the attention of motorists the following laws:

Now in effect -

Chapter 24 prohibits the wearing of headphones while operating a motor vehicle.

Effective July 8, 1974. -

Chapter 96 provides that the Registrar of Motor Vehicles may suspend or revoe a certificate of registration of a motor vehicle if a certificate of title thereto has been suspended or revolked.

Effective July q5, 1974 -

Effective July 15, 1974 -

Chapter 118 provides that each school bus shall be equipped with front and rear red signal lamps which shall flash alternately and which shall be left flashing when children are entering or leaving such bus. No person who operates such a bus shall permit the boarding or discharging of passengers therefrom unless the school bus is stopped as close as is practicable to the right-hand curb or edge of the way. Any person who operates a shcool bus shall announce, when discharging passengers thereform, that all persons who wish to corss to the other side of the way shall do so by passing in front of the bus immediately upon alighting thereform. No person shall operate a school bus on a way after discharging passengers thereform unless all persons who wish to cross to the toehr side of the way have done so.

Effective August 7, 1974 -

Chapter 206 increases the penalty for falsely impersonating a person named in a license or learner permit to perate motor vehicles as follows:

Whoever falsely impersonates the person named in an application for a license or learner's permit to operate motor vehicles, or procures or assists another to falsely impersonate the person named in such an application whether of himself or another, or whoever has in his possession, or utters, publishes as true, or in any way makes use of a license or learner's permit to operate motor vehicles that was obtained in such a manner shall be punished by a fine of not more than five hundred dollars or by imprisonment in the state prison for not more than five years or in jail or house of correction for not more than two years.

sargassumfish Histrio histrio

The sargassumfish imitates the colors and ragged shapes of the sargassum weed in which it lives. It crawls about in the weed on hand-like pectoral fins. An angler type, it lures its prey by means of an artificial "bait" on the top of its head.

To the Estate of Adeleta C. Beach late of Newton in the County of Middlesex and to all other persons interested.

A petition has been presented to said Court by Anita G. Finnegan of Miami in the State of Florida representing that she hold as tenant in common one undivided half part or share of certain land lying in Newton in said County and briefly described as follows:

1st Parcel: the land with the buildings situated in that part of said Newton called Newton Highlands, and being a portion of Lot 101 on plan entitled "Plan of House Lots in Newton Highlands, Newton, Mass., property of W. S. Griswold, C. E. Bellamy, Surveyor" and being recorded with Middlesex South District Deeds in Plan Book 328, Plan 38, bounded and described as follows:

NORTHERLY: by land of owners unknown, Two Hundred Two (202) feet;

EASTERLY: by land now or late of Doucette, Fifty (50) feet;

SOUTHERLY: by the remaining portion of lot 101 being land now or late of Walter Liberty, Two Hundred (200) feet; and

WESTERLY by Winchester Street, Fifty (50) feet.

2nd Parcel: that certain parcel of land situate in Newton in the County of Middlesex and said Commonwealth bounded and described as follows:

SOUTHWESTERLY: by Winchester Street, ten feet;

NORTHWESTERLY: by lot 191B as shown on plan hereinafter mentioned, two hundred thirty-two and 35-100 feet;

NORTHEASTERLY: by lot 184 on said plan, ten feet; and

SOUTHEASTERLY: by said lot 184 and by land now or formerly of F. A. Reichert, two hundred thirty-one and 95-100 feet.

Said parcel is shown as lot 191A on said plan.

All of said boundaries are determined by the Court to be located as shown on a subdivision plan, as approved by the Court, filed in the Land Registration Office, a copy of which is filed in the Registry of Deeds for the South Registry District of Middlesex County in Registration Book 522, Page 51, with Certificate 78401.

There is appurtenant to the above described land the right to use in common with others entitled thereto all abutting private ways shown on plan filed in Registration Book 220, Page 169, namely Upland Avenue, Andrew Street, Columbia Avenue and Old Winchester Street.

The above described land is subject to an Order by the City of Newton that common sewer be laid and maintained through Winchester Street and Estimated Assessments, Documents 203448, and to a taking for relocating &c. Winchester Street, Document 206224 setting forth that she desires that all of said land may be sold at private sale for not less than twenty-four thousand dollars, and praying that partition may be made of all the land aforesaid according to law, and to that end that a commissioner be appointed to make such partition and be ordered to make sale and conveyance of all, or any part of said land which the Court finds cannot be advantageously divided either at private sale or public auction, and be ordered to distribute the net proceeds thereof.

If you desire to object thereto you or your attorney should file a written appearance in said Court at Cambridge before ten o'clock in the forenoon on the tenth day of July 1974, the return day of this citation.

Alyn and Lee Pinkofsky

Players elect co-presidents

Election of Mr. and Mrs. Alyn Pinkofsky as co-presidents for the 1974-75 season will mark the first time in the Newton Country Players' 19 years as a community theatre that it will have a husband-wife team at the helm.

Installation ceremonies will take place Wednesday, June 26, at 8 p.m., at the Rebecca Pomroy Playhouse, 84 Eldredge St., Newton Corner, and will be followed by entertainment and a collation. Guests and friends are invited to attend. The Pinkofskys served as co-vice-presidents during the past year.

Also to be installed are Margaret Annis, Marilyn Krassin, Linda Pandolfe and Marcia Massimo, vice presidents; Jim Sloane, treasurer and financial secretary; John Deming, recording secretary; Froma Bailey, corresponding secretary; Victoria Floyd, junior representative; Lillian Breen, Daniel Kosow, Linda Lourie, Anne Neumann, Patricia Pellows, Tracey Pellows, Gene and Soni Tick, and Jane Yoffe, members-at-large; and Sheila Deming, advisor.

An ardent worker both on stage and behind the scenes, Lee Pinkofsky appeared in a number of stage productions as an undergraduate student at Emerson College's Little Theatre before her initial outing with the Players as Pearl, a Bowery girl, in the new 19th century musical melodrama, "Gold in the Hills."

In subsequent productions, she participated as a member of the vocal chorus in "Sam Stiller, Private Eye," during its spring tour and as a New England Theatre Conference Drama Festival entry, in scenes from "The Women" and as a member of the chorus in "The Pajama Game."

Backstage, she served on props for the NETC Festival entry of "Sam Stiller, Private Eye," set construction for "Anything Goes," set decor and business manager for "And Miss Reardon Drinks a Little," during its regular run and as a NETC Festival entry as well, make-up chief and set decor for "Gabriel Chost," co-producer for "The Pajama Game," co-chairman of house and refreshments for "Black Comedy" and stage manager of "Odd Couple."

The Newton Country Players are a non-profit, philanthropic association comprised of local residents who, as an avocation, are actively engaged in the development, expansion and assistance of theatre activity

For information concerning Players' membership, phone Jim Sloane at 969-2665 or write P.O. Box 9, Newton Centre, 02159.

Diana Ross to be featured at finale of Jazz Festival

Diana Ross, star of the motion picture, "Lady Sings the Blues," the life story of Billie Holiday, will be featured at the grand finale of the 1974 Newport Jazz Festival-New York.

The midnight concert at Radio City Music Hall will take place Sunday, July 7. Producer George Wein of Newton will present Miss Ross with the Golden Gardenia Award for her contributions to jazz music.

Miss Ross was established in the field of soul music when she undertook the difficult task of playing the life role of Billie Holiday. She received an Academy Award nomination and opened the ears of her millions of fans to a form of music which under other circumstances, they might not have been aware of. Wein feels that this was one of the prime reasons for the greatly increased interest in jazz music among the young.

Diana Ross will perform songs from her movie along with an assemblage of jazz musicians at a jam session. The presence of so many great jazz drummers might turn a portion of the jam session into one of the most historic drum battles of all time with Buddy Rich, Max Roach, Art Blakey and Elvin Jones.

Other jazz greats at the session will include Charlie Byrd, Milt Buckner, Eddie "Lockjaw" Davis, Eddie Daniels, Joe Farrell, Jimmy Garrison, Urbie Green, Roland Hanna, Hank Jones, Howard McGhee, Charles Mingus, Joe Newman, Dewey Redman, Charlie Rouse, Clark Terry, and Michal Urbaniak.

Tickets are available at all Ticketron outlets and by mail order. For complete Festival information and mail orders, people write to: Newport Jazz Festival-New York, P. O. Box 1169, Ansonia Station, New York, N.Y. 10023.

Alice Aronow paintings and drawings at Library

Paintings and drawings by Alice Aronow of Newton Corner are now on view at the Newtonville Branch of the Newton Free Library, 345 Walnut Street, through June 30.

Mrs. Aronow's paintings reflect a thoughtful awareness of nature and people. She works for lines and tones that analyze physical objects for their visual impact rather than for their emotional implications.

She works rapidly, from the general to the particular, and often uses drawings as source material for expanded works.

Returning recently from a two month painting trip to Europe, Mrs. Aronow, who was originally a New Yorker, graduated from Cooper Union Art School, where she majored in textile design.

She came to New England more than 25 years ago and since then she has worked as a hand-weaver and a free lance commercial artist. She continues to do block prints on fabric, etchings and drawings as well as paintings, and is well-known for her silk screen designs on leaflets, brochures and posters for peace.

Newtonville Library hours are 9 a.m. - 9 p.m. Monday and Tuesday, 9 a.m. - 6 p.m. Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, closed Saturday and Sunday.

Library to show feature films

"Suspicion," an Alfred Hitchcock's psychological thriller, is the first of three feature films, scheduled for summertime viewing. It will be shown Thursday, June 20, at 7:15 p.m.at the Newton Free Library, Chaffin Hall, 414 Centre Street, Newton Corner.

Joane Fontaine, who won the Academy Award for Best Actress for this film in 1941, Cary Grant, Nigel Bruce and Sir Cedric Hardwicke star in this film adapted from the novel "Before the Fact" by Francis Iles.

Set against a background of English country life, casts an eerie spell and demonstrates the Hitchcock trademark of gradually mounting suspense.

The tense and exciting tale develops as Miss Fontaine, the shy and spinsterish British girl enters a hasty marriage and spends the rest of the time in grave doubts about her new husband, played by Cary Grant.

By degrees, Grant appears to be a liar, a thief, and a fortune-hunter, preoccupied with murder mysteries and unusual poisons. His bride begins to worry about her own safety!

On July 18 at 7:15 p.m. "Stagecoach" will be screened. Directed by John Ford, the film stars John Wayne, Claire Trevor, Thomas Mitchell (who won an Oscar for his performance) and Andy Devine.

Based on the story "Stage to Lrodsburg" by Ernest Haycox, the film is considered a western par excellence and is in the genre of many of Ford's classic westerns.

The film is distinguished by spectacular scenery which almost becomes a character in the action.

The free feature film series concludes on August 22 with "MR. Hulot's Holiday," a modern masterpiece of slapstick, directed by Jacque Tati and starring Jacques Tati and Nathalie Pascaud. Prize Winner at the Cannes Film Festival.

The film recreates the visual satire of Chaplin and the Marx Brothers in a series of comic mix-ups and caricatures of people vacationing at a seaside resort.

The mini-film festival will be screened in Chaffin Hall at the Main Library and will begin at 7:15 p.m.

Film fans of all ages are invited to enjoy these specially selected free films at the Newton Free Library. A coordinated exhibit of books will be on display and available for borrowing.

Mrs. Elaine Wilton to conduct workshop

Mrs. Elaine Wilton of 16 Nottingham St., Newtoncentre, will conduct a workshop on "Book Selection" Sunday, June 23, from 4-5:30 p.m. at the annual conference of the Church and Synagogoue Library Association to be held at Simmons College, Boston, June 23-25.

Mrs. Wilton is the librarian at Temple Israel, Longwood Avenue at Plymouth Street, Boston. She is on the executive boards of the Tay-Sachs Committee and of Family Counciling Service West, and she serves as vice president of Temple Israel Sisterhood and of the New England Regional Jewish Library Association. Mrs. Wilton studied library science at Boston University.

The Church and Synagogue Library Association is a national organization formed in 1967 to encourage and aid the development of improved volunteer library service for local congregations. The theme of the conference this year is "The Freedom Trail Through Books." Workshops will be held on such subjects as "Starting a Library," "Book Selection," "Beginning Cataloging," and "Audiovisual Materials."

Local 800 walkout over Wednesday

By ELIZABETH McKINNON
Of The Graphic Staff

A two-day walkout by the 528 members of Local 800 of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees ended early Wednesday, at least temporarily.

The employees of the city's Street, Sanitation, and Water departments stayed out of work to protest the negotiations on their new contract. The old contract expired in May.

Municipal employees are forbidden by law to strike. The city on Monday obtained a restraining order against union officers and members from Middlesex Superior Court.

The union originally asked a 15 per cent wage increase. The city countered with an offer of 7 per cent for the first year of a new two-year contract, with an additional 4 per cent at the beginning of the second year and 3 per cent later that year.

Present wage levels for most Street Department employees run between $3,92 per hour for the lowest classification of full-time, permanent laborer to $4.92 per hour for a working foreman, with many other classifications between, according to the Street Department.

The two-year contract seems to be the main source of contention. The union is holding out for a one-year contract, while Mayor Theodroe Mann strongly favors a two-year contract for all city employees with bargaining units.

Both the city administration and the union have admitted that no hard negotiating was done until the work stoppage occurred on Monday.

Mayor Mann was in San Diego when the walkout took place, attending a conference of mayors. He was in touch with City Hall by phone Monday and Tuesday and was expected to return Wedesday evening.

Local 800 has traditionally been the group in the city to negotiate, and City Hall Associates (the clerical work force in City Hall), the Police Department and the Fire Department receive the same increase as that given to Local 800.

City Hall Associates briefly supported the Local 800 walkout Monday. By a vote of 69 to 6, the group voted not to cross Local 800 picket lines, and many did not return to City Hall after the lunch hour.

The sympathy move was shortlived, however, after the restraining order was announced, and the validity of the vote was questioned.

Mayor Mann, reached by phone in San Diego, Colo., commented that "there can be no meaningful discussion until the men go back to work—that's the first thing they have to do."

Local 800 President Louis Rufo at the beginning of the walkout asked rhetorically, "Why is the mayor against labor people?" Rufo and other members of the union feel that the city has not been bargaining in good faith.

Some union officials believe that the city is delaying settlement of negotiations beyond July 1 in order to avoid having to pay the increase retroactively. Under new state law, retroactive pay increases may not be given for any period in the previous fiscal year. The new fiscal year begins July 1.

Another sore point is the widely circulated report that a negotiator for the city referred to union officers as "animals."

During the work stoppage, no emergency service was provided, such as maintenance of sewer pumps and repair of water pipes. Several incidents have been reported of sewer packups and basement flooding.

Police were posted at the city yards during the walkout.

By 9 a.m. Wednesday some city trucks were seen at work, and the incinerator was already back in operation.

Rufo was not available after the Wednesday decision for comment on whether the union may walk out again soon.

James Salter, the mayor's chief administrative officer, said Wednesday that the city is ready to renew negotiations at any time, and hoped that they would start up again Wednesday night.

L & R approves Highlands service area

The Legislation & Rules Committee approved a petition to establish a Newton Highlands "neighborhood service area and council" as a sub-unit of city government.

The full Board will vote on the matter July 1.

The petition did not go through unchanged. Several additions, such as requiring an annual report and financial statement and reiterating the open meeting law, were written into the resolution although they are already covered by the city charter and by state law.

The resolution gives the neighborhood area council "advisory but not substantive authority" and stipulates that the council undertake large-scale polling of area residents to ensure that at least a 20 per cent response has been obtained before the council reports any consensus to city officials.

The nine-member neighborhood area council will be elected sometime in the fall. Meanwhile, the initiating group may begin drafting bylaws for approval by the residents at a meeting after the council election.

The Planning Department and the city solicitor will be closely involved in most actions of the council, at least in the beginning, according to discussion at the Legislation & Rules Committee meeting.

Unanimous approval with one abstention by the committee may presage an easier passage through the Board of Aldermen than had been expected. Board President Eliot Cohen, originally skeptical of the feasibility of the neighborhood area concept, voted yes at the committee meeting.

Present at the meeting were Ald. Cohen, Thomas Concannon, Louise Egelson, Andrew Magni, Jason Sacks, Joan Saklad, and, intermittently, Richard Bullwinkle. L&R Committee member Sidney Small was again absent.

Ward 5 alderman Susan Schur was present, although not a member of the committee. Ward 6 alderman Ernest Dietz was absent. Both ward aldermen will be members of the neighborhood area council.

$60,000 sought for health services

By TOM GRAVES
Of The Graphic Staff

Two aldermanic committees heard discussion last week of an appropriation reequest of almost $60,000 for medical and health services required under Chapter 766.

The Finance Committee decided Thursday night to hold the item until more information has been received from Health Department and School Department officials about how the money will be used.

Chapter 766 requires that public school systems provide services for all children with special needs between the ages of three and 21.

According to Dr. John Athans of the Health Department, the $59,789 fund request is for the evaluation and care of substantially disableed children. He said that physicians must be hired tor evaluation, and that personnel is needed for providing medication and physical therapy for children during school hours.

Expenditures under Chapter 766 are supposed to be reimburseable from the state, but Finance Committee Chairman Sidney Small expressed concern over whether reimbursement will actually be gained. Small said that he would like to bill the School Department for the costs of Chapter 766 which come out of city money.

Dr. John Cullinane, director of pupil personnel services and special education, said this week that the state has no new money for Chapter 766. He explained that 766 reimbursements are to come out of Chapter 71 funds, which are designated for general reimbursement. Cullinane said that he "doubted very much" that Newton will not be paid back for Cahpter 766 expenses.

Cullinane noted that the formula for Chapter 766 reimbursement is that a city is to receive 100 per cent of excess costs over what it normally costs to educate a student, up to a certain ceiling.

Theoretically, if the cost of educating a child with special needs is $1,800 compared to a cost of $1,200 for other students, the city would receive $600 reimbursement for that student. The catch in this formula is that no city is to receive more than 110 per cent of the state wide average for educating a child with special needs.

Newton is guaranteed that it will receive no less reimbursement for special education in each of the next five years than it will be receiving for the 1973-74 school year.

Several aldermen have questioned whether the Health Department should be budgeting special education costs instead of the School Department. Cullinane reported that approximately $51,000 (50 per cent) of the Health Department's special education expenses have been returned to the city in each of the past two years through reimbursements from the state.

According to Cullinane, the City Charter requires the Health Department to provide health services in the schools.

Cullinane told the Public Health and Safety Committee Wednesday night that Newton will be "serving whole new populations of kids who have never been in public schools before" next year. He noted that the School Department has had "good working relations" with the Health Department, and that Athan's appropriation request "is our best estimate of what we will need."

A major role of the Health Department under Chapter 766 will be to set up evaluation teams to examine children with special needs. Cullinane said that a "corp evaluation team will meet to develop a plan which makes sense for a kid."

Cullinane explained that "Chapter 766 is not a compulsory integration law; a child will be integrated to the degree that it makes sense."

According to Gerald Peterson, supervisor of special education, labels such as "moderately retarded," "emotionally distrubed," etc. are going to disappear next year, and all such kids will become "children with special needs." Peterson said that he expects an increase next year in the number of kids who are presently called children with learning disabilities.

Irving Fishman

Fishman to run again

State Senator Irving Fishman (D-Newton) today announced his candidacy for reelection to the Massachusetts Senate. He will run in the newly created Newton-Brookline district.

Fishman, the first Democrat elected to the Massachusetts House of Representatives from his district in 1962 served four terms in the House before being elected to the Senate in 1970 and 1972.

Acclaimed as the leading consumer protection advocate in the Massachusetts legislature, Sen. Fishman has been in the forefront of the consumer protection movement since he created the first in the nation Truth-in-Leding bill that became law in 1966.

Fishman has also been a leader in such legislative areas as property tax relief for homeowners, rent control, campaign finance reform, equal rights for women, environmental protection, energy conservation, housing, civil liberties, education, mental health, elderly benefits, and the right of privacy.

How efficient is 911?

Ald. Richard McGrath, chairman of the aldermanic Public Health and Safety Committee, asked Police and Fire Department officials last week for feedback on the effectiveness of the Emergency 911 telephone call system.

Police Chief William Quinn said that "911 is probably the best thing for responding to emergencies" that he had seen in his career. Quinn called the 911 system "entirely successful."

Quinn reported that in December there were 152 911 calls, compared to an average of 110-120 calls a month recently. Police have expressed pleasure with the discrimination people have shown in using the 911 number. Quinn noted that emergency calls are still received on the regular police phone lines.

In providing background on 911, McGrath said that it was decided that the Police Department would receive the emergency calls because it handles 90 per cent of the emergencies in Newton.

Quinn explained that every 911 call which comes to the Police also lights up at the Fire Department. When the word "fire" is mentioned in a 911 call, the Fire Department is supposed to be notified immediately so it can go into action.

Assistant Fire Chief Harvey Preble said that "we feel we should deal directly with people who are reporting a fire."

Fire Lt. Francis Howley claimed "there is a definite delay. He gave as an example a 911 call which the Fire Department heard only the end of, in which a person said "come quick." Howley said that there was a delay in tracing the call so the Fire Department could get the address of the caller.

Preble noted that in Quincy, the minute a 911 call is dialed a buzzer and light goes on at the Fire Department. The Fire Department monitors 911 calls and if one does not pertain to fire, a button is pushed and it is disconnected.

Joseph Whalen of New England Telephone said that the Quincy system has to be specifically designed for individual switchboards. Such a system could be set up in Newton.

Whalen pointed out that the Brookline Fire Department found the monitoring of calls to be more of a bother than an aid, although "Quincy is happy with the system the way it is."

Quinn said that he would not object to the Fire Department monitoring calls. He suggested, though, that civil rights people might object to the Fire Department hearing all 911 calls. Quinn noted that the Fire Department can plug in and listen to calls now.

Quinn remarked that the problem of delays has not been brought to his attention in department head meetings.

McGrath said that he knew of one instance where a 911 call reported a fire in an apartment and the caller was told that police would inv estigate before the Fire department would be notified.

McGrath commented that "I think there is a sense of a problem." He suggested that "maybe the two departments can get together" to work out the 911 situation.

Whalen told the committee that telephone exchanges do not correspond exactly with city boundaries. Consequently, people in

Helen Doona

Mrs. Doona state rep. candidate

Helen Murphy Doona of 152 Lexington Street, Auburndale, announced her candidacy this week for the Democratic nomination for state representative from the newly-created 16th Middlesex District in Newton.

In announcing her candidacy, Mrs. Doona, a widow, mother of five children and a practicing attorney, formerly an assistant city solicitor in the Law Department for the City of Newton, said, "After much discussion with my neighbors and friends it became apparent that there is a demand from the people for a candidate who, when elected, will add strength to the constant battle for a more equitable distribution of state and federal funds for the City of Newton. Because of my familiarity with the legislative process, they feel that I am that person."

"I pledge to work with all city officials to guarantee that Newton's rights are zealously protected in whatever future distributions or assessments are made by the state and federal government," she said.

"There is a ground swell amongst the people, getting larger each day, to dispel the Centers complete season

The Newton Youth Center has just completed another successful year. The Youth Center, in conjunction with the Newton Recreation Department, opened five centers this year for teenagers in various locations throughout the city.

These centers were in West Newton, Newton Highlands, Meadowbrook, Upper Falls, and Newton Centre. They offered a wide variety of activities such as indoor sports, trips, ping pong, pool, camping trips, drop-in centers, and dances. Through these activities, the program served over 1,500 students during this school year.

The Youth Center program is designed to enable both young people and adults through neighborhood committees to participate in developing and guiding the program. The resources of the Recreation Department and the Newton Community Service Centers are available to suit the enthusiasm and interests of the city's youth.

The summer program will begin July first and run until August 23rd. There will be three neighborhood centers which will be in Newton Centre, Newtonville, and West Newton. Each center will be open three nights and each schedule will overlap so that the program will be open Monday through Friday evenings.

If you are interested in becoming a member of the Youth Center Advisory Committee or have any ideas for the Summer Program please call Rick Williams (969-5908) or drop in at the Youth Center office at 429 Cherry St. in West Newton.

NCDF seeks compromise

A compromise plan is being sought by the Conservation Commission and Newton Community Development Foundation to enable the commission to uphold the Wetlands Protection Act and yet not delay NCDF construction.

NCDF has asked to have the Wetlands Protection, or Hatch Act, hearings waived.

Stating that time is critical to their project, Marc Slotnick, a member of the advisory staff, said, "The specific way the Hatch Act is written puts a hardship on us . . . we are not concerned about the substance, merely the procedure."

After obtaining a building permit, which they do not yet have, NCDF would have to file notice of intent and would have to wait 60 days before beginning construction. In that period the hearings would be held and they would have to enforce conditions that might be imposed on them. Right now, their concern is that they not lose this construction season, which because of rising costs, could be expensive.

The commission is reserving action on this matter until consultant Paul Nyquist reviews NCDF's plans.

NCDF is a nonprofit organization which came back to life as a result of an agreement between the city and the Chestnut Hill Towers Trust. A building permit was withheld from the trust unless it committed itself to helping provide subsidized housing in Newton. The Towers chose to contribute to NCDF.

The Towers has made an initial cash payment of $37,500 to NCDF and has agreed to invest additional funds up to $275,000 depending on how much interest in the foundation it is permitted to purchase.

In April, the Massachusetts Housing Finance Agency approved a mortgage commitment to NCDF. Under the agreement terms, NCDF is to receive !125,000 after the mortgage financing is complete. Right now, the push is to finish the detailed drawings so that a building permit may be obtained.

However, even with so much money so close and even though they have $20,000 in their coffers, NCDF finds it has to raise an additional !25,000 by the fall to help pay for complete architectural drawings "of all aspects of the townhouses, detailed engineering of utilities, foundations and site work, mortgage and tax payments, staff and office expenses." Much of this will be reimbursed by MHFA after construction begins.

Chief warns against fireworks

Fire Chief Frederick A. Perkins reminds everyone in Newton that it is illegal to have fireworks under any conditions.

"Whoever sells or keeps for sale or offers for sale any fireworks shall be punished by a fine of not less than $100 nor more than $1,000 or by imprisonment for not more than one year, or both," state law reads.

"Whoever has in his possession or under his control or shall use or explode or cause to be exploded any fireworks shall be subjected to a fine of not less than $10, nor more than $100," it also says.

All fireworks including "sparklers" are illegal under the law, Chief Perkins said.

"We in the fire service have seen the results of injuries and burns resulting from the use of fireworks and hope that this Fourth of July will be a safe and accident free holiday," he also said.

Regional Refuse District seeks 3-year extension

By ELIZABETH McKINNON
Of the Graphic Staff

The Newton-Waltham Regional Refuse District should stay in existence for the next three to eight years while working toward state implementation of a regional resource recovery plant in the area, the two co-chairmen of the district have said.

In a letter from Ald. David Jackson of Newton and City Councilor Jack Koutoujian of Waltham to the mayors and legislative bodies of the two cities, the co-chairmen are asking extension of the life of the district, due to expire Aug. 31, until Aug. 31, 1977.

The request to amend the existing agreement between Newton and Waltham will be presented July 10 to the Newton Board of Aldermen, sitting informally as a Committee of the Whole.

Waltham approved the extension of time at its City Council meeting this past Monday night.

Jackson's and Koutoujian's letter, which still needs confirmation by the district committee, according to Jackson, says that at the end of August, 1974, there will remain unspent between $10,000 and $20,000 in the district budget.

The original grant from the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency for the establishment of the regional disposal district was for $112,500, plus "services in kind" to be given to the district by both cities amounting to $37,500.

The co-chairmen have been assured, they say, that state funding for secretarial services will be available if the EPA will not grant an extension of time in which to use the remaining money.

The district, which is essentially a planning board to investigate the feasibility of a refuse disposal region, has issued a report prepared by its consultant, Camp Dresser & McKee, that recommends against the upgrading of either the Newton or the Waltham incinerator. Both will have been shut down by the end of the year.

The report finds that either individually or together Newton and Waltham should adopt as the short-term solution to disposal problems a transfer-haul method or modular incineration until a regional resource recovery plant is in operation.

Transfer haul requires the construction of a facility, probably at the Rumford Avenue landfill site, or the conversion of the incinerator building to compact the rubbish before it is put into large trailers to be hauled out of the city.

The use of modular incinerators requires the construction of up to 20 small units at two or more sites in the city. The town of Wellesley has just begun using the small units and has encountered problems only with the unloading of rubbish and the capacity of the roadways around the facilities.

CDM has issued requests for proposals for the handling of the rubbish, and a contract must be awarded by July 23 in order to comply with a schedule approved by the state Department of Public Health.

The letter from Jackson and Koutoujian differs in one outstanding point from the conclusions reached by Camp Dresser Mckee in their report. CDM has said there are two processing and two disposal sites (all located in Waltham) that would be available for a regional resource recovery plant.

Jackson and Koutoujian feel that short life span, topographic difficulties, deficiencies of access, and extreme difficulty in acquisition would rule out the four sites selected, and recommend another site nearby but not in either of the two cities.

An economically viable region would require the participation of several other communities, the letter says, including Watertown, Weston, Brookline, Needham, Wellesley, Natick, Wayland, Lincoln and Lexington.

Police report

$30,000 in antiques stolen from warehouse

Approximately $30,000 worth of antiques, bric-a-brac, etc., were reportedly taken from a storage warehouse in Newton Upper Falls last week.

Harry Lacey called Newton police on Wednesday to report a break and larceny at 44 Oak St. Entrance was reportedly gained by forcing a back door.

According to police, Lacey stated that he had already taken about $50,000 worth of antiques to Cambridge to auction off. The auctioneer has reportedly said that approximately half the items taken to Cambridge were stolen about the same time the warehouse in Upper Falls was supposed to have been broken into. The break was reported to police at 1 p.m. on Wednesday.

The case is under investigation by Newton and Cambridge police.

A 911 call to Newton police Sunday night resulted in the arrest of a 15-year-old Wellesley youth. The juvenile was charged with breaking and entering in the night-time.

According to police, a witness called at 10:34 p.m. Sunday and reported that youths were breaking into 30 Kingston Rd., Newton Highlands. Police arrived at the scene, heard people running, and a chase ensued.

The chase went through backyards, woods and into Cold Spring Playground. An apprehension was made by Det. Joseph W. Donahue Jr. Numerous other officers assisted.

A breaking and entering was reported at 92 Crofton St., Waban, on Sunday. Items reported missing included a large silver antique spoon, jewelry, and a television.

A break at 128 Waban Ave., Waban, was also reported on Sunday. A pane of glass was broken in a rear kitchen window and the house was reportedly ransacked. According to police, a portable television appeared to be missing.

Two hundred gallons of gasoline were reportedly taken from four trucks at 157 North St., Newtonville, over the weekend. Attempts were allegedly made to get into two other trucks also, but they were unsuccessful.

A custodian reported on Sunday that 25 windows had been broken at the Franklin School, 125 Derby St., West Newton.

A larceny at Swartz Hardware and Supply, 353 Watertown St., Newton, was reported on Monday. According to police entrance was gained by an unknown manner. Items reported missing included power tools and wrenches.

Arthur Marr retires

Friends and associates have honored retiring Comptroller and Director of Finance Arthur A. Marr, who will leave his post June 28.

In unusual tribute, two dinners have been held to express the appreciation of Marr's colleagues for his 16 years of devotion to the city, one by department heads and the Board of Aldermen last week and one Tuesday night by City Hall associates.

Marr will be remembered in the city for his zealous efforts to keep the School Department accounting system in order. He once said, "The School Department is going to kill this city. They have built themselves a monster — this city is going to be in serious trouble."

Marr, 57, is moving to Georgetown, Maine, where his family has had a house for many years. There, he says, he doesn't know exactly what he will do in business, except that he will probably be involved in some kind of consulting work.

Marr and his wife have three daughters and six grandchildren.

Marr is a past president of the Massachusetts Muncipal Auditors and Accountants Association and the Association of Retirement Boards, and a member of the Municipal Finance Officers Association of the United States and Canada, the New England Municipal Finance Association.

Marr has also been a director of the Newton YMCA and has been a lecturer on finance at Boston College and Smith College.

He was graduated from Bentley School of Accounting and Northeastern University, where he earned a certificate of Municipal Management.

INDOOR PUBLIC TENNIS ANYONE?

ATTENTION!
NEWTON SOUTH SIDE RESIDENTS

The Oak Hill Improvement Association is interested in forming a working committee to develop a planned self-liquidating public indoor-outdoor tennis facility to be constructed somewhere within our district. Residents desirous of this new recreation facility to be planned and recommended by Newton South Side citizens to the Recreation Commission and the Board of Aldermen, are urged to send in the reply form below. We need interested people to form a group for committee work and research into this needed recreational facility.

Dolan Pond after the cleanup

Students transform Dolan pond

By ELEANOR SIEGEL
Staff Correspondent

It seems as though if Newton residents were surveyed and asked where the Webster Conservation Area or Dolan Pond was, most would not know. And those that did know, would remember the areas as being severely littered.

Well, some inroads have been made on that trash by Murray Road students who made a valiant effort to clean out the areas as part of an end of the year project.

Recently three of the students presented a report to the Conservation Commission on their clean-up efforts.

Vera Gershenson, who presented material on Dolan Pond, affectionately called by students "the swamp," explained that in the beginning "in the state the area was in, it was not immediately recognizable as being worth preserving."

But the students held out great hopes they could restore the swamp to its natural state. There were a few obstacles in their way such as a burned out shack which took them one and a half weeks to clean out. Not only were they removing small debris, but also larger debris such as a washing machine, lawn mowers, seeven, tires, twenty, and a cement mixer.

To aid them in their efforts, they solicited neighborhood assistance. Miss Gerenshon said, "there is a problem because the neighborhood kids find the place a great place to drink and smoke, periodically burning down the shack."

Some 10 truckloads of trash were collected by the students, but they report more trash remains in the drainage trench and in the middle of the pond. They urged the city to dredge the trench.

The students strongly recommended the placement of trash cans at the ends of the streets leading to Dolan Pond. They felt the "no dumping" law shoud be more strongly enforced and that a public relations effort should be made with the neighbors and children. They suggest pamphleting the neighborhood with literature about the wetlands and initiating a unit on wetlands for fifth and sixth graders "who are most likely to litter."

Reporting on the Webster Conservation Area, Bruce Saxon told of efforts to mark and clear the trails as well as remove trash, including an old Studebaker car. Saxon said the students made and posted large, visible signs at three major entranxes to inform visitors where the trails are, how long the trails are and where they lead to. The three main trails are at Temple Mishkan Tefila, Suffolk Road and Warren Street.

The students saw the area as one of natural beauty, "unknown and unpublicized." They recommended acquisition of the MDC and Temple land by Newton.

Saxon stated that "inadequate funds were spent on the upkeep of the area" and noted also that a great amount of debris existed around Temple land which had to be cleaned up.

Accompanying Miss Gershenson, and Mr. Saxon were student Bill Whynot and faculty members Jack Luskin and Ann Elliott.

Chairman Dennis Ditelberg thanked the students "for the marvelous things you have done in a short time . . . we appreciate your advice and suggestions and will keep in touch with you." He also promised the youngsters that the commission "will do something to preserve the area and acquire Dolan Pond."

Neighbors object to Newton North site plan

By TOM GRAVES
Of The Graphic Staff

The Newton School Committee voted no action this week on a controversial parking plan for Newton North High School.

John L Simmons of the Newton Planning Department presented a plan which included 296 on-site parking places for faculty and visitors. The traffic flow indicated by the plan is for cars to enter the Newton North campus at Lowell Avenue and Elm Road, and for them to exit on to Walnut Street via a new street just south of Russell Court.

The plan calls for much of the parking lot at Newton North to be adjacent to the mall at the school. The eastern half of Elm Road would be eliminated and replaced by athletic field.

Simmons said that the "location of the lot represents the least impact on the residential community." He added that it is almost in the center of the Newton North site.

The plan would allow for numerous athletic fields, although School Committeeman Herbert Regal was concerned about the closeness of the baseball diamond to the parking area.

The plan also calls for a median on part of Elm Road and a rectangular extension of the main parking area from Elm Road down next to Kimball Terrace. An exit from the Parking area, and possibly another entrance, would be located on the new road which would feed into Walnut Street. The main entrance to the lot would be off Elm Road.

Regal was worried that there would be a lot of traffic near Claflin School with this plan. It was explained to Regal that Claflin starts at 8:45 a.m. while much of the high school traffic would arrive before 8 a.m.

Superintendent of School Aaron Fink said that "the traffic pattern is no different now than it would be under the plan."

Dennis Becker of 63 Elm Rd., later disagreed with this assertion, noting that a good portion of the traffic to Newton North now comes from Walnut Street to Elm Road.

School Committee member Mrs. Dorothy Reichard commented that there are presently about 500 spaces on site while the new plan calls for barely 300. "Students are going to have to look on side streets for spaces," she pointed out. "I don't think they are going to use Elm Road as frequently as now."

During discussion of the athletic area, Newton North Principal Richard Mechem said that "we know how squeezed the situation is; a long range solution may be busing of the baseball team." Mechem remarked that he liked the compactness of the parking lot.

Harry Portnoy of the School Committee's buildings advisory committee expressed concern about the location of the parking area damaging the aesthetic value of the mall at Newton North.

Mrs. Gene White, new president of the Claflin PTA, spoke to the School Committee in behalf of Claflin Principal Charlotte Howard. Mrs. White said she wanted to emphasize the narrowness of Lowell Avenue and the congestion of traffic in the area. She called it "a terrible area."

Becker, a neighbor of Newton North, claimed that several of five alternative plans allowed 400 on-site spaces without limiting the athletic fields. Becker said that with these plans, "you can get traffic in more safely, more conveniently, and you can keep the athletic fields in the design.

Becker remarked that the proposed plan would create exit problems, as several streets feed into Walnut Street close to one another.

"I think its clear that there is a need to diffuse the traffic patterns," Becker said. He added that posting does not work as a means of limiting on-street parking, and that the traffic in the area "become our problem."

Becker noted that the plan is a safety hazard. "We are terribly frightened for the kids on Lowell Avenue," he said.

"There is a better solution," Becker added. "I request that you don't choose this one. On the basis of logic, I don't see how you can approve this."

Simmons was asked several times if an evaluation has been made of the traffic flow in the Newton North area. He replied once that records would have to be consulted, and suggested that the planning director be called.

One member of the audience said that he was "bothered by the complete unwillingness to consider other alternatives and the unwillingness to involve citizenry" in developing a plan for Newton North.

School Committee Chairwoman Mrs. Eleanor Rosenblum replied that alternatives have been considered and rejected.

Another man in the audience commented that "the center of gravity of the high school has been shifted toward Lowell Ave."

In response to an earlier suggestion that widening of Walnut Street could provide some on-street parking, Judith Godfrey of 7 Gibson Rd., said that she thought parking on Walnut Street would be "suicidal." She noted that there is poor vision coming out of side streets.

"You have to supply enough parking on site for kids or say they can't drive," Ms. Godfrey commented.

Attorney Robert Freeto, representing Henry O'Connor of 83 Elm Rd., suggested that land taking could expand the Newton North site. He said that o'Connor would be willing to sell two pieces of land at fair market value, and that he understood other abuttors had a similar attitude.

Mrs. Rosenblum said that this "has been considered, but is not recommended by the Planning Department at this time."

Becker remarked at the end of the meeting that he is an abuttor "not in favor of land taking."

Mrs. Reichard said after lengthy discussion that suggestions should be referred back to City Planner Charles Thomas and Simmons for further consideration.

Mrs. Reichard noted that parking for faculty, providing adequate athletic facilities, responsibility for the safety of children in the neighborhood, and insuring the privacy of people in the neighborhood must be kep in mind.

Mrs Reichard made a motion of no action on the plan. An amendment was added suggesting that "the Planning Department look at possible solutions with potential landtaking." The motion was passed.

Beaconwood contract signing July 2

The Newton Housing Authority expects to sign a contract on July 2 for the construction of 20 low-income family duplexes on Beaconwood Road. Groundbreaking is expected to follow shortly thereafter.

The contract was awarded to the Concrete Construction Co. of Everett who came in with the second lowest bid of $898,500. The contract was originally to go to P. J. Stella Construction Corp. of Wakefield whose bid was $874,700.

However, delays caused by the Department of Community Affair's dilemma over the high per-unit cost resulted in the NHA's losing out on this bid. The D A resolved its problem by instructing the authority to request $150,000 from city funds for site development. The Board of Aldermen approved this appropriation on June 3. It was then fel that rebidding would be too costly and so, with DCA approval, the authority turned to the next lowest bidder.

In addition to this project, the NHA is also investigating an offer to sell two buildings made by Frank E. Ciccone. According to Frank Quinn, executive director of the NHA, the buildings contain seven apartments, one office and some empty storerooms and would cost $165,000.

The NHA is awaiting reports from the building inspector, since Quinn says, "We have no money yet and can't go to a funding agency unless we have more information about the feasibility of the project."

Quinn also voiced concern over the problems of relocation and the the advisability of "relocating some for others . . . that's why our ultimate goal is new housing."

Sargent and Brooke on collision course

Relations are chilly between the two top Republicans in Massachusetts, and the likelihood is they will get more frigid rather than warmer.

Conficliting political ambitions have placed Governor Francis W. Sargent and Senator Edward W. Brooke on a collision course.

....Both men want to be the Republican nominee for Vice President in 1976. There will be room for only one of them on the GOP national ticket.

If Francis Sargent is reelected Governor next November, a fight inevitably will develop between Sargent and Brooke in 1976 for control of the Massachusetts delegation too that year's Republican national convention.

Sarge would stand out nationally as the Republican who twic won election to the Governorship in Democratic, liberal Massachusetts — the one state Richad Nixon was unable to carry in his 1972 Presidential contest with George McGovern.

If Sarge is defeated in November, it probably would end his political career and certainly would knock him out of consideration for a place on the 1976 Republican national ticket. There would be no way he could make a comeback before '76.

Brooke, the first and only Black elected to the U.S. Senate since Reconstruction days, does not come up for reelection until 1978, and he can stand back out of harm's way as he waits for the 1976 Presidential campaign.

You night assume that Governor Sargent and Senatorr Brooke, two Republican liberals in a strongly Democratic state, would find an accomodation which would help assure the political survival of both men.

But political ambitions do strange things to men. Neither Sargent nor Brooke is willing to agree to step aside for the other in 1976. Many of Brooke's problems would be solved if Sargent is toppled next November.

And some of the top members of the Sargent camp are suspicious of Brooke's political motives and actions even though they will not say so for publication.

They can't afford to be openly critical of Brooke at this point in time, but 1976 will be anotoher matter if Sarge survives next autumn's election.

As the chairman who presided over the recent unofficial Republican State Convention, Brooke was publicly neutral in the contests waged at the conclave. He was too neutral to suit some of Sarge's strategists and advisers.

One of the reasons former State Commerce Commissioner Carroll Sheehan polled more votes against Governor Sargent than had been predicted was that he unexpectedly received the support of a number of Brooke delegates. That did not excape the attention of the watchful Sargent lieutenants.

Now there is no reason delegates known too be friendly with Senator Brooke and responsive to his views and wishes should be prohibited from voting for anyone they chose at an unofficial Republican convention.

But delegates who share Brook's views and political philosophy ordinarily would not vote forr an arch-conservative such as Carroll Sheehan. Governor Sargent was criticized by conservative Republican delegates for walking away from President Nixon in his time of great trouble. Brooke has been even more critical of Nixon than has Sarge.

The number of Brooke people, who unexpectedly turned up on Sheehan's rickety bandwagon, which obviously is going nowhere, coupled with Brooke's surprise blast at Governor Sargent's proposal for using voluntary busing instead of forced busing to reduce racial imbalance in Boston public school have caused some misgivings in the Sargent ranks about just how much help the Governor will get from Brooke in next November's election. Brooke already has indicated his intention of sitting out the primary contest between Sargent and Sheehan.

Political candidates in summer doldrums

Candidates for high public offices now are in the summer doldrums. They have entered the period when it is most difficult to attract the attention or arouse the interest of the voters.

The period in which nomination signatures could be gathered has ended. Schools have closed until after Labor Day.

Many families have gone to vacation resorts for the summer. Others are planning vacations for shorter periods. Few are looking to political campainging for any part of their summer entertainment.

Most people will turn their attention back to the politicians and the politicking after the kids go back to school next September.

The trouble is that there will be almost no time for campaigning for primary nominations after the school bells ring and the youngsters return to their classrooms at the summer's end.

The primary is scheduled for Sept. 10, only eight days after Labor Day.

Some candidates will show up at clambakes and outings to shake hands and bore listeners with their election messages.

About the only way they will be able to reach the voters is through the newspapers.

A sure-fire method some candidates will employ to lose votes will be to place their bumper stickers on automobiles operated by boorish drivers who will create ill-will by ignoring speed laws and a traffic light just turned red, weaving in and out of traffic and generally jeopardizing the safety of everybody else on the road.

Why politicians think bumper stickers get them votes and why some motorists place the campaign stickers on their cars and then drive as discourteously as they do, have long been mysteries this onlooker has been unable to solve.

Clinic surveyed 468 abortion patients

The Charles Circle Clinic in Boston released statistics this week compiled in a survey of 468 abortion patients that visited the clinic in April.

I thought it might be interesting to relate the clinic's statistics here and give you an opportunity to check them against your own theories about who is having abortions and why.

The youngest patient, the clinic reported, was 14 and the oldest patient was 46. Of the total, 59 per cent of the women who had abortions were single, and 58 per cent of the total used no method of birth control.

According to age statistics, abortions were most frequently done for women ages 23-26. This figure was 107. Of the 468, 83 were 19 or 20, 78 were 21 or 22, and 65 were 27-30.

Of the women surveyed, 87 had had previous abortions and 178 had had babies.

Completely Black

Women responding to the questions indicated that 229 or 49 per cent were Catholic, 124 or 26 per cent were protestant, 14 or 3 per cent were Jewish, nine or 2 per cent were "other," and 92 or 19 per cent did not respond to the religious question.

The Clinic's survey also stated that 56 per cent of all women over 30 used no birth control and 76 per cent of the women under 18 used no birth control.

IN THERE SWINGIN'

Polls indicate Sarge in political trouble

Governor Sargent is in deep political trouble if a professional poll made for the Globe correctly reflects the thinking of Massachusetts voters.

The poll indicated that either Attorney General Robert Quinn or former State Representative Michael Dukakis, the two candidates for the Democratic nomination for Governor, would defeat Sargent and that Dukakis would win by a larger margin than Quinn.

Most political observers, including this one, believe Quinn would be a stronger candidate against Sargent than would Dukakis. They also are not yet prepared to write off Sargent. But they do have great respect for Globe polls.

This writer made a poll at the height of the gasoline shortage last winter, when automobile-onwers were fuming at the inept handling of the situation and the necessity of wasting gasoline, driving from one filling station to another in search of a pump which was in operation.

That survey indicated that Governor Sargent and other Republicans were headed for defeat and disaster in next November's election. Subsequently, it appeared there was an upswing in Sarge's strength and that he was able to get back on the right political course.

Now the Globe poll seems to foretell serious problems for the Governor in his campaign to win reelection to another four-year term.

To be sure, the important November election is four months away. Great changes can occur in the strength of the various candidates as issues are aired and charges are exchanged.

Historically, however, a Governor almost always loses strength in a campaign for reelection. He very rarely gains support because his administration is the big issue.

One factor clearly militating against Governor Sargent is that his popularity has eroded durng the past four years.

He has faced tough problems, made difficult decisions and committed his share of mistakes. They all have combined to cost him public support.

Every test of voter sentiment has shown that Governor Sargent is not nearly as strong today as he was in 1970 when he defeated Boston Mayor Kevin H. White who almost surely would topple hime next Nov. 5 if the two were engaged in a return match. White simply decided he didn't want to be Governor.

Persons close to Governor Sargent are not all persuaded that his cause is hopeless. They declare that professional polls which have been made for the Governor showedd him to be in good shape.

They assert that both Dukakis and Quinn will be vulnerable to attack and that the one who wins the Democratic nomination for Governor may be battle-scarred when the primary votes are counted on the night of Sept. 10.

The Globe poll indicated that the Watergate mess will be an issue in the gubernatorial election even though Mr. Sargent has been as far removed from that scandal as any Democrat.

What it apparently adds up to is that there evidently is a tremendous public feeling of unrest and dissatisfaction, that a Democratic tide is developing and that the storm signals may be flying for many Republicnas and some office-holders in both political parties.

Whether a big victory in the primary would give Governor Sargent the momentum to overcome such a situation is a question only time will answer. But the Governor definitely seems to have problems, many of them made by Republicnas, some by himself.

Could Henry end war in Northern Ireland?

India seems to have a strange set of values. It had enough money to do all the things necessary to set off an atomic blast but not enough to buy food for its starving people.

One of our readers asks why Henry Kissinger is not sent to Northern Ireland to try to negotiate a settlement between the warring factions there. We doubt that Henry would be welcomed by either side or that he could accomplish anything. That probably is a bit out of his line.

Chuck Colson might have avoided much of his trouble if he hadn't, as he puts it, thumbed his nose at Harvard. He turned down a full scholarship at Harvard because he wanted to say "no" to Harvard and went instead to Brown. It was at a Brown alumni gathering that Colson met fellow alumnus E. Howard Hunt, Jr.

What's in a name? Governor Salmon of Vermont, while attending the recent Governor's Conference in Seattle, went fishing in Puget Sound for a bit of relaxation. He proved a skillful angler and caught three large salmon.

Clifford Irving, who was paid $650,000 for a fake autobiography of billionaire recluse Howard Hughes, and his wife, who spent 14 months in a Swiss prison, are united in New York. While in jail, Mrs. Irving said she would divorce her husband, but Irving, who served almost 18 months for fraud, apparently talked her out of it. He has a new job.

Experts on international affairs are speculating on what will happen to Yugoslavia when strong man President Joseph Tito is no longer able to head that nation's government. Tito is now 82 but is still a power in the Communist world.

Washington officials insist ther should be plenty of gasoline for summer vacation driving. They say inventories rose in March, April and May, that stockpiles are still growing and that there could even be price wars during the summer. It's difficult to reconcile that appraisal with the ng-gasoline signs which still appear on many filling stations.

Avi Nelson had right to speak for Sheehan

Some Republican politicians believe radio talk-master Avi Nelson took advantage of his position when he seconded the nomination of former State Commerce Commissioner Carroll Sheehan at the unofficial GOP State Convention.

We disagree. We can't see that Avi Nelson's action was improper in any way. We do concur in the opinion that Mr. Sheehan is making a futile fight against Governor Sargent for tthe Republican gubernatorial nomination. But that isn't the point.

Avi Nelson is a conservative Republican. He is probably slightly to the right of the late President McKinley. He is in conflict with Governor Sargent on many issues.

Mr. Nelson is so conservative that his talk shows on radio station WHDH, on nights when there are no Red Sox baseball games, at times are entertaining although a listener may wonder whether he has been carried on smoe magic carpet back to the 19th Century.

Rumors were circulated at one point during the past spring that Mr. Nelson might challenge Lieutenant Donald Dwight in the Republican primary. Some newsmen suspected at the time that the reports were promoted by Dwight in the hope that he would have a primary warmup to help prime him for the final election campaign.

This writer, incidentally, does not take seriously the claim by Nelson that Robert Caulfield, one of Governor Sargent's top political advisers, called the operations manager at WHDH the day before the Republican Convention and attempted to have Nelson taken off the air.

Persons familiar with the setup at WHDH express the opinion that if Caulfield, former news director for television station WHDH-TV, had tried to get Nelson fired, Avi would now be looking for a job.

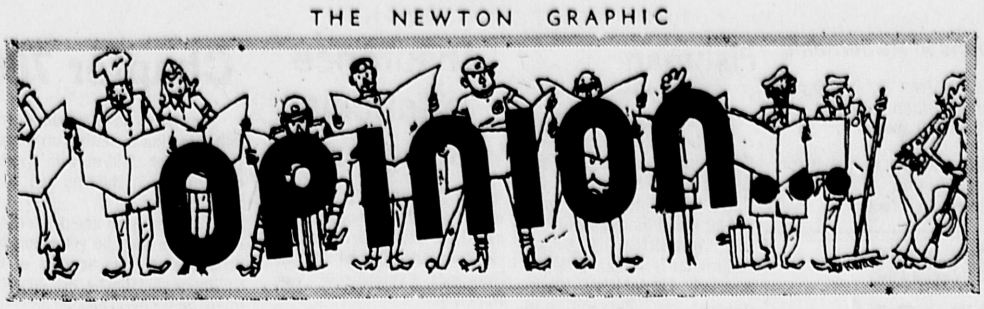
In other words, Caulfield has strong enough ties at WHDH to put a crimp in Avi Nelson's political activities and probably to have him fired if that were his desire.

Caulfield says he merely called a friend at WHDH to find out what Nelson was going to do at the GOP convention the next day. All the evidence indicates Caulfield is telling the truth.

We would point out most respectfully too the critics of Avi Nelso that no objection was raised when Michael Dukakis served as moderator of the TV show, "The Advocates", on Channel 2, after he had made it known he would be a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor.

Dukakis not only received beneficial exposure but apparently also was paid for his stint on Channel 2 when it was obvious he was being helped politically by his appearances on "The Advocates."

Radio Station WHDH is privately owned and depends on the income from its own advertising forr its survial. Channel 2, on the other hand, depends upon public contributions for its existence and operation and should not — either knowingly or unthinkingly — promote one political candidate at the expense of another.



Unknown facts of electricity

To the Editor:

I should like to make a few comments on the costs of eleectricity citing a few facts which are available in public records but not widely publicized. Until 1970, when the cost of oil was $1.70 a barrel, the cost of electricity did not rise, since increased productivity and technologic improvements offset rises in the cost of labor, materials, equipment, taxes, and interest on borrowed capital.

Indeed, in 1973, even though the cost of oil rose to $4.65 a barrel, the cost of electricity to the consumer was less than in 1963. The increased cost of fuel was because of legislation requiring the utilities to burn low sulfur fuel.

Electric utilities are regulated by the state as to what they may charge for their product. Because of fluctuations in the cost of fuel, a law was passed many years ago requiring companies to charge separately for the fuel excluding fuel costs from the base on which the price of electricity was calculated.

This allowed for reductions as well as advances, as fuel costs fluctuated: it prevents the companies from making windfall profits on fuel, as well as providing a flexible method of reimbursement (without going to the D.P.U. constantly for permission to change rates) for rising fuel costs (fuel must be paid for by utilities within 10 days).

The cost of fuel is now $12.45 per barrel; and this is passed on as a fuel adjustment charge, not figured into the company's profit or loss bases. Other costs that do affect the cost of electricity per kilowatt-hour have also risen — especially taxes (almost 20 percent income goes out to state and municipal tax collectors), equipment (generators, turbines, trucks, etc.), labor, and interest on borrowed capital (it costs over $500 million dollars to build a power plant), to say nothing of miles of wire, cables, poles, etc.

Nuclear energy is a safe and less expensive and non-polluting source of electricity. Daniel Ford has personally decided that this is not a safe method, going against almost all students of nuclear engineering in this country, and throughout the world — most countries are going more and more into nuclear power. When nuclear power is used, oil is spared, and the charge for fuel is omitted accordingly.

At present Mr. Ford has succeeded in an intervention that has cost, thus far, $30 million in oil costs, passed on directly to users, since the Pilgrim Nuclear Power Plant at Plymouth, Mass. has been prevented from operating directly as a result of his views.

We who work for utilities realize the complexities of these problems. We hope that the spread of factual knowledge will reduce some of the emotions that high prices engender, so that our mutual probleems may be resolved in reason.

Reply on learning disabilities

Editor's note: This is a copy of the letter sent in response to a letter printed last week.

Dear Dr. Clancy:

I find the statements in your letter of June 15 completely misrepresent the facts.

1. The amount recommended by the Superintendent of Schools for the Learning Disabilities Program for the budget of the Newton Public Schools for 1974-75 was $292560. The figure of $343,046 represents an initial estimate, one of many departmental raw requests submitted to and reviewed in the normal course of events by John Cullinane, director of Pupil Personnel Services and Special Education, and by Henry Atkins, assistant superintendent for program, prior to submission of the proposed budget to the superintendent of schools.

The recommended amount of $292,560 was reviewed with Dr. Grimes prior to submission to the Superintendent; the Superintendent and Central Staff confirmed the recommendation and submitted it to the School Committee for final approval. This final approval was given with no alterations and very little discussion.

2. The implications of your statement about "the $2500 annual salary a learning disability teacher receives in Newton in exchange for her services" are entirely misleading. $2582.30 represents the minimum salary, at a rate of $5.27 per hour for 14 hours per week for 35 weeks per year, during a period of closely supervised training. In 1973-74 the hourly rate for Learning Disabilities tutors ranged from $5.27 per hour for the training year to $8.06 per hour in the fith year. The average rate for the Learning Disabilities tutors during 1973-74 was $7.10 per hour; the average number of hours per week was 19 and the average salary was $4908.33 with the maximum salary for the year at $7350.

3. In regard to your statement that "perhaps the School Committee and the Superintendent do not truly value the Learning Disabilities Program and will allow the effectiveness of the program to be eviscerated by such expediencies, etc." the Superintendent has recommended and the School Committee has approved increases in the Learning Disabilities Program budget from approximately $35,000 in 1969 to $292,046 in 1974-75.

This is for the tutorial budget only and does not include the salary of the director of the program, nor the services of the psychologists and other personnel involved. This means the budget for the coming year will be more than eight times what it was five years ago, despite a decrease in the total school enrollment of 8.9 percent, and a decrease in the elementary school enrollment, where the bulk of the services have been provided, of 12.4 percent.

This seems to me to be an incontrovertible indication of the commitment of the School Committee and the Administration to the Learning Disabilities Program.

Newton needs an art center

Dear Mayor Mann:

There is a growing awareness on the part of the citizens and artists of Newton of a need for a Cultural Center which would be an embodiment and a living expression of the rich cultural life of our community.

We lack a real as well as a symbolic center for artists to work, communicate with each other and grow, as well as a place where children and adults from all over the city will come to participate and be exposed to the working environment of professional artists.

We envision this center for the arts as a total envirnment, providing exhibition space, performances of music, dance and theatre. It would also provide an educational facility where classes are held, and studio space for all kinds of serious artists, from painters and potters to weavers and sculptors. Such a facility would be of incalculable value to the vitality and self-image of the city.

It has come to our attention that the Peabody League School, on the Peabody School property, at the corner of Brookline and Dedham streets, which is leased by the city, is slated for demolition. A group of competent professionals is ready to prepare in detail a proposal for the use of this site, including funding proposals, costs and benefits to the city, working relationships with the school department, etc.

We urge you to delay the proposed demolition until we have an opportunity to investigate further the potentiality and feasibility of this site as a Center for the Arts.

We would like to meet with you at the earliest opportunity to discuss this matter further.

Thoughts on the Fourth of July

To The Editor:

The Fourth of July, 1974. It's here . . . within a fire-cracker blast of us all!

Forgetting for a moment the carnivals and traffic-jams; the littered parking-lots and Excedrin headaches — just what is July 4th all about? Sure, we can look back nostalgically upon the old massed bands, home-made ice cream and soaring rockets. But, where in all of that, was the REAL FOURTH-OF-JULY?

Do we, do our children ever remember what this day really stands for? Does it conjure up in our minds such words as "RIGHTS OF THE INDIVIDUAL" . . . . "FREEDOM" . . . "INDEPENDENCE"?

I doubt it!

FREEDOM! Why, today this is the expected, accepted "God-given-right" of every American. By heritage (and without having to do a stroke of work for it), we know that we are a free people . . . free to assemble, free to own property, free to vote and free to voice opinions. Two hundred years ago it was not that way. Nor was it entirely that way in 1961-1899; 1917 or even 1942. Our forefathers FOUGHT to leave us such a gift. The gift that, today, we would seem to hold so lightly.

Thankfully, they knew its value.

They were not afraid to risk everything either in its concept or in its preservation. Without them our "Heritage of Natural Rights," our "Manifold Destiny" would be but another strange and dusty ideal, lost on an old relic'd shelf. Certainly it would not be representing, even today, the ultimate "Ideal" for millions around the world.

Today we worry so much about pollution - conservation - isolation that there is no time to give more than a passing nod to our original cornerstone . . . "Freedom." Sure, some aspects of our "freedom" do get plenty of attention . . .

The "Freedom of Speech" for instance. That "Basic Right" allows us to say exactly what we want, and when we want . . . without apparent thought as to the personalities pillaged and the reputations smirched. But, its "FREEDOM!"

And the "Freedom of Religious Worship." Oh yes, we have that. So much so that sad nihilism continues to creep through the back door as the centuries' old worship of our ancestors atrophises in the front parlour.

Fishman-

Fishman has shaped much of his legislation through his leadership positions in the Senate. He is chairman of the Committee on Banks and Banking and vice-chairman of the Committee on Urban Affairs. He is a member of the Special Legislative Commission on Privacy and Chairman of the Special Senate Committee to Investigate the Energy Shortage in Massachusetts.

Fishman was the first Massachusetts legislator to publicly oppose the Vietnam War, speaking at the first anti-Vietnam War rally on the Boston Common in 1965. He helped found and shape the peace movement nationally and in Massachusetts.

This year he filed the Senate resolution calling on the Massachusetts Congressional delegation to vote for the impeachment of President Nixon. Fishman's resolution was adopted, making the Massachusetts Senate the first state legislative body to formally urge presidential impeachment.

Fishman filed his 1974 legislative package without fanfare. It covered many categories, emphasizing banking reforms, consumer protection, women's rights, property tax reform and elderly benefits. To date, more than a dozen of Sen. Fishman's bills have been signed into law by the governor. And more than another dozen of his bills stand a good chance of passage in this session.

Asked to explain his high degree of effectiveness as a legislator, Sen. Fishman explained that "the legislative process is a complex labyrinth. In a forum of 40 senators simply filing bills or attracting publicity is not enough. Legislation must be nurtured and shaped in cooperation with others. You cannot do it alone," Sen. Fishman said. "A good legislator must have the respect of his colleagues, a sense of timing, and an ability to rank his or her legislative priorities."

In the four years that Sen. Fishman has been Chairman of the Committee on Banks and Banking he has worked to transform the Committee from an apologist for the banking industry to a vehicle for consumer protection.

Fishman successfully sponsored a bill which abolished interlocking bank directorates; and other banking reform legislation, now law, requiring banks to pay interest on tax escrow accounts.

Property tax relief continues to be a high Fishman legislative priority. This year he sponsored a legislative amendment to the Massachusetts Constitution to provide an exemption for land occupied by the owner as his or her domicile from the real estate tax.

Fishman is the leading co-sponsor of Common Cause legislation. This year he filed bills designed to strengthen and reform laws regulating lobbyists, conflicts of interest, and financial disclosures. He seeks to create a state Ethics Commission and pass other laws designed to open up government to the people.

Fishman is an active member of the Special Legislative Commission on Privacy. He is a leader in the investigation of computer technology's inherent threat to privacy and individual constitutional rights. Fishman is working hard to develop legislative safeguards designed to protect individuals from the assault on their privacy from both public and private institutions.

Insurance agencies recognized

Two Newton insurance agencies have been recognized as "1974 Select Circle Agencies" by the Central Mutual Insurance Company of Van Wert, Ohio.

The agencies recognized were Bradley Insurance Agency, 343 Washington St., Newton, and Roblin Insurance Agency, Inc., 235 Needham St., Newton Upper Falls.

Donald F. Beale represented Bradley Insurance Agency at a meeting in Puerto Rico where the recognition was announced. Irwin Roblin represented Roblin Insurance Agency, Inc.

Chapter 766—

Newton and Brookline are presently collaborating in setting up a nursery school program for children with special needs. As of January, 31 children had been found for this program.

Children who are presently in private institutions may be returning to the public schools next year as part of Chapter 766. Cullinane said that he "would guess that there might be 40 kids in outside private institutions returning to the city."

Cullinane noted that "our philosophy is not to get involved with paying for kids in private schools," but added that there are "some kids you cannot provide for" in the public schools.

Members of both the Public Health and Finance Committees questioned the rate of $50-hour which is to be paid to physicians for evaluation of students. Small remarked, however, that "if the School Department did it, they would pay the doctors $90-hour."

Ald. Susan Schur suggested that Newton doctors might volunteer their services to the city.

The Public Health Committee expressed concern over whether the requested $60,000 will be adequate for the evaluation and care which is going to be required.

Cullinane explained that a "thorough medical examination will not be necessary for all children; many can be done by school physicians." According to Peterson, there will be a full corp evaluation for children who are out of the classroom more than 25 per cent of the time.

Peterson said that physical education teachers and classroom teachers can be trained to work with children with special needs.

School Physician Dr. Stephen Frawley has reportedly been working on evaluation of children sicnce May 20, and has not been paid. Small questioned whether he can be paid out of the budget beginning July 1 for services performed in May.

How efficient is 766?—

some parts of Newton will get Waltham, Weston, Brookline, or Boston Police when they dial 911. Whalen said that these people were notified by letter that they should call 244-1212 to reach Newton Police.

Quinn stated that burglar alarms are sometimes connected to the 911 lines.

Ald. Joan Saklad questioned Whalen about when 911 will be charge free from pay phones here as it is in Connecticut. Whalen replied that this has been discussed as a goal, but that it might be dependent on getting state or federal funds. He said that it would be an "expensive proposition." Only 15 per cent of the cities and towns in Massachusetts have reportedly adopted the 911 system.

The Public Health and Safety Committee also discussed a request from the Health Commissioner for the salary of an additional sanitary inspector.

Harlan Kingsbury told the committee that increased responsibilities have created a need for an additional inspector. It was pointed out that the normal inspection staff is already down from three to two men, and that vacations will leave only one inspector during the summer.

The city is presently waiting for a new civil service list to be issued so it can fill the vacancy that now exists. There is one person on an existing list, but this person was deemed unacceptable.

The Public Health Committee expressed approval for an addition of a sanitary inspector. The amount of money needed for the new position is yet to be determined since it is not known when the addition will be paid.

Ald. Susan Schur suggested that part-time people might be hired to serve as inspectors.

Child care deduction legislation approved

Legislation that would provide a tax deduction to working parents for child care expenses incurred to allow parents to be gainfully employed was approved this week by the state House of Representatives.

State Rep. Lois Pines, sponsor of the bill, explained "a tax deduction would be permitted against Massachusetts income to a family where the parent or parents work and expenses are incurred for the care of children under age 15.

"A deduction would be available whether the parent or parents work part time or full time."

Rep. Pines also explained that a deduction would be available to the family where one spouse is physically or mentally disabled and in need of additional care in the home in order to permit the other spouse to work.

The full Massachusetts tax deduction would be available to families where the adjusted gross income does not exceed $18,000 a year. In the income range of $18,000 to $27,500, a deduction of 50 cents would be available for each $1 expended to allowed the taxpayer to be gainfully employed.

The maximum annual deduction is set at $4,800, Mrs. Pines said.

Recreation program

The Newton Lower Falls Community School will have a recreation program at the Hamilton School playground, Grove Street, Newton Lower Falls four nights a week this summer.

The program, for junior and senior high boys and girls, will begin on Monday, July 8, and run from 6:30 - 8:30 p.m. four nights a week, Monday through Thursday, until Aug. 29.

The program will be led by Donna Hopkinson. People with questions may call the Hamilton School at 527-0642.

Theatre to go on tour

The Boston Children's Theatre will go on the road this summer.

Twenty youngsters will serve as cast and crew for two productions, "Jack and the Beanstalk" and "The Three Pigs" at parks and playgrounds in the Boston area.

The cast includes Megha and Sara Conley, and David Hinchey of Newton, and Lauren Wool of Waban.

According to a Boston Children's Theatre spokesman, the productions will not be coming to Newton because no one offered to sponsor a performance.

A large part of the natural diet of the channel catfish is insects and their larvae.

Manitou Cave at Fort Payne, Ala., was once the dance hall for the area. Dancers cut their numbers in the flickering light of hundreds of candles mounted in the cave's walls.

hazy outlines of government and a desire to replace the 'Machine-Type' politician with a true representative of the people and restore the fundamental concepts of truly representative government to the hands of the people where it properly belongs.

"In my own case, it has been suggested by my opponents that since I am not a cog of any political machine, I should drop out of this fight and make way for a stereotyped candidate. This I have refused to do, and let it be known that even though it has been said that this attitude could cost me the election, I am in this race to serve the people and not the machine."

"I have been asked whether I am a liberal Democrat or a conservative Democrat," she said. "Let me clarify this if I may. I like to think the labeling of a person is as dangerous as trial without a jury."

"If you must label me, call me a liberal-conservative Democrat, and let it be known that as in my practice of law, I will represent all of my people.

"Consistent with this I have beenasked my position in certain specific areas. Let me briefly summarize some of my replies.

"On the subject of abortion, who is better qualified to speak on the subject of childbirth than a mother? One thing about this whole issue bothers me. As well as being a mother and a widow, I am a practicing attorney and my moral and legal training rebel at the generalization of the issue.

"Each case is an individual one and must be decided on its own merits and needs. This brings to mind another question asked of me—amnesty! My position is exactly the same as on abortions, and I am compelled by my legal training to state each case should be tried on its merits with judgement rendered by a jury of a man's peers.

"I have a high respect for the intelligence of the people and their decisions are good enough for me.

"Of equal importance is my position on the young of Newton. When it comes to the activities of the young, I don't imagine there is much doubt in even my opponents' minds that I am familiar with the problems facing our young in Newton today. I am, after all, a mother of five children (three boys and two girls) and I pledge all my resources to making Newton a safe, sane city in which to raise our children. After all, you could say, I have a vested interest.

"You must rememberwhen I am elected, I will be your voice. I will speak your thoughts as your representative on Beacon Hill and each vote I cast will be predicated on that fact."

Candidate loses job

The announcement by Mrs. Helen Doona that she plans to run for state representative has resulted in the loss of her job as an assistant city solicitor in Newton.

According to City Solicitor Howard Levine, Mrs. Doona did not discuss her political plans with him before making her announcement. When he learned of her intentions, he told her that she would have to choose between running for office or being a member of the Law Department.

Levine was notified on Tuesday by Mrs. Doona by certified mail that she plans to continue her candidacy for office. She refused to resign, Levine said, and her job has been terminated.

Levine gave several reasons for his refusal to allow Mrs. Doona to run for office while an assistant city solicitor.

When he took office about a year ago, he said, in effect he rehired all those then employed as assistant city solicitors and made it clear as a prior condition of employment that the Law Department was to be strictly nonpolitical. "The office must be above politics," he said.

He has also ruled that there is a conflict of interest when a member of the Law Department is involved in seeking office: "You can't be objective in writing opinions if you have political ambitions, nor can the opinions be beyond question by others if there is any hint of politics involved."

Mrs. Doona has been unavailable by telephone since last week.

To get a home improvement loan you used to fill out a long, complicated application. Spend anxious weeks waiting for an approval. Then, the minute you got your money, you had to start making big monthly payments.

But no more.

Charlestown has an easier, faster way: the Improved Home Improvement Loan.

To start with, it takes just a few minutes to fill out our loan application. Then it takes less than 24 hours to get your approval.

And instead of beginning your payments immediately, you can take up to 60 days before making your first payment.

Your monthly payments are lower, too, because Charlestown gives you more time to repay your loan than most other banks.

Before you fix up your home, see a Charlestown Personal Loan Specialist at any of our 11 convenient Greater Boston offices. Or call Carl Lind at 482-2600 today.

That way you can improve your loan before you improve your home.

Decision on Staniford St. appealed

The 3-2 decision of the Zoning Board of Appeals to deny a petition to build 140 units of low- and moderate-income housing on Staniford Street, Auburndale, has been appealed to the Department of Community Affairs Housing Appeals Committee.

Sought in the appeal is a comprehensive permit, which includes permissive use and a building permit, subject to Hatch Act (wetlands) approval, conformance to the city building code (BOCA), and improvement by the developer of the presently unimproved portion of Staniford Street.

The appeal filed with the Housing Appeals Committee by lawyer Lawrence Shubow on behalf of the developer, John R. McIsaac, characterizes the decision of the ZBA as manifesting "a continuing determination on the part of the City of Newton to resist and frustrate the policy of the Commonwealth mandating provision of a minimum supply of low and moderate income housing."

The city relied, the statement charged, "on any available pretext, whether supported by credible evidence or not, to justify the opposition" to building housing on the 10-acre site.

The ZBA decision was reached on May 31, after about two months of meetings and a public hearing.

The decision had been based on inadequate access to the rear portion of the parcel, violations of the flood-control goals of the local ordinance on floodplains, objections to the site for preservation of open space."

The McIsaac appeal also asserts that the decision ignored provisions of a local ordinance allowing roadway construction and recreational uses within a flood plain, ignored expert testimony on flood plains, rejected expert opinion that proposed traffic circulation was viable, ignored expert opinions of municipal planning officials that the site is appropriate for housing in the amount planned by the developer, and — the key issue — "failed to take account of the regional need for low and moderate income housing and to lawfully balance this need in a manner consistent with local needs" according to Chapter 774.

A Planning Department memorandum of May 26, 1974, on the Staniford Street land, said, "The City of Newton has not met any of the criteria which would make it exempt from the operation of the law" (Chapter 40B, Secs. 20-23, which is Chapter 774).

Criteria are that 10 per cent of existing housing units be for low- or moderate-income persons, that 1.5 per cent or more of buildable land be built on with low- or moderate-income housing, and that the application being considered would result within a year in the construction of housing on more than 10 acres of land or three-tenths of the buildable land, whichever is larger.

GOP declares concern for children

Recognition of the rights of children won a place in the platform declaration of the recent Republican Convention of Massachusetts thanks to the efforts of Newton delegates.

Submitted to the platform committee by Maudyea Campbell, chairman, Newton Republican City Committee, the amendment on "Children's Rights" was drafted by former Newton Alderman Harry Walen who, in 1973, served as vice-chairman of the New England Conference on Quality of Life for Youth.

The statement adopted by the Republican convention declares:

"Aware as we are that in our modern complex society the child being a pre-political individual, cannot speak here for his own interests, the Republican Party declares its concern for the child in our society - the citizen of tomorrow . . ."

The declaration proposes consideration for all matters of education, protection in divorce situations, opportunities in occupations, and recreation. Day care, health services, and other public needs are included in the statement's expression of concern for the rights of children.

Land Use

Levitt denial to be reported

The Aldermanic Land Use Committee met this week and voted on several items that should be reported to the full board at its next meeting.

Committee members voted 7-1 in favor of denying the request from developer Edward M. Levitt to build 10 townhouses on land on Florence Street. Under present zoning, Levitt could build eight duplexes on the site, but needs aldermanic permission to construct townhouses.

Neighbors have maintained they want nothing built on the site that is not in accordance with its zoning.

The aldermen on the committee also voted in favor of giving Freeport another one-year permit.

The request for a small nursery school at 44 Davis Ave., may face a charter objection from Ward 3 Ald. Richard J. Bullwinkle at the board meeting next week.

Maria Kreeft's petition for the nursery school in her home was discussed with Bullwinkle urging the request be turned down due to neighborhood opposition.

When a vote favoring denial failed in the committee, Ald. Richard J. McGrath added the conditions that not more than 10 children be permitted to attend, that not more than two fulltime staff be present and that the school would be allowed to operate for a maximum of six weeks and must end by Sept. 1.

The school's operators were planning on opening July 1, but if Bullwinkle exercises his one-man charter objection, the matter could not be voted until July 22.

Bullwinkle maintains that the board has never approved of a nursery school in a home when there has been opposition in the past.

The committee voted 5-3 in favor of the proposal as amended by McGrath.

Cramer Electronics' plan for expanding parking will also go back to the board for a vote.

Incinerator increase to be reconsidered

Ald. Richard McGrath has filed a motion for reconsideration of the increase in incinerator fees voted last week by the Board of Aldermen.

McGrath's motion will be voted on at the July 1 meeting of the Board. The increase raised the rates for outside contractors from $6 to $12 per ton with a minimum of $3 for 500 pounds or less.

He filed for recondiseration, McGrath said, becuase he found that the city's compost area has been closed to gardeners with grass clippings and leaves. They are being directed to the incinerator, he said, further adding to burning problems there.

McGrath also charged that the leafshredder at the compost area is faulty, a statement that has been denied by Street Department officials.

A spokesman for the mayor said that the composting program has "not been abandoned." The program is part of the whole solid waste problem, and what is to be done in that area will probably be decided in July, when the bids solicited by the Newton-Waltham Regional Refuse Disposal District Committee are received.

Gardeners often bring in brush and other non-compostible material, the spokesman said, and since the leaf season is over the area has been temporarily closed.

Reconsideration means that the Board will first vote on whether to reconsider and then vote on the item itself.

Quinn hopes for a safe summer

Newton Police Chief William F. Quinn has issued the following advisory message to parents and children: "School is closed, and pedestrian and play patterns will change. It is our hope that young people will continue to observe safety practices that they followed during the school year."

The Chief continued, "It makes sense to cross streets at corners or crosswalks, play at playgrounds, swim only in supervised areas and never swim alone. Bicyclists, both day and evening, should observe the rules of the road, driving a bicycle just as one would an automobile, riding on the right side of the road, stopping at all stop signals and signs, yielding the right of way to the much heavier and potentiallly dangerous cars, signaling all turns and above all, look for dangers. In addition, parents should supervise, closely, after dark riding."

The Chief concluded, "A little vigilance and a little prudence can result in a pleasant, accident free summer."

Playground season opens July 1

"Do More in '74" is the theme of a three-day orientation program beind conducte this week in preparation for the opening of the Newton Recreation Department's summer playground season.

Newton's 27 playgrounds will open July 1 for an eight week period continuing through Aug. 23. The orientation program for those who will staff Newton's recreation facilities this summer is being held at the Mason-Rice School and the Newton Centre Playground.

On Wednesday morning, after an introduction by the recreation commissioner, a game clinic was conducted by Bob Worden. "A Playground's Purpose" was explained by Ald. Terry Morris, supervisors and staff members Worden and Pat Savage. A first aid course was presented by the Newton Chapter of the American Red Cross.

Thursday's activities begin at 9 a.m., when Nick Siciliano will speak on "Motivation". At 9:30 a.m., Gail Forman will talk on "Cultural Arts". After a coffee break, a sports clinic will be held from 10:45 a.m. until noon. Speakers will include Mark Wasserman on soccer, Timoth Muranane on baseball, and Nicholas Siciliano on fitness. Lunch will be followed by a second Red Cross first aid course from 1-5 p.m.

The final day of the orientation will begin at 9 a.m. Friday, when Mrs. Robert Toher and Diane Dragoff will discuss the "Realm of Handi-Art." After a coffee break, Newton Polic Officer, Bob Braceland will speak at 11 a.m. on "A Helping Hand." From 1-2:15 p.m., the toopic will be "Sports Techniques." The speakers will be Joe Siciliano on basketball, Carol Stapleton on softball and Steve Pozzi on street hockey. The final program will begin at 2:30 p.m. This will be a district meeting during which procedures and evaluation will be discussed.

Newton's playgrounds will be open Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to noon and 1 to 4 p.m. The exceptions will be Newton Centre, Auburndale and Burr, which will be open from 9 a.m. until dusk seven days a week; the Franklin School Playground which will be open the regular daytime hours plus 6 to 9 p.m. Monday thru Saturday from 9 to noon, 1 to 4 p.m. and 6 p.m. to dusk.

District 1 in Nonantum and Newtonville is in the charge of Recreation Supervisor Fran Towle, and includes the following playgrounds: Albermarle, Boyd, Cabot, Carr, Charlesbank, Hawthorn, and Stearns. Staff members will be: Albemarle, Sandra Geller and Anthony Colella; Boyd, Amy Collins, Sheila Coffey, and Charles Chaisson, Cabot, Marily Savage, Gerald Goolkasian, Joe Banas, and Terry Bontempo; Charlesbank, Nancy Sheiman and Mitchell Baker; Hawthorn, Donna Hopkinson, Robert Hodgen, Mike Copolla; and Stearns, Pat Savage and Mark DeWolfe.

Recreation Supervisor William Barry directs District II, which includes Lyons, Burr School, Franklin, Hamilton, Warren, Wellington, John W. Weeks (West Newtoon Common), River Street and Williams. Play areas and staff members in District II will be: Auburndale, Bruce Sinofsky, Kathy Sweeney, and Diane Astone; Burr School, Christine Kelley and Terry Fitzgerald; Franklin, Richard Mehlinger nd Baverly Kandler; Hamilton, Edward Carey and Stephanie Messina; Warren, Valerie Meredith and Paul Puzzanghero; Wellington, Susanne Murphy and John Lilly; West Newton Common, Brian Valley and Kim Vigoda; and Williams, Colleen Coyle.

District III playgrounds, directed by Recreation Supervisor Robert Doherty, include Burr Park, Newton Centre, Newton Highlands and Thompsonville. Staff assignments are: Burr PArk, Barbara DePasquale, Jim McLaughlin, Marjorie Kamen, Dennis McInerney, Susan Saravis, Diane Dragoff, Bunny Aronson and Jane Steinberg. (Crafts specialists are based at Burr, but will conduct programs at other areas); Newton Centre, Bob Worden, Sandra McMillan, Steve Pozzi and Mike Butts; Newton Highlands, Ed Moan and Maureen Barry and Thompsonville, Debra Sherta and Paul Arduino.

Registrations being accepted for camps

The Newton Community Service Centers' day and kinder kamp programs are currently accepting registrations for the summer months of July and August, according to Anthony J. Bibbo, executive director.

Brochures outlining the programs are available at either the 429 Cherry St. West Newton office or at 84 Eldredge Street in Newton.

A day camp for boys and girls 6½ - 12 years of age will be headed by G. Michael Gardner. The private camp site, located at Hale Camping Reservation in Westwood, includes 30 acres of tree covered land, swimming facilities, cookout accomodations, and 300 acres of long winding nature trails.

Activity is varied with swimming (instruction and free swim), arts and crafts, hikes, sports, cookouts, boating, games and trips included. In addition, regular overnight campouts will be offered as well as other special activities.

Some youngsters may want to be involved in a special confidence-building "ropes course" which is aimed at improving coordination and agility, facilitating group involvement, and enhancing feelings of joy and trust in one's self and others.

Campers will benefit from the involvement of graduate students enrolled in the Boston College Summer School. Most of these students had extensive and varied experience working with children. There will be a camper-counselor ratio of seven (or less) to one.

Campers leave from the Country Day School of the Sacred Heart, 785 Centre Street, Newton, by bus each morning, Monday-Friday at 9 a.m. and return at approximately 4 p.m. (3 p.m. on Fridays). Children bring sandwiches and are served milk.

Kinder kamp for boys and girls 3½ - 6 years of age will be headed by Miss Bonnie Algeri. It will be located on the grounds of the Country Day School of the Sacred Heart, Newton Center.

The facilities make kinder kamp an all-weather, Monday through Friday program.

During the amcp day, children participate in many activities in assigned areas: art, swimming, games, stories, music, and most important, those activities created from the imaginations of the counselors for the campers. The children are separated according to age, into small groups with two staff members assigned to each group.

An open house will be scheduled prior to the start of the kinder kamp program.

Both camps will run for an eight-week period divided into two-week sessions, with each child obliged to enroll for at least one complete two-week session. Campers may be registered for any number of the sessions desired. Transportation will be available from designated elementary school sites.

For additional information on the camps or other offerings, people may contact the Centers at 969-2906, Monday - Friday, 9 a.m. to noon, and 1 p.m. - 4:30 p.m.

Hibernians to honor John Boyle O'Reilly

The Massachusetts men and women of the Ancient Order of Hibernians will again, honor the memoryof John Boyle O'Reilly with a graveside service on Saturday, June 28 at 10:30 a.m., in Holyhood Cemetery, Chestnut Hill.

O'Reilly, who escaped from an Australian prison, is considered to be the most outstanding Irish immigrant to come to the United States of America. He championed many unpopular causes and was a gifted orator. He was the author of many poems and became the editor of "The Pilot", which is now the oldest Catholic newspaper in the country.

State A.O.H. Cahplain, Msgr. John J. Grant, a successor as editor of "The Pilot," will celebrate the Mass and give the oration.

The arrangments committee includes past national President Walter J. O'Leary of Watertown with past national organizer John J. Devlin of West Roxbury

The Green Thumb

By GEORGE ABRAHM

CARS & PLANT GROWTH: Did you know that the automobile affects plant growth in your flower boxes, gardens or greenhouse? How? By forming ozone, a bad posion made by automobile exhaust and sunlight. Internal combustion engines of automobiles give off nitrogen oxides and unburned hydrocarbons through the tail pipe. Sunlight causes a splitting of the nitrogen oxides to form atomic oxygen, which combines with nitrogen to form the poisonous ozone (O3), which not only causes damage to poants, but also to man and animals.

This bad poison (ozone) is not restricted to main traffic areas, but is distributed into your home and garden, by air movement (wind). Depending on air speed, ozone concentration may spread eight miles or so from the highway.

We don't have information on how ozone affects people, but with plants it causes "flecking" on leaves. The flecks are dead spots in which chlorophyll has been killed off. Ozone enters the plant's leaves through gates called Stomata. When the gates (stomata) are closed (at night time or during dry conditions), no fleck injury can occur from Ozone because the pollutant can't get into the leaf.

Another type of ozone injury besides "flecking" is smaller flower size, change in flower pigmentation (coloration), reduced crop production, and altered maturity dates. One research found that blossom size on blue Lavender petunia plants was reduced by 40 per cent, and this occurs with no visible injury to the plant's leaves.

Other types of injury include bronzing, stippling, and bleaching of leafy surfaces. If close examination does not reveal the presence of these pests — mite, red spider, aphid or leaf hopper injury — then there's a good chance affected plants may be injured by ozone exposure. Ozone injury looks exactly like that of these insects.

Petunia, geraniums, morning glory, tomato, bean, squash, cucumber, pumpkin, and maple are some of the more sensitive plants.

CHECK FRUIT TREES: Some nurseries sell fruit trees with wired labels. If the wire has not been removed it can girdle a limb or trunk of tree and even kill it. Check your trees to see if any wire is girdling the trunk or branches.

GREEN THUMB CLINIC: "We cut down a walnut tree. Will it continue to poison the plants nearby, even though the tree has been cut?"

Ans: No, once the tree has been cut down, it no longer produces the poisonous Juglone secretion. Also, sawdust or wood chips from walnut will not produce Juglone.

Weddings

Chestnut Hill Country Club scene of Noble-McDonald wedding

Mrs. Edward A. McDonald

The wedding of Stephanie Daryce Noble, daughter of Mrs. Trudy C. Noble, Newton Centre, and the late Mr. Nelson B. Noble, and Edward A. McDonald, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. McDonald, Newton, was solemnized on June 9, at the Chestnut Hill Country Club. Rev. Alex Zimmer officiated at the 12 noon ceremony.

The bride wore a Priscilla gown of ivory English net and organza. Her matching lace mantilla complimented the gown. She carried a cascade of white cattleya orchids, white roses, stephanotis and starlight ivy.

Beth Noble, the bride's sister, was the maid of honor. She wore a yellow crepe Victorian gown and carried a cascade of yellow carnations and bachelor buttons. The bridesmaids, wearing yellow and white dotted swiss gowns and carrying cascades of yellow carnations, were Dorothy McDonald and Andrea Fried.

Stephen McDonald, brother of the groom, was the best man. Sharing ushering duties were Bradford Noble, Douglas Noble and Michael McDonald.

Mrs. McDonald is a graduate of Syracuse University and she is presently employed as manager of group operations with American International Travel Service. Her husband graduated from Franklin Institute and is currently employed as an electrical engineer with the Mass. Bay Transit Authority.

Following a Caribbean cruise to San Juan, St. Thomas and Nassau, the couple will reside in Dedham.

Manhattan is future home of Mr. and Mrs. Jonathan Landers

Mrs. Jonathan W. Landers

At a 2:30 p.m. ceremony on June 22, Barbara Louise Billinsky, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. John M. Billinsky, Newton Centre and Ocean Park, Maine, was married to Jonathan Winslow Landers, son of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Landers, Wakefield.

Rev. Dr. John M. Billinsky Jr., brother of the bride, and Rev. Dr. Henry C. Brooks of Andover Newton Theological School, officiated at the double ring ceremony at the First Baptist Church in Newton Centre. The bride was given in marriage by her father and the reception was held in Noyes Hall at Andover Newton Theological School.

The new Mrs. Landers was attired in a Priscilla gown of white organza detailed with Alencon lace. Her matching camelot cap held a lace trimmed illusion veil. She carried a nosegay of white sweetheart roses, stephanotis, baby's breath and a centered pink sweetheart rose.

Stephanie Burdwood, wearing a sheer yellow voile, halter gown with matching stole, both trimmed with white embroidery, was the maid of honor. She carried a nosegay of white daisies, yellow miniature carnations and baby's breath. Identically gowned and carrying the same nosegays were the bridesmaids: Sara Landers, sister of the groom; Susan Tobey; Christine Wigton; and Deborah Wilson.

John M. Landers was his son's best man. Sharing ushering duties were Philip Billinsky, the bride's brother; Robert Bardwell; Richard Malconian; David Wheeler and Ross Kimball.

The bride is a graduate of Newton South High School and Bates College. She was also a student at the Goethe Institute, Murnau, Germany. Her husband graduated from Wakefield Memorial High School and Bowdoin College. He will attend Columbia University's Graduate School of Business in New York City.

When Mr. and Mrs. Landers return from their honeymoon to Bermuda, they will live in Manhattan.

Simmons holds alumnae weekend

Minna Coffman Katz of 46 Winston Rd., Newton Centre, served as co-chairwoman of her class reunion at Simmons College's annual Alumnae Weekend recently.

More than 350 Simmons graduates attended the annual meeting of the Alumnae Association on Saturday, June 8, at which Simmons President William J. Holmes accepted on behalf of the College approximately $250,000 raised by the Alumnae Association and the reunion classes.

At the Jubilee Luncheon following the meeting, Charlotte G. Moulton, Supreme Court reporter for United Press International, received the Simmons College Alumnae Association Achievement Award.

Workshop at Lasell

Charles E. Barry, former store manager at Grover Cronin, Inc., presently professor of retailing at Lasell Junior College, Newton, will conduct a summer workshop session in personnel management on the Lasell campus, beginning July 1, and continuing through July 30.

The workshop is designed to provide opportunities for students and those presently active in personnel administration to obtain an understanding of the functions of personnel management through an exchange of concepts and ideas.

Barry has had extensive background and experience in the field of personnel administration at Grover Cronin, Inc., The Hecht Company in Washington, D.C., and at Filene's in Boston. Barry has also been an instructor at Boston University and Northeastern University.

Additional details about the workshop session may be obtained by contacting James M. Pollock, dean of academic affairs, Lasell Junior College, Newton, or by telephone at 243-2000.

Honorable mention

Jason Richard Arbeiter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Mack Arbeiter, of 99 Truman Rd., Newton Centre, has been awarded honorable mention in the 18th annual High School Chemistry Examination Contest of 1974.

This exam is given by the Northeastern Section of the American Chemical Society to five students of chemistry in each high school in Massachusetts.

Arbeiter has attended Newton South High School.

ALCOHOL PROBLEMS
A FAMILY PROBLEM . . . BY THE MILLIONS
There are now nine (9) million alcoholics in America and millions more who, being "alcohol dependent," are borderline cases. Each of these has a detrimental effect on the lives of 3 or 4 other people . . . usually members of the family.
Imagine that total if you can! Strangely, the mis-use of alcohol is America's least-understood, major health (and family) problem. Since we are a family-oriented bank, we are sponsoring a series of guidelines of the prevention, detection and solution of alcohol problems. Happily, there are some solutions . . . and millions need them . . .

Falkofs feted on 60th wedding anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Philip Falkof of Winthrop were recently honored at services at Temple Tifereth Israel of Winthrop on the occasions of their 60th wedding anniversary and the 83rd birthday of Philip Falkof. A reception was tendered by their children: Mr. and Mrs. Harold Falkof of Newton, Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Falkof of Highland Park, Ill., Mr. and Mrs. Leon Freeman of Newton and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Falkof of Randolph.

A party was given in their honor at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Freeman. They also celebrated the safe return of Myles Falkof from the Israeli Army and the graduation of Bradley Falkof from Brown University.

Their grandchildren and great-grandchildren came from Massachusetts, Connecticut, Rhode Island, Illinois, New Jersey and Israel.

Newton residents may use Babson computer

Babson College, in cooperation with the Newton Free Library, is providing the residents of Newton with free access to the college's Hewlett-Packard 2000C computer.

This program started in mid-June and will run through the month of August. A terminal, connected to the Babson computer via a telephone hookup, is located in the main library of Newton and there will be no charge for use of the system.

A selection of over 600 programs will be available to users, ranging from a special program to teach mathematics to school children, grades one through six, to prewritten programs designed to evaluage mortgage schedules, bond yields, portfolios, and perform statistical analysis. An index of programs by topic, with a description of the use of each, is provided at the library.

"There is a program for the user that will teach him the BASIC language," says Canty. "The system is designed for easy operation. People who have never used a computer before shoudl find this an exciting experience."

More information about the computer and the times it will be available may be obtained by calling the Newton Free Library.

Births

Recent births at Newton-Wellesley Hospital include the following:

Girls to:

Mr. and Mrs. Matteo Marascia, 27 Kilburn Rd., West Newton.

Dr. Mejias, an Assistant C.inical Professor of Periodontology at Tufts University School of Dental Medicine (TUSDM), was one of seven faculty members and 13 graduating studnets initiated into membership in the OKU at the recent annual meeting of TUSDM's Xi Xi chapter of the national organization.

Dr. Mejias resides at 43 Stearns Street in Newton Center.

Jobs for youths needed

The Newtoon Job Bank, established in response to requests from Newton's high school population, continues to receive raves by both youth seeking employment and adults and businesses offering jobs, according to Anthony J. Bibbo, Executive Director of the Newton Community Service Centers, Inc., administering agency.

In commenting on the program, Martin Cohen, senior counselor, stated that the success of the Newton program has become widespread throughout other communities and it is serving as a model for many cities and towns. The program is funded by the City of Newton through the Newton Youth Commission, headed by Rev. Charles Coyle, Chairman, and the Office of Human Resources, headed by Mrs. Jane Pitt. The process for the free service, according to Mr. Cohen includes the following steps:

1. Youth seeking employment fill out an application at the Job Bank office at 429 Cherry Street in West Newton.

2. Employees seeking youth, list openings via phone or in person. The Job Bank staff requests that people give at least three days notice.

3. The staff then matches the appropriate youth with the appropriate job.

Both short and long term jobs are urgently sought. Tasks may vary from housecleaning, babysitting, window washing, stock boys, pet care, delivery service store clerks, as well as numerous others.

To list a job or for additional information on the Newton Job Bank, people may phone 969-5908 Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Looking for a new twist in chocolate cakes? You'll love the one that Mrs. D.R., Walpole sent in — our thanks for this fine textured chocolate poundcake!

OLD FASHIONED CHOCOLATE POUNDCAKE

½ cup unsweetened cocoa
1 cup milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup (½ pound) margarine
2¼ cups sugar
5 eggs
3 cups all purpose flour
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon baking powder

Cream margarine until light and fluffy. Add sugar very gradually, creaming well. Beat in eggs one at a time — allow to beat for 3 minutes scraping down the sides of the bowl occasionally. Combine flour, salt, baking powder and cocoa; sift twice. Add dry ingredients alternately with milk, beating just until blended. Stir in vanilla and turn into a greased and floured 10-inch tube pan. Bake at 325 degrees for 1 hour and 40 minutes, or until a toothpick inserted comes out clean. Allow cake to cool for 15 minutes before turning out on rack. Serves 12-14.

Question: Would you have a good recipe for a Sauce Vinaigrette? — Mrs. A., Weston

Answer: Not only will we give you the Vinaigrette but also a marvelous recipe for French Potato Salad which calls for ½ cup Sauce Vinaigrette — both are from June Crosby and Ruth Bateman's "Serve It Cold!" cookbook:

SAUCE VINAIGRETTE
(French Dressing)

¾ teaspoon salt
1 clove garlic, crushed with salt (optional)
Pinch dry mustard, optional
3-4 tablespoons wine vinegar
¾ cup salad oil or olive (or a mixture of both)
Generous grinding black pepper

You may combine all ingredients and shake vigorously in jar until blended, but we like to beat it with a wire whisk to a soft creamy emulsion. The flavor seems richer, mellower. With whisk, beat salt, garlic (if used) and mustard into the vinegar, then beat in oil, in small portions, until sauce is smooth and lightly thickened. Season with pepper. Use at once or store in bottle and shake vigorously before using. Makes 1 cup.

FRENCH POTATO SALAD

(The French trick of pouring a little white wine or stock over warm potatoes before adding the dressing is a good one to know. Less oil is absorbed by potatoes, they are lighter, more flavorful.)

2 pounds small boiling potatoes
Salt
2 tablespoons dry white wine
2 tablespoons light consomme
½ cup Sauce Vinaigrette
2 teaspoons Dijon mustard
1 tablespoon chopped fresh tarragon and chervil, mixed (or 1 teaspoon dried mixed herbs)
2 tablespoons minced shallots or green onions
1 tablespoon minced parsley

Cook potatoes in boiling salted water until just tender. Drain, peel while warm and slice about ¼-inch thick. Mix wine and consomme and pour over them. Let stand until liquid is absorbed. Beat vinaigrette into mustard until smooth. Add herbs. Sprinkle shallots (or green onions), parsley and dressing over potatoes. Toss gently until mixed. Taste and adjust seasonings. Cover and chill only until flavors blend. Serve cool, but not icy, in a pretty glass bowl. Sprinkle with more parsley if you wish. Serves 4-6.

June 29 recipe contest deadline

Question: I hope you can help me. I am expecting 16 for a party on the July 4th holiday. I have all my meat recipes prepared but I do need a couple of salads. What would you suggest that would serve this large a group? Thank you for your assistance.

Answer: Following are two salads and for good measure we'll add an excellent Spinach or Broccoli and Noodle casserole. Happy 4th!

GREEN BEAN SALAD

6 pkgs frozen French style green beans
1 cup chopped onion
1 cup salad oil
½ cup vinegar
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
12 eggs, hard cooked
2 teaspoons prepared mustard
2 tablespoons lemon juice
½ cup mayonnaise or salad dressing
1 teaspoon salt
Lettuce leaves
12 slices bacon, cooked and crumbled
12 stuffed olives, chopped
1 jar (2½ oz.) tiny shrimp or 1 jar (4 oz.) pimiento

Cook beans according to package directions. Drain and place in large bowl. Stir in onions, salad oil, vinegar, salt and pepper. Chill for 2 hours. Chop eggs, add mustard, lemon juice, mayonnaise (or salad dressing) and salt. Blend and chill about 2 hours. Just before serving, drain beans. Place in bowl lined with lettuce leaves. Spread egg mixture on top. Garnish with bacon, olives and drained shrimp (or pimiento). Serves 16.

SALAD BEULAH

1½ pounds fresh spinach
4 scallions
2 tablespoons parsley
Celery greens from 2 stalks
¼ pound fresh mushrooms
1 head iceberg lettuce
Oil and vinegar dressing

Wash and de-stem spinach. Chop scallions, parsley and celery tops. Slice mushrooms. Tear lettuce. Place all ingredients in plastic bag and seal. Refrigerate. Toss with oil and vinegar dressing just before serving. Serves 16.

SPINACH OR BROCCOLI NOODLE CASSEROLE

3 pkgs. forzen chopped spinach OR 3 pkgs. frozen chopped broccoli
¾ pound wide noodles
¾ pound narrow noodles
1½ pints sour cream
¾ cup butter or margarine
Salt to taste
Lemon pepper to taste
Freshly grated Parmesan cheese

Cook vegetables and noodles separately according to package directions for minimum time. Drain. Mix together and add all other ingredients. Bake at 350 degrees for 20 minutes. Serves 16.

Kitchen shelf beauty

Perhaps it all happened back in ancient days when a young maiden, after dining on wild strawberries, gazed at her reflection in a pool and decided that the scarlet lip color enhanced her beauty. From that time on cosmetics have been a necessity for most women.

In great-grandma's day every woman had her own recipes for home-made beauty preparations and they were sensible down-to-earth concoctions. If you're anxious to cut down on your cosmetic expenses and if you can follow a recipe, you can begin making cosmetics and toiletries right in your own kitchen.

Those with skin allergies are advised to go easy on testing these back-to-nature cosmetics.

CLEANSING CREAM

½ peach washed, cubed, but not peeled
½ teaspoon ascorbic acid powder
1 tablespoon sour cream
1 tablespoon vegetable shortening

Put all ingredients into a blender and process at low speed until chopped, increase speed to liquefy (hi) and process until smooth. Smooth on face and neck and allow to remain on for 15-20 minutes; rinse off with luke warm water, followed by cold water. This treatment should cleanse and soften the skin.

PEACHES 'N CREAM MASQUE

½ peach washed, cubed but not peeled
1 egg white
2 teaspoons cream

Put all ingredients in your blender and process until chopped (low); increase speed to high and whirl until smooth. Smooth on face and allow to dry; rinse with warm water and follow with ice water. (This softens and tightens the skin.)

Eileen Ford, author of "A More Beautiful You in 21 Days" suggests a facial that will cleanse and refine pores, tighten facial muscles and stimulate circulation. Her recipe ingredients for the facial can be found in any kitchen cabinet:

"Cleanse skin first with Spry or Crisco and tissue off. Reapply and leave on skin for a few minutes. During this time try to touch your tongue to the tip of your nose 20 times. Though you will not succeed, the exercise will tighten the muscles under your chin. Tissue off second application. Use cotton pads saturated in warm water mixed with a teaspoon of vinegar to remove residue of shortening. If skin is sensitive, use warm water alone. Next apply a mask to close pores and tighten the skin. To make the mask, combine otmeal and honey into a paste and spread it on your face, or beat up one egg and let it set for 15 minutes on your face. Then rinse off with lukewarm water, followed by cool water.

While your mask is on, place over your eyelids cotton pads which have been soaked in witch hazel and wrung out.

Finally, go over your entire face with a few slices of cucumber."

Tomatoes have been suggested as a face peel. Rub ripe tomato slices into clean skin, concentrating on any areas with blackheads. After 15 minutes, rub skin gently with a washcloth. Dead skin should come off.

Strawberry-sour cream cleanser: Combine a small amount of sour cream and a few strawberries and mash. Smooth on face and allow to remain for 15 minutes. Remove with warm water, then cold.

Skim milk night cream: Mix one teaspoon skim milk and an equal part of water. Shake in small jar until you have a smooth liquid; apply and allow to dry.

If you have a dinner date and have arrived home from work exhausted, try this: shower; separate an egg — beat the egg white slightly and apply generously to the skin as a masque; let it dry and then put on another coat. Lie down on your bed and elevate your feet on your headboard (or 4 or 5 pillows); place either: used tea bags (saved in the refrigerator), cucumber slices, slices of raw potato or cotton pads soaked in witch hazel and wrung out, over closed eyelids. Rest for 25-30 minutes. Rinse off egg white and rub a thin film of cream over face to offset the masque's drying effect. (You'll feel fine!)

Watermelon is a great moisturizer — cut thin slices and cover your face with them for ½ hour. To make lip wrinkles look less conspicuous, try rubbing them with half a lemon daily, followed with a castor oil massage using your index finger to bring up the circulation. Follow this with a few wipes with an ice cube.

Dr. Irwin I. Lubowe, in The Modern Guide To Skin Care And Beauty, Dutton & Co., suggests the following as a cosmetic regimen for the middle and later years:

1. Keep the skin clean — reasonably clean is enough.
2. Cleanse with mild, superfatted or clear soap — non-detergent, or with cleansing cream or lotion; use mildly warm water and face cloth, and then cold.
3. If your skin is dry, as it may be, lubricate it with natural vegetable oils like sesame, olive, peanut, apricot kernel, safflower, or avocado oil. The drugstore has them, but so does the supermarket.
4. By day, use moisturizing cream before applying makeup.
5. At night, remove the makeup with soap, cleansing cream or mineral oil (Albolene). Then apply moisturizing and emollient creams. Leave them on all night and in most cases they will be absorbed.
6. For impurities arising on the skin due to air pollution, wash well with a good antiseptic soap.
7. It is desirable occasionally to use an astringent, such as witch hazel or diluted alcohol, to tone the skin and temporarily reduce the pores.
8. When the facial skin is exposed to the sun during the working day, use a foundation lotion or cream which contains a sunblocking agent.

Most important of all, if you're waging a war against wrinkles and aging skin beware of overexposure to the sun. For years, dermatologists have been warning people not to sunburn excessively. So be sure to wear a hat and a protective lotion to screen out harmful rays.

Food and Fashion by Ruth Lenson

Across the Kitchen Counter

Parades, fireworks, red, white and blue bunting, outdoor festivities . . . is there anyone who doesn't thrill to the celebration of July 4th!

Yes, it could be the cook who is banished from the crowd and has to tend her pots and pans especially when unexpected company drops by and the stores are not open. Plan your cooking in advance and prepare extras so that the fear of running short won't spoil your holiday.

Weather permitting, you will most likely enjoy a barbeque or picnic. For the pack-and-carry menu, remember the basic rules of safety. Avoid perishable foods, carry insulated containers, be sure to keep hot foods really hot and cold foods really cold. Never allow food to sit around unrefrigerated after the picnic meal.

Your Independence Day menu could include a patriotic red, white and blue molded salad. Fixed plain or fancy, hot dogs are not only tasty but when eaten right from the grill smothered in relish they become a gustatory delight.

If you want to surprise your family and guests, put together a delicious Swiss Onion Pie the day before the holiday and bake it just before leaving for your picnic or serving your backyard barbecue. (Use an insulated container to transport this dish.)

For dessert a melange of fresh fruits with Pineapple-Lemon dressing. The flavorful dressing is made with fruit juice and peanut oil laced with cinnamon and cloves. If you would like an interesting 12-page booklet with 38 recipes entitled, "Sensational Salads and Masterful Dressings," send your name and address to: "Planters Peanut Oil, P.O. Box 2695, Grand Central Station, New York, N.Y. 10017.

RED, WHITE AND BLUE SALAD

2 envelopes (2 tablespoons) unflavored gelatin
one-third cup sugar
dash of salt
2 cups milk
1¼ cups dry curd cottage cheese
1 can (8 oz.) crushed pineapple in unsweetened juice
1 teaspoon lemon rind
1 cup sliced strawberries
½ cup blueberries (thawed, if frozen)

Combine gelatin, sugar and salt. Add one-half cup of the milk. Let stand until gelatin is softened. Place over low heat, stirring constantly, until gelatin is dissolved. Add remaining one and one-half cups milk. Add cottage cheese, pineapple and its liquid and lemon rind. Arrange a few of the strawberries and blueberries in bottom of 6-cup mold. Carefully spoon one cup of the gelatin mixture over fruit. Chill until almost firm but not quite set. Fold in remaining gelatin mixture. Spoon mixture into mold. Chill until firm. Serves 8-10.

OVEN BARBECUED CHICKEN

1 broiler fryer cut up or desired chicken parts
¼ cup butter or margarine, melted salt and pepper
1 tablespoon lemon juice
½ cup salad dressing
2 tablespoons honey
1 teaspoon paprika
1 teaspoon onion powder
½ teaspoon garlic powder

Combine barbecue sauce ingredients in a bowl; coat chicken parts with mixture and place in baking pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 1 hour. (This recipe may be doubled or tripled).

It doesn't have to be "extra-fancy" . . . hamburgers and frankfurters have a special taste when brushed with Basic Barbecue Sauce. Brush each hamburger and frankfurter with about 1 tablespoon sauce two minutes before the end of the cooking time.

BASIC BARBECUE SAUCE

1 cup molasses
1 cup prepared mustard
1 cup vinegar

Combine molasses and mustard; stir to mix thoroughly. Stir in vinegar a little at a time. Keep in glass jar with screw-type top and refrigerate. Yields 3 cups.

BARBECUED SPARERIBS

5 to 6 pounds (2 racks) spareribs
salt
1 lemon, sliced thin
¾ cup BASIC BARBECUE SAUCE
1 teaspoon chili powder
1 tablespoon celery seed
2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce
½ cup catsup

Place spareribs in shallow roasting pan, meat side up. Sprinkle with salt. Top with lemon slices. Bake in preheated 350 degree oven for 1 hour. Remove from oven. Pour off fat. Refrigerate ribs until ready to grill. When ready, combine Basic Barbecue Sauce with remaining ingredients. Place ribs on grill 6 to 8 inches from heat, and grill for 15 minutes; turn them over and brush with barbecue sauce mixture. Cook 15 more minutes, brushing with sauce frequently, until crisply brown. Makes 5-6 servings.

LEMON CREAM CHEESERS
(Lemon flavored cheese cake in a bar cookie)

½ cup butter or margarine
1¼ cups all purpose flour
½ cup quick cooking rolled oats
½ cup packed brown sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
1 pkg. (8 oz.) soft cream cheese
one-third cup sugar
1 egg
2 teaspoons grated lemon rind
1 tablespoon lemon juice
¼ cup milk

Combine first 5 ingredients; mix until crumbly. Press half of mixture into bottom of ungreased 8 or 9-inch square pan. Combine remaining ingredients; beat until smooth and creamy. Pour over crust. Top with remaining crumb mixture. Bake at 350 degrees for 30-35 minutes. Cool; cut into bars. Refrigerate.

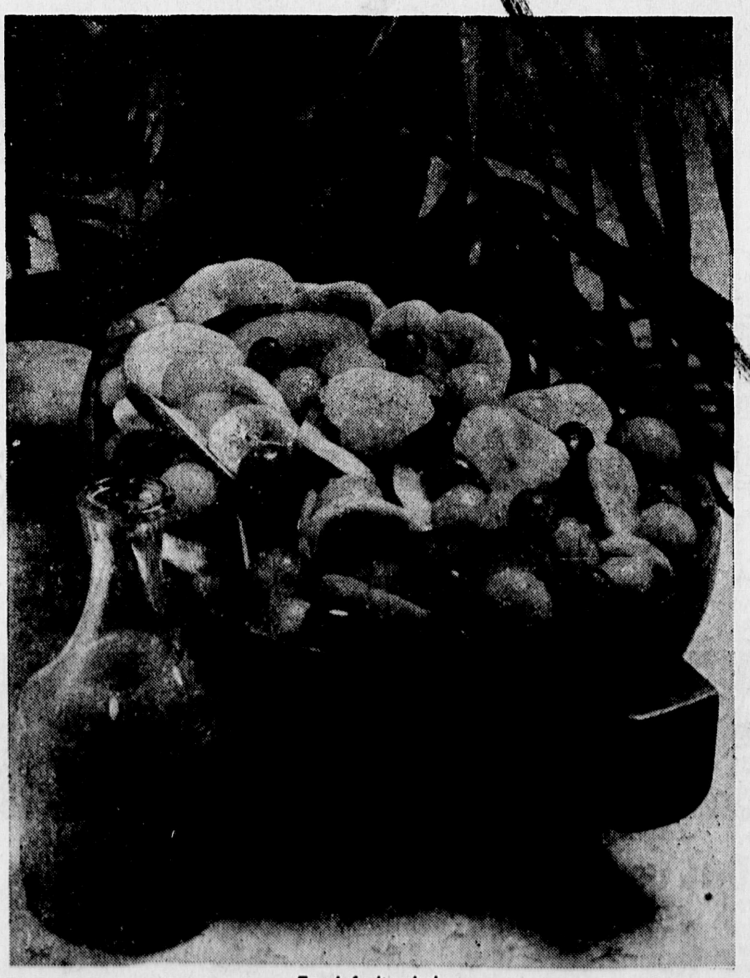
TROPICAL FRUIT SALAD WITH PINEAPPLE-LEMON DRESSING

In a large bowl combine a variety of luscious fruits available—pineapple chunks, honeydew or canteloupe melons, grapes, bananas, peaches, etc. Serve chilled with following dressing:

PINEAPPLE-LEMON DRESSING

½ cup unsweetened pineapple juice
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 teaspoon grated lemon peel
1 teaspoon sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon ground cinnamon
⅛ teaspoon ground cloves
½ cup peanut oil

Combine all ingredients in jar with tight-fitting lid. Shake vigorously. Serve over fresh fruit salad. Makes 1 cup.



Fresh fruit salad

You'd never know it's in the heart of Brookline.

Few other Brookline residences can offer such privacy. 70/80 Park luxury condominiums are secluded on their own 2½ acres. Beautifully landscaped and adjacent to Griggs Park.

From the parkland vista of your condominium, you'll never know you're in the heart of Brookline. Yet the elegant shops, MBTA into Boston, and convenience stores are all just a short walk away at Coolidge Corner.

A few one, two and three bedroom apartments are still available, most with balconies. And all with huge 600 square foot living rooms, underground parking, and 24 hour security.

Jehovah's Witnesses to gather

Jehovah's Witnesses will assemble this summer at 85 "divine purpose" district conventions throughout the United States and Canda. Additional assemblies will be held world-wide.

J. Montopoli, presiding overseer of the Newton Congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses, said the conventions are designed to keep delegates spiritually enlightened concerning the times in which we live.

The 100 representatives from Newton are looking forward with enthusiasm to the convention at the Narragansett Park Race Track in Pawtucket, R.I.

"We will be among the nearly one million persons that are expected to attend these conventions during June, July and August.," Montopoli said.

In April, 1776, North Carolina became the first colony to empower its delegates to the Continental Congress to vote for a Declaration of Independence from Great Britain.

Sister Hennessey appointed director of Theological Institute

Sister Mary Hennessey, R.C., a member of the Religious of the Cenacle, has been appointed director of the Boston Theological Institute (B.T.I.), an ecumencial cluster of eight Catholic and Protestant Theological faculties in the Boston area.

During the past year Sister Hennessey has been acting director of the B.T.I. while a national search was carried on for a successor to the Institute's first director, Walter D. Wagoner, who retired last June.

Sister Hennessey, a graduate of Radcliffe College, ahs received an M.A. in Counselling Psychology at Loyola University in Chicago and has also pursued graduate studies in religious education and theology at Fordham, Catholic University, and in Rome.

The new director served for some time as education coordinator of three provinces of the Religious of the Cenacle and as their directress of juniors. More recently she has been a chaplain at Bridgewater State College and a lecturer at St. John's Seminary, Brighton. Before her appointment as acting director of the B.T.I., she served as the Institute's director of field education.

Announcement of the appointment was made by Rev. Robert J. Banks, rector of St. John's Seminary. Fr. Banks said, "The last few years have been difficult ones for theological clusters, the B.T.I. included. But after a thorough self-study just completed, the B.T.I. schools have re-affirmed their original deidcation to ecumenical and educational cooperation. We are confident that Sister Hennessey has the experience and personal gifts needed to push our already extensive cooperation into newer and more difficult areas."

In accepting the appointment, Sister Hennessey said, "I'm very enthusiastic about the B.T.I. and its increasing ability to serve. The resources of its eight member schools make it one of the most significant centers of theological education in the country, if not the world. And after this recent self-study, I sense new energy and insights for the years ahead."

The Boston Theological Institute includes Andover-Newton Theological School, Boston College, Boston University School of Theology, Episcopal Divinity School, Gordon-Conwell Theological Seminary, Harvard Divinity School, St. John's Seminary, and Weston College.

One of the most active theological consortia in the U.S., the Institute offers some 700 courses to more than 2400 students.

The central offices of the Boston Theological Institute are newly located on the campus of Andover Newton Theological School in Newton.

Bow riding is a killer

By MARK BOURBEAU
Coast Guard Journalist

The scene: A family out for a happy day's voyage on their cabin cruiser. As they course through the water, the three children climb up on the bow, where the sea spray dashes over them. It's exciting to sit up there, legs dangling, with the whole, endless ocean rushing to meet them. They laught, and shout to their mother behind the wheel, and their father laying out lunch on the stern. Hot dogs and watermellon! A whole coolerful of lemonade! What a wonderful day!

For years grief-stricken parents asked themselves countless times the unanswerable question, "Why?" To them, the "How" never mattered. Whether it was a wave a little larger than the rest, or a slip caused by childish exhuberance, it didn't matter to them. The result was still the same. Their eight year old son had fallen right beneath the bows of their boat, and although the mother had cut the engine instantly, somewhere beneath that boat he'd died.

Bow riding. Thousands of boaters each year engage in this nautical Russian roulette. To adults who do it it's exciting, and if the danger is apparent to any of them, well, a little danger makes it more exciting, doesn't it? Those people are fools.

Far worse, most bow riders are children. They're innocent. They don't know any better. But the parents who casually watch their children bow ride are criminally negligent.

Why is bow riding so dangerous? First, the most stable small boat in the world is still as impotent as a cork to resist the ever changing action of wind and wave. An unexpected jar, a sudden bounce can come from any quarter, at any time. Secondly, most small boats have no railings or hangrips to hand onto on the bow. Third, if a bow rider does fall overboard, he or she is in the worst possible position directly beneath several tons of moving boat, right in the way of the thrashing screw. Even if the boat's operator does see the person go over, it would take a miracle for him or her to be able to stop or turn the boat away in time.

Besides being deadly and foothardy (as if that isn't enough), bow riding can be very coastly financially, too. According to Commander Howard M. Viellette, Chief of the Boating Safety Division of the First Coast Guard District, if the Coast Guard catches an operator permitting bow riding, the operator will be fined up to $500.00. And with the Coast Guard's Boating Safety Detachments patrolling all over the New England coast, there's a very good chance of being caught.

Do yourself a favor. Don't permit bow riding on your boat. Be insistent. Your friends and family might not thank you, but at least they'll probably return from your cruise alive and in one piece, and you win't have your conscience ruining your sleep. And you won't have to face a $500.00 fine.

Now, go have a safe and happy summer. Safe Boating is No Accident.

Wertheim Collection at Fogg Museum

The Maurice Wertheim collection of 38 paitings, drawings, and sculptures from the School of Paris returns to the Fogg this summer, through September 3.

Matisse, Bonnard, Cezanne, Toulouse-Lautrec, Rousseau, Seurat, Van Gogh, Renoir, and Picasso are among the painters represented in the collection. Sculptures include works by Maillol, Degas and Despiau.

The Wertheim Collection was bequeathed to the Museum on Wertheim's death in 1951, on the condition that it remain in the possession of his widow durring her lifetime. Mrs. Wertheim has circulated the works to the Fogg and other museums during many summers since that time. It appeared at the Fogg last year as well.

Summer Triangle of stars at Charles Hayden Planetarium

Summer skywatchers this year will be treated to the rare sight of an occultation of Venus, as well as annual displays of meteor showers, nebulae, and the Summer Triangle of stars.

At the Charles Hayden Planetarium at Boston's Museum of Science, a one-week-only program, "Stars of Summer," will tell Museum visitors when and where to look to take in these celestial events. The program will be presented June 18 to 24 every day and on Friday evenings. Admission is 50 cents in addition to Museum admission.

Summer begins June 21, when the sun reaches its highest point in the sky. It is during this month that we enjoy the longest days, with about fifteen hours of daylight.

The month of July will feature two impressive celestial events. On the morning of July 17, the moon the second brightest object in the sky, will pass in front of Venus, the third brightest object, blocking it from view for 51 minutes. This rare event will begin 22 minutes before sunrise, at 4:57 a.m., and continue until 5:48 a.m., when Venus reappears on the other side of the moon. As the moon corsses Venus, the planet will disappear behind the upper left illuminated edge of the moon and pop out again on the upper right edge of the darkened moon.

Weather permitting, this unusual event will be visible to the naked eye. However, the Hayden Planetarium recommends the use of binoculars or a telescope, and advises that even though sunrise will take place before Venus reappears, the planet is a bright enough object to be discerned in the daylight sky.

One of two major meteor showers will light the sky in July. The Delta Aquarids, at their peak on the morning of July 29 will appear t radiate bright meteors and some fireballs from the constellation of Aquarius. In August, the famous Perseids meteor shower will streak across the sky with 50 or 60 meteors perhour, reaching its most impressive point during the early hours of August 12.

Also highlighting the summer sky will be several nebulae, including the North America Nebula, which combines bright and dark nebulae in the shape of the continent of North America; and the Lagoon Nebula, which features bright and dark Nebulae and a star cluster. The Summer Triangle of stars, made up of Vega, Deneb, and Altair, glows in the sky as a signpost for locating other highlights of the season.

The Planetarium program, "Stars of Summer," will reproduce many of these celestial events, and feature an imaginary trip to the Southern Hemisphere for a look at the Southern Cross, Alpha Centauri (the closest star to the sun), and a variety of constellations not visible from the Northern Hemisphere.

Almys, opening in Walpole in business before Civil War

Almys, the exciting, new department store opening in August at the Walpole Mall, Route 1 at Coney street, Walpole, has a history that goes back to three years before the first shot of the Civil War was fired at Fort Sumter, when James Fergus Almy started a new business in Salem on Essex street.

By 1861, his store prospering, Almys not only expanded into new quarters; but acquired a partner, Walter K. Bigelow, who had been with the firm from the beginning. A few years later, Calvin R. Washburn joined the organization also as a partner. The firm became Almy, Bigelow and Washburn . . . though popular usage generally shortens this to simply "Almys".

At the turn of the century, Almy's was a flourishing business. It became the first store in Salem to use plate glass show windows, first to install a cash carrier system, first to install a passenger elevator, first to afford rest room facilities, first to provide a store ventilating system, and first to inaugurate the department store idea in Essex County.

An interesting side light to Almys history is the fact that W.T. Grant, founder of the nation-wide chain, started his career in Almys as a stock boy. When he was 30 years old, Almy, Bigelow & Washburn helped start him in his own business with a loan.

Now there are twelve Almy stores; Almys Walpole being the newest. Other Almy stores are located in Salem, Beverly, Hanover, Danvers, Revere, Burlington, Methuen, Cambridge, Brockton, Hadley, Nashua, N.H.

Observatories open to public this summer

The roof-top telescopes of the Harvard and Smithsonian Observatories will be made available to the public again this summer for Friday night observing sessions.

Beginning last Friday and continuing every Friday evening through August 30, weather permitting, the two observatories will sponsor informal astronomical viewing on the roof of the Center for Astrophysics, 60 Garden Street, Cambridge.

The observing sessions will begin at dusk and continue until approximately 11 p.m. Telescopes will be provided and professional astronomers will be on hand to give instruction and advice. Amateur astronomers are invited to bring their own instruments, if they desire.

The observatory complex can be reached by public transportation from Harvard Square via Concord Avenue. Entrance to the roof will be through the door at the base of the large dome.

Inclement weather or overcast skies at sunset will automatically mean a cancellation of that evening's activities. Admission is free, but children under 12 should be accomapnied by an adult.

Information from VA

Q — Am I eligible for GI Bill education benefits from the Veterans Administration for service in the Army from 1951 to 1954?

A — No. Education benefits for veterans discharged before February 1, 1955, has expired.

Q — As a widow drawing pension from the Veterans Administration, will recently awarded benefits from State Welfare reduce my pension?

A — No. This type of assistance from public or welfare organizations is not considered income for pension purposes.

Q — Are children of deceased veterans eligible for GI home loans from the Veterans Administration?

A — No. While widows of servicemen killed during active duty or widows of veterans who died from service connected disabilities are eligible for this benefit, children are not.

Newton loses soccer opener

By TOM GRAVES

The Newton Football Club, defending champion in the Eastern Mass. Twilight Soccer League, was upset by Concord, 1 to 0, in its opening game Monday night.

Newton approached its opener with a 2-0-1 exhibition record, which included a 4-0 pre-season victory over Concord.

A first half goal held up for Concord as goalie Carl Vercollone, ticket manager for the Boston Minutemen, stopped 14 Newton shots. Newton goalie Gary McGrath made nine saves, including a stop of a Concord penalty shot.

Newton player-coach Skip Stearns explained that "we went into the game a bit cocky after our 4-0 exhibition win and lost to a team which was apparently very eager and could get themselves up for the game."

Stearns added that "we're playing a number of new players and we have not played together long enough to be able to work the ball well."

Newton is in Division I West of the 32-team Eastern Mass. Twilight Soccer League. Newton finished second in the Division I regular season last year, but defeated Billerica in a play-off final for the league championship. The championship was decided by corner kicks after Newton and Billerica played to a scoreless tie.

Stearns, who is in his second year as coach of the team, was a standout for Newton High in the late 1960's under Gordon Elliot. Stearns became the second player in league history last year to score 20 goals in a season.

Stearns captained a league all-star team last summer which played a Brazilian all-star team to a scoreless tie before a Boston Astros game. Other Newton all-stars, chosen by the league's board of directors, included McGrath, and defenseman Barry Harsip and Fred Whoriskey.

Harsip was a captain of the soccer team at Brandeis, and was named an all-New England player. He graduated Brandeis in 1973.

A swift and aggressive competitor, Harsip was a star for Newton High before graduating in 1969.

McGrath also attended Brandeis and was named an all-New England goalie.

Whoriskey will be a junior at Brown next year and played soccer at Newton High under present coach Mike Buzzi.

A third former Brandeis player on the Newton team is defenseman Dave Goodman. A q974 Brandeis graduate, Goodman was presented the Leif Ottessen Award for sportsmanship this spring by Brandeis soccer coach Mike Coven. Goodman graduated from Newton High in 1970.

Defenseman Harry Nesbitt also played soccer for Newton High and graduated in 1968. He is also a graduate of the University of Vermont.

Forward Jake Broderick scored four goals for Newton last year. He is a graduate of Newton High and Harvard.

Other team members include Alf Wilson, a teacher at Meadowbrook Junior High, Italian born Sid Mazzola, and goalie Steve Cohen. Wilson, a forward, is a native of England.

Mazzola has formerly played for Sulmona in the Mass. Soccer League and the Newton Soccer Club in the New England Soccer League.

Abdel Berrada of Casablanca, Morrocco will play forward for Newton. Barrada has had semi-pro experience in France and Morrocco. Steve Hines, a halfback at Harvard, will also play forward.

Willie Thibodeau, an all-star last year while representing Billerica, has also been added to the Newton roster. Thibodeau has played for Babson College.

Newton's home opener will be against Lincoln-Sudbury on Monday, July 1 at Allison Field. According to Stearns, Lincoln-Sudbury was the only team to defeat Newton last year.

Stearns noted that "the Recreation Department and Jack Penney have been helpful in establishing ourselves here." The Newton Football Club did not have a Newton home field in its first year, in 1972.

Special Olympics Some 150 children from all over Massachusetts participated in a Special Olympics earlier this month at Angier School. The program was run by the Hyde and Angier Schools and Helping Hands, an outreach program to retarded children. (Lupo photo).

CYO golf tourney July 22-26

Steve Condon of Newton, 1973 New England CYO golf champion, heads the list of early entries for the 35th annual CYO Archdiocesan tournament, which will be held Monday, July 2 through Friday, July 26 at Ponkapoag Golf Course, Canton.

Condon plays regularly at Riverside in Weston and has been club champion there for three years.

Defending Senior Division champion in the CYO, which annually attracts one of the largest and most impressive fields of young golfers in the state, is Bruce Douglas of Stoughton.

The Intermediate Division defender is Joe Miller of Lowell, who plays out of Longmeadow and Turll Brook. Dave Lane, Chelmsford, is the Junior defender, and last year's winner in the new Cadet Division was Nick Roberts, Cohasset.

Steve O'Kane of Waltham was last year's Senior Division runner-up.

Medal play for Seniors and Juniors will take place Monday, July 22; for Intermediates and Cadets Tuesday, July 23.

The size of the field makes it necessary to spread medal play over the two-day span.

Senior entries must be under 26 on Jan. 1, 1974; Intermediates under 19; Juniors under 16, Cadets under 14.

Deadline for applications is July 12. Applications may be obtained by calling CYO Headquarters, 472-0333.

Weeks, Meadowbrook tie for tennis crown

Weeks Junior High School and Meadowbrook Junior High School ended the girls' tennis season in a tie for first place for the city championship.

Both teams had a 5-1 record, Meadowbrook losing to Weeks once and Weeks losing once to Meadowbrook. Because of rain outs, the tie was not broken. The championship teams included:

Weeks — Judy Berman, coach; Wendy Shahon, Ester Shir, Susan McLaughlin, Ellen Corelitz, singles; Judy Seltzer, Buthaina Shukri, Kathy McCallion, Wendy Silin, Debbie Spielman, Debbie Seltzer, doubles; Kim Hyland, Debbie Robbins, alternates.

Meadowbrook — Chris Little, coach; Wendy Markoff, Judy Elovitz, Rony Sebok, Margie Stein, singles; Lisa Shuster, Jo Anne Worther, Susan Steinberg, Betsy Young, Laurie Jackson, Kiki Farrish, doubles; amy Ellis, alternate.

Basketball camp to be held at Boston College

Boston College Coach Bob Zuffelato's annual Metro-Boston Basketball Day Camp will be held this year at Boston College's Roberts Center Gym during the weeks of Aug. 5-9 and Aug. 12-16.

Campers may attend either one or two weeks. All interested young men between the ages of nine - 17 may call the Boston College basketball office at 965-2223 or 969-0100, ext. 384 or 389. People may also write Zuffelato in care of the Boston College athletic department, Roberts Center, Chestnut Hill, Mass., 02167.

This year's camp will feature Jimmie O'Brien, former Boston College player now with the San Diego Conquistadors. Also featured will be head coaches from the East, including Frank Layden of Niagara, Gerry Friel of New Hampshire, and Howie Landa of Mercer Community College. Landa is a three-time winner of the Junior College "coach of the year" award. A special feature will be an appearance of Hubie Jones, assistant coach of the Milwaukee Bucks this past season.

The cost of the camp is $60 per week. The fee includes insurance, hot lunches, and a notebook. A $25 deposit is due necessary upon application with the balance due at registration.

Campers will be instructed on how to improve their individual skills in shooting, dribbling, passing, and pivot moves. This will be done through on-the-court teaching, lectures, movies, and video tape. Campers will participate in league play after being placed according to size, age, and individual ability.

Each camper must furnish basketball sneakers, shorts, socks, supporters, and towels. The MBTA and car pools are available as transportation to the camp.

Applications may be picked up or mailed from Roberts Center, either from the basketball office or the main athletic office.

The camp will run daily from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

University Bank tops Bell Telephone, 18-6

University Bank AND Trust Company used strong hitting and good fielding to defeat Bell Telephone, 18 to 6, in a Newton Recreation Department Women's Twi-League softball game last week.

Theo Neal led the Bank team with a booming three-run homer and a double. Katie Haywood knocked in three runs with a triple to deep left field.

Patty Ryan, Jeanne Lunney, and Sue Martin had solid hits for Bell Telephone.

In ohter Wednesday night league action, they Why Nots defeated the Delights, 19-6.

August 25 has been set aside by the Twi-Light League for the annual Jimmy Fund Benefit Game with the Newton Suburban Girls' team. In 1973, with a crowd of some 100 fans, the game produced over $60 for the Jimmy Fund.

Named to U.S. rowing team

Betsy Hochberg of Newton has been named a member of the United States rowing team and will represent the United States in the women's open four event at the World Championships to be held in Lucerne, Switzerland, Aug. 28 ; Sept. 8.

Ms. Hochberg earned a berth on the U.S. team as a ember f the Eoston University crew that won the event at the nationals June 14-16 in California.

More than 17 nations are expected to send women's crews to compete in the six events at Lucerne.

Ms. Hochberg has been rowing for a year. She is the daughter of Alvin and Estelle Hochberg.

Commentary by Bruce Cornblatt

Team tennis is doomed to fail

Even though their season is only about one-fourth completed, I think it is time to assess the potential of world team tennis. I was going to wait for a while but as I was watching a World Team Tennis match on the tube with Bill Cosby as commentator, I decided I had had enough. Never have so many, written so much, about so little.

At the outset, let it be known that I love tennis. I have played it since I was ten and have gone to as many professional tournaments as I could afford. Although I am no expert, I do have some knowledge about the sport and have a great appreciation for its strengths. It is for this reason that I am also sensitive to its weaknesses. The W.T.T. is so laden with weaknesses that analyzing its future is like deciding if this is the year for Harold Stassen. However, since team tennis does get so much publicity, let us take a close look at its potential (or lack of it).

Firstly, there are some good aspects to the new format. It does allow tennis fans to see players like John Newcombe, Tom Okker, Billie Jean King and Evonne Goolagong for more than just the occasional tournament. Additionally, by allowing fans to cheer and boo, team tennis makes the sport more appealing to the masses. The criticism by some players that the crowd noise disrupts their concentration is ridiculous. How about basketball players who must shoot free throws or baseball pitchers in tense situations - do they concentrate any less?

I think that above covers the strengths of the W.T.T. As to its weaknesses, let's begin with the most glaring ones. The W.T.T. claims it has most of the class tennis players in the world. That claim is, at best, questionable. Team tennis is missing players like Stan Smith, Rod Laver, Arthur Ashe, Ilie Nastase, Chris Evert and Margaret Court. These players are not what one would call "hackers."

It is difficult to take this format seriously without these quality players. Besides, the W.T.T. is having enough trouble getting the players they do have to show up.

If you haven't heard about the missing player incidents, let me give you the bare essentials. The Pittsburgh Triangles - (That's another thing - those names are just insufferable) were coming to Boston and the papers were promoting the appearance of Evonne Goolagong, a superb women tennis player. One problem arose - Evonne Goolagong never showed up. Jimmy Connors followed up Evonne's ghostly appearance with one of his own. Baltimore came to town headlining Jimmy Connors. The fans were left to assume that Connors was good - he didn't show up either. Isn't that a class organization? What a thrill it must have been for the people who spent five or six dollars expecting these players and sitting there while some second-rate players took their place. The thrill would be much like paying five dollars to see "The Sting" - and then findout out that Paul Newman and Robert Redford were not going to appear that night - and that Allen Luden and Durward Kirby were going to take their place.

These weaknesses, however, are not the real root of the W.T.T. problem for survival. The reason team tennis will ultimately die is a fundamental one - tennis is simply an individual sport. Its appeal lies in the singular performances of its players. Anyone who loves tennis will tell you about their favorite five-set match between John Newcombe and Stan Smith - or that three and a half marathon between Arthur Ashe and Rod Laver. These matches were memorable because they were man vs. man, with nothing to divert them or the fans from the quality of their skill. That is what tennis is all about. It does not lend itself to a team format. Look at other individual sports.

Imagine the tension of a bowling tournament - or the excitement of following a golf team. You may now have some sense of what it is like sitting through two and a half hours of team tennis.

Let us not, however, weep over the imminent demise of world team tennis. I, for one, am glad it is doomed to fail. Why did they have to make tennis a team sport anyway? Tennis was one of the few sports which retained some dignity - a classy game that aroused the spectator's aesthetic appetite without appealing to violence. Why was it necessary to organize a sport whose singular charm and grace was its lack of team organization? Couldn't we have at least one sport where the fans do not have to be bloodthirsty to enjoy it? There are, of course, those who swear by the W.T.T. and attend every match. Their only problem is where to park their Edsel.

A DIFFERENT LIBRA

Q. I find your column quite interesting. Eventually I would like to learn about how the planets and stars affect our characters and lives. My Sign is Libra, I was born October 2, 1955 between 12:45 and 1:00 p.m. in Boston, Mass. Please tell me about myself and my future, especially with regard to career plans. Thank you and keep up the good work.

E.W.

A. There are two schools of thought as to whether the planets actually affect our character and lives or whether they are synchronous, that is exist side by side without one necessarily affecting the other.

Your Sun Sign is Libra but your Moon Sign is Aries and your Ascendent (Sign) is Sagittarius indicating quite a unique Libra. Indicating an instinctive desire to be far more independent than Libra is generally believed to be. Libra is supposedly the Sign indicating cooperation yet you are apt to find it difficult to cooperate with others since you desire to be free from their influence.

You are likely to do well in a career where you can work alone such as an artist, musician or a craft requiring special individual skill which can be performed without help of others. You best bet would be to learn to sacrifice some of your independence and desire for freedom of action so that you can be more cooperative.

You are sensitive to all forms of vibration; sight, tastes, smells, hearing and touch and you have a desire to express what you feel that is good and beautiful. For this reason you could do well developing your potential in music, poetry, etc.

You can be highly romantic and although you need companionship you should be careful or you may atrract a rather strange companion. You may get involved in a regrettable relationship if you are not discriminating.

For questions to be answered through this column, mail the year, month, day of the month, city of birth, time of day if known and question to Ask Oscar, Box 114, Canton, Mass. 02021. Please sign your name which will not be published. Selected questions can only be answered through this column.

Need volunteers for lung research

The Norfolk County-Newton Lung Association is sponsoring a research project designed to find an easier way to discover lung disease in its early stages. Over 200 volunteers are needed to participate in these free-of-charge physical examinations, including chest x-rays and pulmonary function tests.

Persons need not have a lung illness in order to sgin-up for the project. However, the volunteer's personal physician will be notified of their partient's participation in the program.

The tests and examination will be administered at the Norfolk County Hospital in Braintree. At least two visits will be required, lasting no more than two hours each. Convenient evening and weekend appointments may be arranged.

Persons living with the Norfolk County- Newton area, including Holliston, Natick and Sherborn, are invited to contact the Christmas Seal Agency at 326-4081 or Box 306, 745 High Street, Westwood, MA 02090, to find out more about the project.

Lawn watering economy

By the time you are seventy years old, if you're an average American, you will have used 26 million tons of water. Along with all our other energy problems, the diminishing quantity and quality of water is becoming an increasing concern.

Because all the products with which they work depend on a proper use of water, the people of the American Assn. of Nurserymen have a great interest in providing practical instructions for its best application and preservation.

Most people are more likely to overwater their trees, plants, shrubs and grass than to provide insufficient moisture. The people of the nursery industry advocate thorough watering when it is needed, rather than frequent limited watering. This is much better for the plant, less costly, too—and saves water. The simplest way to tell when water is needed is to examine the soil at a depth of several inches. If it seems dry at that point, put on water. If it is even slightly moist, wait.

The people of the nursery industry make another point. Water from your property travels eventually, in one way or another, to our rivers and streams and carries along with it soil and sediment from your land to add to the water problem. You can prevent this from happening by planting grass or attractive groundcovers on any sloping area from which water will be running off.

If our water is an endangered resource, as the ecologists say, steps such as these taken by every individual will be a long-term investment.

loan fund at Northeastern Univ.

A gift of $100,000 from The Stop & Shop Foundation for the establishment of a student loan fund at Northeastern University was announced jointly today by Northeastern and Stop & Shop.

The gift recognizes the contribution, in human terms, made through the years by Northeastern to Stop & Shop, which counts more than 120 Northeastern men and women in its executive ranks, seven of them vice-presidents.

In his remarks at a reception in the Carl S. Ell Stucent Center Monday evening, President Avram J. Goldberg of Stop & Shop noted that many Stop & Shop people had begun their association with the Company while enrolled in Northeastern's internationally known co-operative education program.

"This gift," said Goldberg, "is a meaningful expression of the high regard we have for those men and women who have come to us from Northeastern and are making such an important contribution to The Stop & Shop Companies."

Goldberg noted that Albert S. Frager, Stop & Shop's chief financial officer is a Northeastern man, as are Vice Presidents Harold E. Fine, Engineering & Construction; C. Robert Peacock, Bradlees Operations & Accounting; Arthur S. Robbins, Accounting; Richard Shuman, Bradless Sales Promotion; Bernard Solomon, Civic, Government and Community Affairs, and Richard F. Spears, Administration.

In accepting the gift, Northeastern President D. RAsa S. Knowles said:

"The University manifests the excellent relationships which Northeastern has had with Stop & Shop over many years.

"Stop & Shop is one of Northeastern's largest co-op employers and many of the full-time employes are Northeastern graduates. It is for this reason that the gift is even more meaningful.

"Stop & Shop, one of the nation's largest food chains and one of the largest economic enterprises in this part of the country, has always been a good corporate citizen. This is just another indication of its good corporate citizenship."

CPAs offer tips to retirees

Mass. Society Certified Public Accountants

Recent increases in Social Security benefits now tied to the cost of living, plus Congressional action to strengthen and protect private pension plans, have improved the outlook for America's elderly.

But in spite of the improvements, relatively few elderly people are so well fixed financially they do not have to watch their pennies.

To help them, the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants assigned a panel of CPAs to compile the various benefits and options available to persons of retirement age. Following is the first of three articles summarizing the AICPA's findings, assembled with the cooperation of various federal agencies:

The biggest single contributor to the average senior citizen's income is Social Security. For most men and women past working age, the monthly Social Security check goes a long way toward helping keep body and soul together.

You don't have to wait until you are 65 to begin drawing Social Security benefits. You can apply as early as age 62, in which case the benefits will be less because of the extension of time over which they will be paid. Early retirement is advantageous up to a point, the point being age 77; that's when the benefits received by the person who retires at age 65 to catch up with an pull ahead of those paid to the age-62 retirees.

Conversely, if instead of retiring early you continue to work beyond 65, your ultimate Social Security benefits will increase one percent for each additional year of work, up to 7 percent at age 72. At 72 you begin to collect the full Social Security benefits to which you are entitled, even if you go on working.

Many retired persons work part-time to supplement diminished incomes. If you work througout the year, you can draw full Social Security payments before age 72 only if your annual earnings are $2,400 or less. For every dollar above that your benefits are reduced by 50 cents. Thus, if you earn $3,000, your earnings are $600 over the limit and your Social Security payments are reduced by half that amount, or $300.

If you work only intermittently, the situation is different; then the benefits are decreased only when monthly earnings exceed $200. Thus it is possible to earn much more than $2,400 for work performed during part of the year and still receive full benefits for those periods in which earnings do not exceed $200 per month.

For the self-employed, also, benefits are reduced only for the months in which they performr "substantial services"—a loosely defined term interpreted in each case by the Social Security Administration, which takes into account, among othe factors, the number of hours worked. In no case are benefits reduced if you worked fewer than 15 hours during a month.

If a husband and wife both qualify for Social Security benefits because of their work records, both can work past 65 and earn up to $2,400 each without losingany of the benefits. To do this, however, they must file for benefits with SSA separately. It may be more beneficial for the wife to file for benefits with her husband even though they are each entitled to benefits separately. The Social Security Administration usually will calculate the benefits obtained under each filing metod to determine which will yield the higher payments.

Income from pension plans, interests or rents received, royalties, dividends and the like to not affect Social Security benefits. Only earned income can reduce the benefits. The system was set up during the Great Depression and one of its purposes was to discourage people with pensions from holding jobs when so many others were unemployed.

National Education Assn. convention June 28-July 3

Values and ethics in a society rocked by government scandals will be the focus of the National Education Association's (NEA) opening session at their 112th annual meeting which more than 29[illegible] members of the Massachusetts Teachers Association (MTA) will attend in Chicago from June 28 until July 3.

Heading the Massachusetts delegation are incoming MTA President Thomas Tanous, Beverly teacher; MTA Executive Secretary, Dr. William H. Herbert of Framingham; and Massachusetts NEA Directors John T. McGarigal of Duxbury, who is also running for NEA treasurer this year; and Mrs. Kathleen R. Roberts of Raynham.

A two-day Critical Issues Conference will kick-off the convention keynoted by Writer-Historian, Arthur Schlesinger, Jr.

Other conference speakers include Representative Barbara Jordan (D-Texas), who will assess the national mood 20 years after the Supreme Court's landmark Brown desegregation decision; psychiatrist Karl Menninger on schools and individuals in a "value-free" society; and Common Cause Chairman John W. Gardner.

Teacher job security in the face of inflation, school finance, testing, accountability, and bilingual education will be prime topics at daily seminars.

Convention discussion is also expected to reflect teachers' political activism.

A spokesman for NEA said recently that this year's convention might for the first time adopt a procedure for NEA endorsement of a presidential candidate for the 1976 election.

With 48 of the NEA's state affiliates already unified, NEA is rapidly approaching to two-million member mark.

MTA voted to unify with NEA last year.

Organizational matters, budget, bylaws and resolutions will also be taken up by the 12,000 delegates representing every state in the Union.

Local delegates expected to attend are:

From Newton - Maeve Finley, David Geikie, Harold Hawkes, Melvin Levinson, Robert L. Provencher, Rudolphe Satlak and Joan Warner.

From Norwood - William Mazurek and Faye Pellett.

From Westwood - Joseph M. Hanley.

Newton YMCA to offer special classes in July

This summer, the YMCA in Newton will be offering two special informal classes during the month of July.

Both "Pottery-Ceramics" and "Archeology for the Amateur" will start the week of July 8 at the "Y."

The pottery-ceramics class is geared for those who are interested in "messing around" with stoneware clay, and will cover hand building to wheel work, firing and glazing. The course will be run two evenings a week, three hours a session so that each person will complete a project during a class period.

Tobey Lee Hirsch who has been teaching both youngsters and adults at the "Y" for over four years, is an art graduate of Carnegie-Mellon University.

The "Archeology for Amateurs" workshop, directed by Custiss Hoffman of Newton, a Ph.D. from Harvard University, will have two sessions at the "Y" as a preparation to spending a minimum of five Saturdays or Sundays at a local site now being excavated by the Massachusetts Archeological Society.

Further details concerning these workshop sessions may be had by calling Mr. Garfield of the Adult Division of the "Y" in Newton at 244-6050.

Library institutes new loan policy

There's a new liberalized policy of charging out books and materials at the Newton Free Library.

Beginning Wednesday, July 3, all circulating materials will have one due date each week, on Wednesdays. Patrons, of course, may continue to return materials any day of the week.

The one day a week due date will be a more efficient way for the library to serve the community. This system of one-due-date will enable the NFL to participate in the circulation control computer program of the Boston Public Library.

What were formerly 7-day loans (including new fiction and new non-fiction, magazines and pamphlets) may now be charged out for as long as 13 days depending on the borrowing date and will be considered Short Term Loans.

Twenty-one day loans, which include the bulk of the library's circulating materials may be charged out for as long as 27 days, again depending on the borrowing date, and will be considered Long Term Loans.

As a result of the change, not only will patrons often have the opportunity to study and enjoy their books for longer periods but they will also benefit from increased library efficiency.

All borrowers are urged to take note of the due date stamped in their library materials.

Publick Theatre opens fourth season July 4

Bring a blanket, a folding chair and a friend to the festival atmosphere of outdoor theater when the Publick Theater, 1175 Soldiers Field Road in Allston, opens its fourth season on July 4 with a production of William Shakespeare's "The Tempest."

Shakespeare's play of madness, music and magic will be joined by the Publick Theater's production of Oscar Wilde's "biblical" play in one act, "Salome," which was banned on the English stage after it was first written in 1895.

The two plays will be performed on alternate nights throughout the summer (with no performance on Mondays) until late August. Performances will begin at 8 p.m. and will be called in case of rain only.

The Publick Theater has been in existence since 1970, with the assistance of the Metropolitan District Commission and public support.

This year for the first time, the Publick Theater will charge an admission fee of $2 for adults and $1 for children. Children under five will be admitted free. There will be a special $1 admission on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings

Newton-Wellesley Hospital announces personnel changes

A total of 25 house officers, interns and residents, will join the medical team at Newton-Wellesley Hospital July 1. Nine of the house officers were interns or residents on the hospital staff last year.

Of the 10 new interns joining the staff, four are Massachusetts residents, two from Brookline and one each from Newton and Milton.

New residents are from Tufts University School of Medicine, Boston University Medical School, Peter Bent Brigham Hospital, New England Medical Center, Temple University, Medical College of Ohio, and the University of Heidelberg.

A major teaching affiliate with Tufts University School of Medicine since 1965, Newton-Wellesley Hospital has been a long-time training ground for interns and residents. The affiliation with Tufts coupled with clinical rotation with other major teaching hospitals in the Boston area have further expanded the scope of the hospital's house officers' training.

The postgraduate program at Newton-Wellesley Hospital includes intern training in medicine and surgery and training of residents in pathology, internal medicine and surgery.

Educational activities, including specialty clinics, X-ray and electrocardiogram conferences, laboratory experience, pathology, lectures and discussions, supplement regular duties of the interns and residents. Medical students from Tufts may elect courses in general surgery, pulmonary diseases, internal medicine, radiology, cardiology, anesthesia and pathology.

Six are from Tufts University School of Medicine, for which Newton-Wellesley is a major teaching affiliate. Others come from the Hersey Medical Center, Hersey, Pa.; Mount Sinai Medical Center, New York; New Jersey College of Medicien, and State University New York, Upstate Medical.

Janice Capozza, Bedford, has joined the Pediatric Dental Service as a dental hygienist at Newton-Wellesley. She assists in caring for the teeth of youngsters who visit the dental service located in the Outpatient Clinic.

Mrs. Capozza earned a dental hygienist degree at the University of Rhode Island. She also attended the University of Maine. She and her husband, a chief technician at the Boston University Medical Center, have a daughter.

Miriam Miller, Wayland, has been named the assistant director of nursing. She is a former assistant director of nursing at St. Luke's Hospital, New Bedford.

A graduate of Mount Sinai School of Nursing, Cleveland, Ohio, Mrs. Miller earned bachelor's and master's degrees in nursing at Case Western Reserve University in Cleveland.

She and her husband, personnel manager at Mitre Corp., have two daughters.

Harold Lee, Andover, is the new assistant director of fiscal services at Newton-Wellesley Hospital. Lee held a similar position at Winchester Hospital. He also has worked in the Finance Department at Beth Israel Hospital, Boston.

A 1969 graduate of Northeastern University, Lee holds a B.S. in finance. His wife is a personnel assistant for the Massachusetts Hospital Association, Burlington.

J.F. White starts building $35 million river dam

Construction by the J. F. White Contracting Company of the $35 million Charles River Dam and locks has begun.

White bid $34,957,250 to win the construction contract for the Charles River project. Almost 30 per cent of that total, about $10 million, will be for labor recruited from the metropolitan Boston area. The river facilities are scheduled for competion in 1977.

Supervision of the project is the responsibility of the New England Division of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, which held ground-breaking ceremonies June 17, the 199th anniversary of the founding of the Corps. Its first act was fortification of Breed's and Bunker Hills, less than one mile from the Dam site. The Corps is building the project in cooperation with the Metropolitan District Commission.

Thomas J. White, chief executive officer of J. F. White Construction Co., joined with Governor Sargent, M.D.C. Commissioner John Sears, Colonel John Mason and James D. Heelan, manager of the Little City Hall, Charlestown, in the traditional earth turning ceremonies.

White also participated in the ceremonies two hours later at the dedication of the Prison Point Bridge.

The Dam project will include an earth dam, three navigation locks, a large pumping station, an overhead enclosed walkway, fish ladder and sluice gates. A future highway viaduct is provided for in the design.

The bridge, which connects Charlestown and East Cambridge, replaces one completed in 1907, but which had detiorated badly. It was ordered closed in 1971, when it was nearly destroyed by fire. It will relieve some traffic pressure in City Square, Charlestown.

During its 64 year hisjtory, the White Company has built many New England projects. In 1971 it completed Schaefer Stadium in Foxboro, home of the New England Patriots. This porject was completed in the record time of 11 months allowing the Patriots to open their 1971 season on schedule. White is presently involved in a $35 million sewage treatment plant for the city of Springfield, an MBTA complex in Medford ($16 million) and other projects including the New England Aquarium and the 174-year-old Peabody Museum of Salem.

Cifrino new executive director of Carroll Rehabilitation Center

Paul J. Cifrino, former president of Supreme Markets, Inc., has been named executive director of The Carroll Rehabilitation Center for the Blind in Newton.

Cifrino was president of Supreme Markets for 25 years. After his company merged with Purity Markets, he left business to serve as head of the United States Food Aid Program in India during 1970 and 1971. Since his return from India, he had been a consultant in business management and a learning disabilities teacher at the Landmark School in Beverly.

A member of the executive board of the Carroll Center for over 20 years, Cifrino's commitment to the agency is longstanding. He was a close personal friend of the late Rev. Thomas J. Carroll, for whom the agency was recently renamed. (Father Carroll was executive director of the then Catholic Guild for All the Blind for 25 years and was an internationally known pioneer in the field of rehabilitation of blind people.)

Cifrino is a native of Boston, and earned his bachelor of arts degree in psychology at Harvard College. He is married to the former Dolores Hayes of Newton. The Cifrinos have six children, two of whom live at home in Cohasset.

The Carroll Center is a nonsectarian agency which specializes in the rehabilitation of blinded adults through both residential and commuter programs in adjustment counseling and courses in communication, mobility and personal management.

In addition, the agency provides community mobility services throughout Massachusetts and Rhode Island and supervises reader services to blind college students and other blind people.

The agency recently established a regional training center of Optacon, an electronic device which translates inkprint into a tactile impression. After Optacon training, a blind user will be able to read many materials heretofore unavailable to him — such as calculator displays, labels and telephone directories.

NAACP award given to Rosalie G. Dixon

Roasalie G. Dixon, a resident of Newton, was recently honored with an NAACP Achievement Award for Outstanding Service in Human Development by the Merrimack Valley Branch of the NAACP.

The presentation was made at their Annual Membership Banquet in Andover. She is a life member of the NAACP.

The award comes to Rosalie Dixon after several years of service in the Merrimack Valley. She currently is the program director of the Child Development Programs of Community Teamwork, Inc., Greater Lowell's anti-poverty program.

Ms. Dixon is a graduate of the Newton Publis School System. She received a B.S. in Education from Tufts University and an M.A. from Salem State.

Ms. Dixon is a member of Myrtle Baptist Church. She sings in the choir and is a member of the church advisory committee, scholarship committee, and Chairwoman of the Board of Christian Education.

Several members of Ms. Dison's family attended the event, including her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Carter; her son, Kwame DuBois Dixon; Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Carter, Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. William C. Carter, her brother and their wives. Rev. Harold A. Pulley, pastor, Myrtle Baptist Church, Deacon and Mrs. Howard Haywood, Lilly Jefferson (Church Clerk), Bertha Gilbert, Louis Fisher and Greg Scott also attended the award presentation.

Several of Ms. Dixon's staff members were there to see her receive this award.

burglary prevention

Chief William F. Quinn of the Newton Police Department has issued a summer vacation advisory on household protection and burglary prevention.

The Chief stated, "Each vacationer should arrange for discontinuance of paper deliveries, someone to pick up mail, or arrange with the post officer to hold mail, arrange to have the lawn taken care of, perhaps using automatic light timers to avoid the appearance of a closed house."

Quinn continued, "Informing police headquarters of the length and timing of the vacation will enable our men to keep an eye on the house, and having a responsible neighbor, who would call us in the event of any suspicious happening, is the best form of protection."

Russell S. Phillips, a life sciences major at M.I.T. was among the students at the institute elected to the Xi Chapter of Phi Beta Kappa.

Controls." Without semantically defining "Aarbitrary" (as used in the Bill of Rights) we would all agree, albeit ruefully, that as crime escalates as fast as the price of food, we are certainly "free of controls!"

And yet. And yet. We still have that one freedom that really counts. The "freedom" that Washington, Lincoln, Thoreau and Schweizer spoke of so feelingly . . . the FREEDOM of the INDIVIDUAL. Because of this, all other ideals can florish. Without it, everything we hold to be inviolate would wither within a week.

Our ethnic heritage, here in New England defies emotionalism, be it patriotic, nostalgic or even mildly enthusiastic. Bearing this in mind, perhaps I am asking for the moon? However . . . here it is! "Would it not be possible that, despite our present pall of general gloom, something new might be born this FOURTH OF JULY? Perhaps it might go like this . . . (we can do it very quietly!) . . .

. . . "Here's to the Glorious Fourth! And here's to those who gave it to us. We remember them with affection and thanks and a thousand new Resolutions to try and stand by all that they handed down to us . . . to love it . . . to polish it up . . . to repair it when necessary . . . and, above all . . . to GUARD IT!"

New car defects cut by elaborate safeguards

By AUTOMOTIVE INFORMATION COUNCIL

The average automobile is composed of about 15,000 parts and each has an average of 100 characteristics—chemical, metallurgical, and dimensional—any of which could present a defect. Each car, then, has the potential of 1.5 million defects.

To combat these staggering odds favoring defects, the auto companies use elaborate safeguards to insure the best possible quality. For example, the sole responsibility of thousands of inspectors is to spot defects before cars leave the assembly plants.

Despite this precaution, experiments have shown that if a person inspects 1,000 units of a given part, 100 of which are defective, it is probably he will miss 15.

Even if the design of a part is flwless, any mass production process carries the built-in probability of a few defective parts over a production run.

Auto manufacturers are meeting this challenge in several ways. First, they are ceveloping and installing newly-developed machinery and equipment to maintain closer engineering specifications on parts.

Secondly, they are increasing their inspection of parts supplied by outside manufacturers as well as stepping up in-plant inspections to achieve even higher levels of reliability and quality control.

Other methods include the use of sophisticated equipment to electronically monitor the accuracy of wheel alignment and other settings and to inspect shielded components. Computers help analyze part of system failures, and laboratory and road testing durations have been doubled and even quadrupled over previous levels.

In addition, auto manufacturers have improved feedback systems from both dealers and customers to quickly spot trouble areas. Dealer service operations are evaluated annually and companies carry on extensive programs for training and upgrading the skills of technicians and other service personnel.

When defects do slip through, most are minor in nature and usually can be corrected with little problem under the manufacturer's warranty.

Security deposits are legal

A prospective tenant negotiating for a lease called the League of Women Voters Voter Information Phone to find out if security deposits are still legal. The League volunteer staffing the Phone found that security deposits are allowed by state law.

One or two months rent may be required but the landlord must now pay the tenant 5 percent interest on the money at the termination of the renting period. If the lease is long term, and there is a special agreement between the landlord and tenant the interest may be paid yearly.

This question is one of the many now being received by the League of Women Voters Voter Information Phone. Individuals with any questions on government may call the VIP phone Monday through Friday between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. The number in the oston area is 357-5880. Outside the Boston metropolitan area callers should dial the toll-free number 1-800-882-1649.

John Ambrosini is a real winner. He got 35.7 m.p.g. in our Dasher

Gas Economy Contest

You know, great gas mileage has always been a Volkswagen specialty. And now employees at Herb Anderson Volkswagen are competing in a series of Gas Economy Contests. This week's winner is . . John Ambrosini! But, before we tell you about the mileage that John got, remember that this isn't one of those phony runs where a test driver coasts downhill. John drove a full-sized Dasher with air conditioning right through town on one precisely-measured quart of gas. HE DROVE FROM THE DEALERSHIP — North on Rt. #1 to Dean St., Up to Dean to Neponset, Neponset to #95 South, to Coney St., Rt. #1 North back to our dealership. We checked his mileage and it came to 35.7 miles per gallon. That's with stop-and-go driving, traffic and all. Congratulations, John, but of course you had a great thing going for you. The Dasher. More economical on gas than any other car in its weight class.

Mileage contest at Herb Anderson's

You know, great gas mileage has always been a Volkswagen specialty. And now employees at Herb Anderson Volkswagen are competing in a series of Gas Economy Contests. This week's winner is . . John Ambrosini! But, before we tell you about the mileage that John got, remember that this isn't one of those phony runs where a test drive coasts downhill.

John drove a full-sized Dasher with air conditioning right through town on one precisely-measured quart of gas HE DROVE FROM THE DEALER — North on Rt. 1 to Dean St., Up Dean to Neponset, Neponset to Rt. 95, South, to Coney St., Rt. 1 North back to our dealership. We checked his mileage and it came to 35.7 per gallon. That's with stop-and-go driving, traffic and all.

Congratulations, John, but of course you had a great thing going for you. The Dasher More economical on gas than any other car in its wieght class.

PROBATE COURT

To the Estate of Adeleta C. Beach late of Newton in the County of Middlesex and to all other persons interested.

A petition has been presented to said Court by Anita G. Finnegan of Miami in the State of Florida representing that she hold as tenant in common one undivided half part or share of certain land lying in Newton in said County and briefly described as follows:

1st Parcel: the land with the buildings situated in that part of said Newton called Newton Highlands, and being a portion of Lot 101 on plan entitled "Plan of House Lots in Newton Highlands, Newton, Mass., property of W. S. Griswold, C. E. Bellamy, Surveyor" and being recorded with Middlesex South District Deeds in Plan Book 328, Plan 38, bounded and described as follows:

NORTHERLY: by land of owners unknown, Two Hundred Two (202) feet;

EASTERLY: by land now or late of Doucette, Fifty (50) feet;

SOUTHERLY: by the remaining portion of lot 101 being land now or late of Walter Liberty, Two Hundred (200) feet; and

WESTERLY by Winchester Street, Fifty (50) feet.

2nd Parcel: that certain parcel of land situate in Newton in the County of Middlesex and said Commonwealth bounded and described as follows:

SOUTHWESTERLY: by Winchester Street, ten feet;

NORTHWESTERLY: by lot 191B as shown on plan hereinafter mentioned, two hundred thirty-two and 35-100 feet;

NORTHEASTERLY: by lot 184 on said plan, ten feet; and

SOUTHEASTERLY: by said lot 184 and by land now or formerly of F. A. Reichert, two hundred thirty-one and 95-100 feet.

Said parcel is shown as lot 191A on said plan.

All of said boundaries are determined by the Court to be located as shown on a subdivision plan, as approved by the Court, filed in the Land Registration Office, a copy of which is filed in the Registry of Deeds for the South Registry District of Middlesex County in Registration Book 522, Page 51, with Certificate 78401.

There is appurtenant to the above described land the right to use in common with others entitled thereto all abutting private ways shown on plan filed in Registration Book 220, Page 169, namely Upland Avenue, Andrew Street, Columbia Avenue and Old Winchester Street.

The above described land is subject to an Order by the City of Newton that common sewer be laid and maintained through Winchester Street and Estimated Assessments, Documents 203448, and to a taking for relocating &c. Winchester Street, Document 206224 setting forth that she desires that all of said land may be sold at private sale for not less than twenty-four thousand dollars, and praying that partition may be made of all the land aforesaid according to law, and to that end that a commissioner be appointed to make such partition and be ordered to make sale and conveyance of all, or any part of said land which the Court finds cannot be advantageously divided either at private sale or public auction, and be ordered to distribute the net proceeds thereof.

If you desire to object thereto you or your attorney should file a written appearance in said Court at Cambridge before ten o'clock in the forenoon on the tenth day of July 1974, the return day of this citation.

Producer Paul K. Cohen of Newton Centre has been producing a play in Washington, D.C., during May and June.

Theatre production

Paul K. Cohen of Newton Centre has been producing "Jacques Brel is Alive and Well and Living in Paris" in Washington, D.C.

The 22-year-old Cohen has been completing an M.F.A. in theatre management at George Washington University under a fellowship.

Cohen received an undergraduate degree in speech communications from George Washington, and he is a former apprentice to the general manager of the Kennedy Center.

Cohen has been public relations director for George Washington's drama department and has served as theatre manager of the Marvin Center Theatre.

Cohen's Newton address is 111 Rosalie Rd.

Study indicates television ads influence food habits

"When children exert control over their family food purchase by requesting certain foods, it is usually those products they see advertised on television and usually foods with a high level of sugar," according to a recent study commissioned by Action for Children's Television and carried out by Stephen L. Disson at the University of Pennsylvania's Wharton School.

During his study, "The Effects of Television Advertising on a Child's Eating Habits and Control over the Family Food Purchase," Disson sampled 186 economically, sexually, and racially mixed 9-13-year-olds from four Philadelphia public schools.

The analysis found that 95 per cent of the respondents, all of whom owned at least one television set, saw the cereal they usually eat advertised on television, though not one of them reported wanting the product because of its nutritional content. Almost three-quarters of the parents yielded to their children's requests to buy TV-advertised cereals. And, as a result of television commercials, nearly half of all the students polled associated the word 'sweet' with something good in terms of taste and smell.

In conclusion, Mr. Disson expressed concern over the present state of food advertising directed to children: "Children are not being nutritionally educated or taught to be wise consumers by the commercials on the air. Instead, they are encouraged to eat 'sweet' products which have a very high sugar content and often have questionable or no nutritional value."

Information about the study can be obtained from Action for Children's Television, 46 Austin Street, Newtonville, Mass. 02160.

Recreation notes

Arts in the Parks series slated for summer months

Arts in the Parks

The Newton Recreation Department, in a move to expand art programming for all age groups, is offering a special Arts in the Parks series this summer.

Many special events are planned for the playground season, July 1 through Aug. 23. These programs will include performances in the arts, craft workshops and art demonstrations, as well as the appearance of specialists in drama and dance.

Each Wednesday evening from 8:45 - 10:30 p.m., an outdoor film program is scheduled. On July 3 and July 17, the films will be shown after performances of the Newton High Jazz Ensemble.

One of the highlights of the summer will be a performance of "Fiddler on the Roof," an all-Newton student endeavor with professional costuming and production. This presentation will be at North High, August 5, 6 and 7.

Puppeteer

Newton puppeteer, Eleanor Boylan, will perform here in July and August. The performances will be offered at locations throughout the city.

Children's Theatre

The National Children's Theatre will present "Mirror Man" in Newton once in July and once in August.

Square Dancing

The Garden City Squares will offer square dancing for beginners and advanced beginners as part of the cultural arts series.

Schedule

July schedule in part: puppet demonstration, July 2, Stearns School at 2 p.m.; July 9, Burr School at 2 p.m.; Garden City Squares, July 2, Newton Centre, 7:30 - 9:30 p.m.; July 10, Boyd Playground, 7:30 - 9:30 p.m.; National Children's Theatre, "Mirror Man," July 24, Burr Park at 1 p.m.; Newton High Jazz Ensemble, July 3, Newton Centre at 7:30 p.m.; July 9, Memorial School at 7:30 p.m.; summer films, July 3, "Brian's Song, Newton Centre Playground, at 8:45 p.m.; July 10, Adventure Night, "Solo," "Sea Sorcery" and "The Undersea World of Jacques Cousteau" at 8:45 p.m.

Gymnastics

A gymnastics program will begin at the outdoor simulated area at Newton North High School on July 9. It will continue until the third week in August. There will be two sessions, the first for young people 10 to 15 from 7:30 - 8:30 p.m. and the second for adults, from 8:30 - 10 p.m. It will continue Tuesdays and Thursdays until Aug. 22.

Summer Basketball

The Recreation Department's Junior High Basketball League for boys began play at Sacred Heart June 24.

The program runs from 8 - 10 p.m. Play will continue through the week of August 12, including the playoffs. The six teams will later in the season play at Newton Centre Playground.

Newton North Gym

The Newton North High School gym, beginning June 26, will be open from 7 - 10 p.m. Monday through Friday. All gym activities will be in the simulated outdoor area.

North High Pool

The pool at North High also went on the summer schedule on June 26. It will operate five days a week, Monday through Friday. There will be classes and swim team practice from 2 - 7 p.m. and general swimming from 8 - 10 p.m.

Scuba Classes

There are still some openings in the scuba classes to be held at the North High pool. Classes begin Friday, June 28, and will continue until August 2, under the direction of instructor Bill DeWart.

The classes will meet Friday evenings from 6 to 10 p.m. and registrations are accepted at the pool. A $40 fee includes instruction and use of equipment.

After-school program

Now that a parent run board has incorporated the Bowen After-School Care Program, working parents in the Bown community can register their children in this after-school facility.

The program will utilize space within the Bowen School, but will be a separate, economically self-sustaining non-profit entity.

Starting in September 1974, children in grades 1-4 can attend Monday - Wednesday - Friday from 3-6 p.m. and Tuesday - Thursday from 1:30 - 6 p.m. when school is in session. The fee schedule is $20-week for full time care and $12-week for part time (M-W-F or Tues-Thurs) care.

Through the efforts of Fern Marx, child care facilitator of the NewtonWomen's Cooperative, a substantial number of half-tuition scholarships and ADC full scholarships will be available to qualifying families.

Applicatons are now being accepted, and will continue to be reviewed throuthout the summer. At the present time, a maximum of 20 children can be accommodated, so early registration is suggested to ensure a child a place in the program, and scholarship aid if needed. A one week deposit is required at the time of registration.

Further information and application forms can be obtained by contacting Miriam Ober at 244-2380.

Party for telethon

The Newton Democratic City Committee will host a party in connection with the Third Democratic National Telethon.

The party will be at the home of William and Constance Kantar, 382 Kenrick St., Sunday, June 30, from 3 to 5 p.m. Champagne punch and strawberries will be served. There is no admission charge and everyone is welcome to attend.

The National Telethon will begin Saturday, June 29, at 10 p.m. and conclude Sunday, June 30, at 7 p.m.

The first international prize fight was held in St. Louis in 1869 with America's Mike McCoole beating England's Tom Allen in a bare knuckles contest. 1

Borrowing privileges change for summer

The Newton Free Library continues its tradition of providing special vacation borrowing privileges to all library patrons who leave the city for 3 weeks or more and can provide a forwarding address.

The Newton Free Library's Vacation Loan Program is available to all library patrons and the books will not be due back until October 1. With certain exceptions such as reserve books, 7-day books, 1974 books, and books in constant demand, all library books may be borrowed for this extended period.

Vacation loan privileges are extended to children and children's literature as well as adults.

According to NFL's Reader's Adviser Mrs. Sheila Brownstein, some of the favorite types of books for vacation borrowing, although all types are available, include novels, travel books, books about summer sports and the classics.

Readers also make use of the long-term vacation privileges to develop new leisure-time pursuits, to broaden their knowledge in specialized fields, and to keep up with world affairs and cultural activities.

Summer hours for the main library and its branches are in effect June 16 through Sept. 2 which means the main library, 414 Centre St., is open Monday through Friday 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. and closed Saturdays and Sundays. Check with your local library as summer schedules vary at the different branches in the city.
